CHURCH COURT FINDS SHELTON FREE OF GUILT

Pastor of Mount Vernon Place Congregation Receives Ovation.

CLERIC, REINSTATED, PRESIDES AT SERVICE

Charges Made by Secretary Are Held Groundless After Three-Day Trial.

Acquitted of charges preferred by Miss Carrie A. Williams, his former secretary, the Rev. Dr. William A. Shelton was received back by his congregation at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church last night with such a demonstration as has seldom marked a prayer meeting in this city.

The thirteen clergymen, who for three days had sat in trial of Dr. Shelton in the Young People's Building of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Alexandria returned their verdict of "absolutely innocent" at 5:25 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The 56-year-old preacher and scholar was immediately reinstated as pastor of his church. Dr. W. S. Hammond, of Martinsburg, W. Va., made public for the first time the nature of the charge—"immorality," based on two specifications. He said the trial closed the matter so far as the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is concerned.

Returns With Wife.

Dr. Shelton, with his wife, who from the start said she was confident he would be acquitted of the charges, returned to Washington at once to attend a prayer meeting at the Mount Vernon Place Church.

The reinstated pastor entered the meeting late, from a side door near the chancel. The approximately 1,000 persons rose to their feet and cheered.

When the prolonged welcome had subsided a little, Dr. Shelton managed to utter a few words of thanks, and expressed the hope that the church "would be closer in consecration and devotion than ever before."

The organ rolled out the strains of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," and the congregation sang the words heartily.

Pastor Voices Thanks.

Then the pastor made a long speech.

"There are times when words fail you," he said. "I have no words at this time in my heart to tell you how I feel. I have put the church always above every hope, above my greatest ambitions, above everything. And when, after years of such service and devotion, one faces being turned out of the church, it is the saddest thing that can happen to a man. At such a time human nature shows its worst side.

"No man in the past few years of history, I believe, has been as fortunate as I have in his friends. Outside of my congregation I have had 1,000 letters and telegrams. So far as I know, 99 per cent of this church has been with me. You have prayed for me, given me your love and confidence. When I returned to my home tonight I found flowers that you had left."

Cheers Interrupt Words.

Dr. Shelton was interrupted from time to time with cheers and applause. The meeting verged on hilarity, as speaker after speaker rose to congratulate the pastor and the church.

Dr. Shelton introduced the Rev. W. A. McKee, of Montgomery, Ala., and Arthur Brooke, of Atlanta, whom he said had come north to lend him their support. In presenting Miss Estelle Dozier, who was his secretary in Atlanta, Ga., Dr. Shelton said:

"I want to ask Miss Dozier, who thinks I'm not very bad, to stand."

In conclusion, he paid tribute to the Rev. Dr. F. H. Deal, assistant pastor at the church.

"I want to say that in all of my experience, in all of my relationships,

Woman Abandons Baby at Bus Depot

Leaves Infant and Leather Bag With Bystander; Fails to Return.

Mrs. Margaret McLeain was left holding the bag and the baby, both, yesterday. After holding them for about two hours she decided she had been duped and reported the affair to police. The baby was taken to Gallinger Hospital while police investigated.

Mrs. McLeain, who lives at 1111 Thirteenth street northwest, said that she was waiting at the Union Bus Terminal yesterday afternoon when an attractive young woman with a child in her arms got off the New York bus. The young woman also carried a small leather bag.

The young woman approached Mrs. McLeain and asked if she would mind the baby and the bag for a few minutes. Mrs. McLeain consented. Minutes stretched into hours and the young woman failed to return. Then Mrs. McLeain called police.

She told police the woman who abandoned the baby was about 20 years old, weighed about 130 pounds and was 5 feet 5 inches tall. She was dressed in black. At the hospital the leather bag was found to contain toilet articles and clothing.

PAY-CUT SITUATION CLOSELY WATCHED

Steel Slashes Deplorable, but Appeared Unavoidable, Is Doak Comment.

Providence, R. I., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Secretary of Labor William N. Doak tonight characterized recent wage cuts by large steel companies and other concerns as "deplorable."

Declining to say whether he believes a general wage reduction is likely, Mr. Doak said he agreed with President Hoover's attitude that the present standard of wages ought to be maintained.

"It is deplorable," he said, referring to the specific wage cuts, "but apparently it could not be avoided."

He struck an optimistic note in discussing unemployment. On the basis of surveys his department is making in key industries throughout the country, he declared, there has been a slight gain in employment.

"There has been little change during the last three months," he added, "but whatever change we have noted indicates improvement."

The Secretary was silent on the prohibition referendum resolution adopted today by the American Legion at Detroit, but he indicated he was pleased that the legionnaires rejected a resolution favoring immediate payment of bonus certificates at face value.

Secretary Doak, with his wife and Assistant Secretary of Labor Walter W. King, arrived here tonight from Washington. Mr. Doak will speak at the Pawtuxet Valley Fair tomorrow.

(Associated Press.)

The studied silence in official Washington on wage cuts fails to cloak the disagreement as to the wisdom or propriety of the move initiated by some corporations.

Whatever the view held, however, there is a uniform watch on in both Federal and private organization ranks to trace developments on the shifting pay scene. The latest news of importance goes immediately to the executives directly interested.

Among having a bearing yesterday included:

[illegible]sburgh Coal Co., among the largest bituminous producers of that district, slashed salaries 10 per cent. Nothing said of wages.

Prospect of trouble apparent in Milwaukee, where members of a hosiery workers union threatened a walkout unless proposed wage reductions of between 30 and 45 per cent by the Phoenix and Holeproof companies are rescinded.

In New York, the Anaconda Copper Co. revealed salaries had been cut up

Second Test Flight Is Ended by Akron

Purposes of Trial Are Held Fully Met; Up for Four Hours.

Akron, Ohio, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The Navy dirigible Akron completed its second trial flight at 10:46 p. m. Eastern standard time tonight, hooking up to her portable mooring mast after cruising in wide circles over the vicinity of Akron for 3 hours and 51 minutes. The take-off, flight and landing were apparently without untoward incident.

The ground crew took hold of the 785-foot ship, largest lighter-than-air craft in the world, and had her back in her huge dock about an hour after she tied up.

Tonight's cruise, lasted exactly four minutes longer than Wednesday's maiden flight. Navy officials and officers of the craft said the purposes of the second flight, to further try the general airworthiness of the ship and to test minor adjustments on the controls, the motors and gas cells, had been fully met.

Amount of Gold in U. S. Declines $118,000,000

(Associated Press.)

A decrease of $118,000,000 in the amount of monetary gold held in the United States for the week ending September 23 was announced last night in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly statement.

The decrease reduced the total held by the United States to $4,897,000,000 and constituted the first sizeable reduction in gold held in this country in more than a year. The board said that the principal operation which caused the decrease was the ear-marking of $123,000,000 of gold for foreign accounts. At the same time there were shipments of $5,000,000 to the United States, making the net loss $118,000,000.

ILLEGAL JUROR BASIS OF MOVE FOR TEST CASE

Statute of Limitations Has Already Applied on Two Counts.

NEW INDICTMENTS OF POLICE DELAYED

Rover Decides to Act Today in Instance of Alleged Embezzlement.

A test case in an effort to save something from the wreckage caused by presence of an ineligible juror on the July grand jury will be made today by the United States attorney's office when it presents evidence in an instance where the statute of limitations will apply within three days.

This course of action was decided upon when a Post reporter called attention to the nearness of the time limit in this case. Previously Leo A. Rover, United States attorney, indicated that all of the indictments already returned by the July grand jury would be held over for the October jury.

The test case will be the only one represented. All of the 178 others acted upon by the "illegal" jury, including the police "third degree cases," will not be represented until October.

Statute of Limitations.

The statute of limitations has already applied on two counts of indictments returned in the test action. Before the irregularity of Henry L. Johnson's presence was discovered the July grand jury had returned a special report on August 26 for the special purpose of making the case binding.

The test case involves four counts of embezzlement against James W. Sherman and Alpheus J. Sherman, brothers, accused of selling Miss Jessie Holt, an employe of Children's Hospital, two tickets on a world tour which failed to take place.

Court records show that Miss Holt gave the men, doing business as the Sherman Brothers Travel Bureau, two checks for $800 each, one dated August 27, 1928 and the other dated September 27 1928.

The indictment was returned in four counts on August 26, 1931, in a special grand jury report, just one day before the statute of limitations applied on the first two counts. Two of the four counts charged embezzlement of the two checks and the other two embezzlement of the proceeds of the checks.

Witnesses to Appear Again.

Witnesses in the case will be called before the newly constituted grand jury, on which two members have been named to replace Mr. Johnson, the Spanish War pensioner, whose remittance from the Government disrupted legal action in 179 indictments, and Randolph M. Scott, excused for "business reasons."

The jury will attempt to reindict on the two counts involved through the check written September 27, 1928. The test will resolve into an attempt to make this reindictment stand up in court if it is attacked by defense attorneys on the ground that the two new jurors might have been prejudiced by the previous action of the other jurors.

It was not until late yesterday afternoon that Mr. Rover finally decided he would hold all of the cases in which indictments were returned by the July jury over until the new jury is sworn in on October 6.

"In view of certain information recently received by me, I have decided

Expedition to Seek Link In American Archeology

Mexico City, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—An archeological expedition financed by the National University and private individuals, including former Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, will start work at Monte Alban, Oaxaca, next month to uncover ruins which are expected to throw light on the connection between the ancient Indian civilizations of Mexico and Central America.

Monte Alban is believed to have once been the site of the principal city of the Zapotecan people, considered a link between the two civilizations.

Philippine Legislature Adopts Liberty Petition

Manila, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The insular legislature today unanimously adopted a resolution memorializing Congress for immediate independence for the Philippines.

The memorial was passed at a joint session of the two houses and was delivered to Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, now officially visiting the Philippines, for delivery to Congress and President Hoover.

South Carolina Passes 'No Cotton in 1932' Law

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The special session of the South Carolina General Assembly was adjourned sine die late today, leaving behind it a law prohibiting cotton planting in 1932 as its contribution to raise the price of cotton and reduce its overproduction. The law is contingent upon similar action in three-fourths of the cotton belt.

Nanking-Canton Peace Conference Is Planned

Hongkong, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Gen. Chen Ming-Shu, acting under orders from President Chiang Kai-Shek, of the Nanking government, today invited the heads of the Canton insurgent government by telegraph to attend a peace conference at Shanghai.

Gen. Chen was military governor at Canton for the Nationalist government until ousted by the insurgents.

Unofficial reports here said that as a basis for the peace conference Chiang Kai-Shek would resign his civil and executive positions in the Nanking government in favor of Hu Han-Min, Cantonese leader, but would remain as commander in chief of the Nationalist army.

TAX-BOOST DECISION IS EXPECTED SOON

Treasury Chiefs Push Study as Deficit Mounts to $364,258,237.

(Associated Press.)

The American taxpayer probably will know in a month or six weeks whether Congress will be asked to dig deeper into his pocketbook.

Treasury experts are trying to solve the problem presented by declining tax receipts and mounting expenditures.

A decision may be expected several weeks before Congress convenes in December.

Whether it is for tax revision or continuation of the present borrowing policy with consequent increases in the public debt, President Hoover must pass on it before it goes to Congress.

The President has been represented as opposed to higher taxes during the depression if it is at all possible to avoid them. He has urged drastic economy all along the line, but whether this will be enough without more taxes remains for the Treasury to find out.

Mr. Hoover's latest expression on taxes was given Monday before the American Legion convention at Detroit.

Evidently referring to proposals of some Republicans and Democrats in Congress for higher taxes on the wealthy, the President warned the legionnaires not to be misled by "those who say that we need only to tax the rich to secure the funds we need."

"We must face the absolute fact," he said, "that the rich can be taxed to the point of diminishing returns, and still the deficit in our ordinary and necessary expenditures would not be covered even upon a basis of the utmost economy. Make no mistake; in these circumstances it is those who work in the fields, at the bench and desk who would be forced to carry an added burden for every added cent to our expenditures."

Senators and representatives in Washington in both parties are widely divided on the question of a tax boost.

Senators Watson (Republican), Indiana; Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, and Representative Tilson (Republican), Connecticut, have expressed opposition to higher taxes. Others in both parties have come out for them.

Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, has suggested a sales tax on all commodities; Senators Sheppard, Texas; Walsh and Wheeler, Montana, all Democrats, and Couzens, Michigan; Brookhart, Iowa; Frazier, North Dakota, all Republicans, and Representative Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee, are for higher taxes on large incomes; Representative Bacharach (Republican), New Jersey, favors higher surtaxes and a luxury tax; Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, wants higher surtaxes and also extension of the lower brackets; Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, proposes broadening the tax base to impress on those with incomes now tax exempt the responsibility for a share in Government upkeep.

U. S. NOTES ASK SINO-JAPANESE FIGHTING CEASE

Tokyo Cabinet Disclaims Any Territorial Aims in Manchuria.

INTERVENTION HELD JUSTIFIED BY PACTS

Diplomat Denies Americans Died in Clash; League Is Pushing Efforts.

(Associated Press.)

Identical notes urging cessation of hostilities in Manchuria were sent last night by Secretary Stimson to the Chinese and Japanese governments.

Both countries also were importuned to withdraw their forces and avoid acts which might interfere with attempts to settle the difference peaceably.

The notes said this Government considers its intervention warranted by the desire of its people for world peace and by the fact that the United States is a party to several treaties for settling controversies without force.

They expressed the "regret and very great concern" of the American Government and people at recent events in Manchuria.

Appeals Made Through Envoys.

The formal communications followed similar appeals by this Government through the diplomatic representatives of China and Japan here.

The action also came after passage by the League of Nations on Tuesday of a resolution calling for Japanese troops to stop their advance into Manchuria and for the withdrawal of both Chinese and Japanese forces.

In response to a request by the league that the United States, a nonmember, take similar action, Secretary Stimson on Wednesday advised the league that this had already been done informally and would be repeated in official notes.

"The Government and people of the United States have observed with regret and with great concern events of the past few days in Manchuria," said the notes sent late yesterday through the American diplomatic missions in China and Japan.

Action Backed by Treaties.

"In view of the sincere desire of the people of this country that principles and methods of peace shall prevail in international relations, and of the existence of treaties, to several of which the United States is a party, the provisions of which are intended to regulate the adjustment of controversies between nations without resort to use of force, the American Government feels warranted in expressing to the Chinese and the Japanese governments its hope that they will cause their military forces to refrain from any further hostilities, will so dispose, respectively, of their armed forces as to satisfy the requirements of international law and international agreements, and will refrain from activities which may prejudice the attainment by amicable methods of an adjustment of their differences."

Earlier in the day Ambassador Dubuchi, of Japan, informed Secretary Stimson that many published reports concerning Japanese activities were exaggerated or incorrect.

Concerning a report that a Japanese army officer had been appointed Mayor of Mukden, in Manchuria, he said that as soon as the Tokyo government learned of such a plan peremptory orders were sent forbidding it.

Denies Americans Killed.

It the category of "wholly unfounded" he placed a report that three Americans had been killed in Mukden and that the Japanese oc-

"If I Burn, I Burn Game," Wimbley Writes to Woman

Man Held in Canal Drowning of Wife and 3-Year-Old Child, Declares He Has Been Sleepless Since Affair; Recipient Quizzed.

Complaining that he "has not slept peacefully since the night of September 16th," Harry C. Wimbley, held in the District Jail with John M. Crowder, in connection with the drowning of his wife, Elizabeth T. Wimbley, and her daughter, Wilma, 3, on September 17, in a letter to a young woman friend, which is now in the hands of Detective Sergt. James M. Springmann, is said to have written, "If I burn, I'll burn game."

The missive, written to Mrs. Lola Mulligan, 802 Twenty-second street northwest, from his cell in the District Jail, also says that "everything looks bad and dark against me." A request was contained in the letter for Mrs. Mulligan to obtain his clothing from his former lodgings at 305 C street northwest, and send them to him after laundering. The full text of the letter, which covered five pages, would not be divulged by police.

Mrs. Mulligan went to the C street address yesterday to obtain the effects, she said. There, after she stated her errand, Mrs. Nellie Leonard, Wimbley's former landlady, told Mrs. Mulligan that she would have to notify police before giving up the belongings of the accused man. Before police arrived, however, Mrs. Mulligan hurried away unexplainedly in a taxicab without Wimbley's clothing. She was located early last night and interrogated at length at headquarters.

Beyond turning the letter over to Detective Springmann and stating that she had known Wimbley for some time, it was said that Mrs. Mulligan was unable to furnish any new leads in the investigation of the plot—admitted by Crowder—to do away with Wimbley's wife and step-daughter. She was allowed to return to her home, after the interrogative session at police headquarters.

It was learned yesterday that the $10,000 accident-insurance policy, car-

LEGION FOR RUM VOTE AS CASH BONUS LOSES; ACT APPROVED AND HIT

Leaders Express Views on Referendum Plea of Veterans.

DELEGATES "DRUNK," IS WILSON'S CHARGE

Disgraced Uniform, He Says; Montana Senator Views Change as Legal.

(Associated Press.)

The "pros" and "cons" on the subject of prohibition were engaged last night in a battle of words which was prompted apparently by two developments:

1. A call for a referendum on the eighteenth amendment sounded by the American Legion to the accompaniment of shouts of "we want beer."

2. Announcement of an inquiry by Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, into the effect of legal brewing on the farmer.

The legion was described by Dr. Clarence True Wilson as having "taken the wet side." He said, "Numbers of staggering drunks disgraced the uniform and yelled for beer." Dr. Wilson is general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Not Asked by White House.

Like Walter Newton, secretary to the President, who recently obtained data on the number of men employed by breweries, Secretary Hyde said his action had not been suggested by the White House, and the results would not be submitted to the President.

Word of Secretary Hyde's inquiry and of the legion's vote reached the White House almost immediately yesterday, but no comment came from there.

Little time elapsed, however, before other quarters in the Capital were heard from.

Director Woodcock, of the Prohibition Bureau, said he did not wish to engage in a discussion of the beer question. His thought, he said, was that agitation for a change in existing law "tended to keep the private violator from settling down and obeying the law."

The Antisaloon League issued a statement condemning the legion's vote and maintaining it did "not reflect the sentiment of the country and probably not of the legion itself."

Sees 2 to 1 Opposition.

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, referring to the legion's vote of more than two to one, said:

"I have believed and publicly contended that the sentiment of the people of our country is over two to one against any further continuation of the preposterous experiment of national prohibition."

Senator Walsh of Montana, a constitutional authority, commented that repeal or amendment of the Volstead act would be constitutional and would not constitute nullification of the eighteenth amendment.

The Democratic senator predicted beer legislation would be the subject of considerable agitation at the next session. He contended enactment by Congress of a law authorizing the sale of beer would be unconstitutional and would constitute nullification, but mere repeal of the Volstead act, or amendment of it, to remove the penalties for sale of beer, would not.

If the Volstead act were repealed or amended in this way, Walsh said, the sale of beer would be illegal under the Constitution, but would not be criminal and could not be penalized.

Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, said of the American Legion's

Secretary Adams yesterday was treated to some real speed by David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics.

Piloting a Navy combat plane, Ingalls flew the secretary from Akron, Ohio, to Washington in one hour and 24 minutes, an average speed of 204 miles per hour. Ingalls piloted the Secretary to the Ohio city Wednesday for the trial flight of the Akron.

HYDE TO STUDY BEER EFFECT ON FARMING

Hoover Relation to Inquiry Denied by Agriculture Department Head.

(Associated Press.)

A second arm of the Federal Government is dipping into the rumor-surrounded topic of legalized beer and its possible effect upon the Nation's economics.

Just about the time the American Legion in Detroit was voting for a referendum, Secretary Hyde dropped word yesterday that the Department of Agriculture was initiating an inquiry as to the effect of legal brewing on the farmer.

The statement started anew the ferment of rumors that stirred throughout the Capital when Walter H. Newton, one of the President's secretaries, collected data on the beer-economic depression question.

When the froth was blown away from yesterday's development, however, it left no clearer than before the question of what—if anything—may result from the crescendo of beer talk in Washington. It is known, however, that at least one high official considers the talk just so much talk.

In a recent conversation this same executive said that nowadays any mention of legal beer was mention of the impossible.

In fact, within an hour after Secretary Hyde had disclosed his intention of investigating the subject, some of his associates said he regretted ever having mentioned it.

Nevertheless, the tall, gray-haired Cabinet officer caused a real flurry by his statement. He said his department had been queried repeatedly as to the possible effect of a revived malt, hops and barley demand upon the farmer. He, too, was interested, he said, and intended to find out.

Hyde said the investigation had not been suggested by the White House and that the results would not be submitted to the President.

At this juncture one of the newspapermen who surrounded the agriculture chief remarked that he had

New England Bloc Urged for Senate

Moses Says Group Could Rule Body and Silence Impudent Minority.

Swampscott, Mass., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, tonight advocated the formation of a New England senatorial bloc which he predicted would control the United States Senate. He spoke at the convention of the Massachusetts Cooperative Bankers League.

He said the formation of such a bloc would "result perhaps selfishly for us but unselfishly for all the United States—this because of the attributes of New England which is self-supporting, self-respecting and does not yammer at the gates of Congress to have the Government do those things which individuals should do themselves."

He urged that New England investors organize to back such a bloc and said that millions of dollars invested by New England people was in in constant peril from legislation. He said he wondered why "an impudent minority in Congress make these investors take it lying down."

Tennessee Voters Beat Constitutional Revision

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The Tennessee electorate today decisively defeated a proposal to hold a constitutional convention, to consider revisions of the State Constitution adopted in 1870. It marked the ninth time in succession that efforts to amend the Constitution failed. With returns from approximately half the State, the vote stood: For a convention, 6,337; against, 25,086.

These figures represented reports from 828 out of approximately 2,000 precincts.

Hoover Is Encouraged By Legion Bonus Stand

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover was very much heartened yesterday by the action of the American Legion in refusing to request full payment of the bonus.

It was said at the White House that Mr. Hoover was gratified by the support given him by the legion on that issue.

There was no comment on the action of the veterans in calling for a referendum on the eighteenth amendment.

President Hoover, in an address before the legion on Monday, warned that any further demands from the Federal Treasury at this time would result in "grave risks."

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 24.—The American Legion today launched an offensive against national prohibition. At the same time, it went on record against cash payment of the war bonus.

Today's session, referred to by some of the legionnaires as the "booze and bonus session," was the most uproarious in the history of the American Legion. Boos, hisses and cat calls punctuated nearly every speech that was delivered in Masonic Temple.

The antiprohibition resolution was adopted by a vote of 1,008 to 394; the resolution against cash payment of the bonus by a vote of 902 to 507.

Having disposed of these two matters, the convention elected Henry Leonidas Stevens, jr., 35-year-old North Carolina attorney, to succeed Ralph T. O'Neil, of Kansas, as national commander. The District of Columbia delegation, when it found that there was no chance to put over former Senator Rice Means, of Colorado, voted for Stevens.

Dry Referendum Urged.

The antiprohibition resolution stated that the eighteenth amendment "has created a condition endangering respect for law and security of American institutions."

Consequently, the measure added, the American Legion favors the submission by Congress of the repeal or modification of the present prohibition laws to the several States with a request that each State submit the question to the voters thereof."

When the District of Columbia department was reached on the roll call, Commander Fred Fraser announced in a loud voice that the department's eleven delegates were unanimously in favor of the resolution.

His announcement was greeted by cheers. A little later he announced that the District of Columbia delegation favored cash payment of the bonus.

Republican and Democratic politicians tonight were pondering the Legion's action, and wondering what effect it would have.

Representative Robert H. Clancy (Republican, of Michigan, one of the most outspoken wets in the House, predicted that the action of the Legion would alter the whole wet and dry line-up in Congress.

Sees Wets Ruling House.

"Undoubtedly," he said, "many representatives and senators who have been on the fence or who have been dry in their votes will now try to align themselves with the wet movement.

"Beyond a doubt, in the critical elections of 1932, the House will go wet by a workable majority. And the first move of that wet House will be to kill the appropriations for prohibition enforcement, now amounting to nearly $100,000,000 a year and also to amend the laws so as to pre-

BORAH FLAYS JAPAN FOR ACTION IN CHINA

Government Violated Every International Law, Says Senator.

Moscow, Idaho, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, attacked Japan today for putting troops in Manchuria, saying the Japaneze government "violated every international law."

Inaugurating the William E. Borah foundation for outlawry of war at the University of Idaho, the chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee said the Japanese action violated "the Kellogg and Briand pacts, the League of Nations covenant and the Versailles treaty."

"Even though Japan's reasons were ten times as truthful as it can be assumed they are, there is no justification for force in Manchuria," he said.

Disputes Hudson.

"If the four or five leading nations were as much concerned about abiding by international law and treaties as they are in forcing smaller nations and subjugated nations to abide by them, we would be a fairly peaceful world."

Borah took issue with Dr. M. O. Hudson, of Harvard University, famous student of international law, who started the foundation's lectures by saying that international cooperation must solve the world's peace problems, and that "putting teeth" into the league covenant and the Versailles treaty would perpetuate world peace.

"What they mean," said Borah, "is to change a peace pact into a military pact by agreement to employ armies wherever the fertile mind of some ambitious schemer can find an aggressor.

"Putting teeth into a peace pact is to revert to the doctrine of force in all its hideous, hellish brutality. Force as a factor in international controversies has been tried for 3,000 years and has failed.

Peace Based Upon Force.

"I never have and never will support any scheme for peace based upon the use of force. The revolting inconsistence of employing war to maintain peace is the doctrine of a Caesar, of a Napoleon or a Cromwell. If the German general staff had won the war it would have given the world a peace based upon force, but it would not have been peace."

Turning to Russia, Borah asked, "How can the United States go to the 1932 disarmament conference and ask the nations of the world to disarm when Russia, with 600,000 armed soldiers, is not even recognized by us, 5,000 miles away."

"Recognition of Russia does not mean recognition of communism any more than recognition of the Fascist government of Italy recognizes fascism as an ideal form of government."

Borah said Russia is on such a road to democracy based upon justice and freedom. "If I had my way I would recognize Russia to aid in the cause of advancing peace in Europe."

Dr. Hudson's first lectures under the foundation, created by S. O. Levinson, Chicago attorney, traced progress in international organization toward peace. Other speakers were Gov. C. Ben Ross of Idaho and President M. G. Neale of the university.

Soldiers Enforce Iowa Cattle Tests

National Guardsmen Win Opening Skirmish; One Farmer Arrested.

Tipton, Iowa, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Iowa national guardsmen today won their first offensive against farmers who for six months have resisted the State bovine tuberculin test law. There was no physical opposition or demonstration against the testing.

Moving at dawn, troopers posted machine guns at strategic Cedar County crossroads, marked off a "restricted area" of six square miles embracing farms of seven leaders in the insurrection, and clamped down a tight censorship which baffled reporters until it was lifted at noon.

After a preliminary skirmish at the farm of J. W. Lenker, the guardsmen were deployed on other farms where testing went forward with dispatch. This move, however, came only after Lenker was escorted back to Tipton and placed in the guardhouse. Adjt. Gen. W. H. Bailey, in Des Moines, said that charges included removing quarantined cattle illegally and contempt of court.

Sophie Tucker Loses Race in Friend's Death

Chicago, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Sophie Tucker, the "wise-cracking" stage comedienne, lost a race today with death after a dash across the Atlantic Ocean to New York and then to Chicago.

Miss Tucker was in Europe when she heard that her friend and protege, Mrs. Eva Mandel Wolf, was seriously ill. The comedienne cut short her European engagements, rushed to New York by fast steamer, cancelled a New York engagement, and hurried here. Last night, aboard the train, she received word of Mrs. Wolf's death.

Art of Letter Writing Kept Alive by Stimson

By JOHN J. DALY

WHEN the League of Nations falls down on the job it calls on Uncle Sam, who has no membership card.

For some time now the league has been trying to make Japan and China behave themselves over in Manchuria.

All the pleas were of no avail. Japan and China started mussing up Mukden and were getting ready to stage another battle in Harbin, with possibilities of a set-to in Changchun. What with Russia ready at the drop of a hat to get into the argument, the League of Nations became worried. Unable to do anything on its own account, the secretary general got Secretary Stimson to write a little note.

* * * *

IT may be that Mr. Stimson's ability as a letter writer will clear up a serious situation in Manchuria. At least, Tokyo has issued a statement explaining to the world that Japan means no harm; that she entertains no territorial ambitions, and that as soon as there is another excursion rate announced on the South Manchurian Railroad the troops will be dispatched back to the old country.

Secretary Stimson is liable to find himself in great demand as a letter writer by the League of Nations. If war can be ended so simply as all this, by the sending of a short but sweet billet-doux, there is no end to the services the Secretary can render.

It is said that Mahatma Gandhi plans to remain in London as long as there is a possibility of securing independence for India. A short note, to the point, would open the mahatma's eyes and send him home a wiser man; if, of course, the letter were signed by Henry Stimson.

A STIMULATING Stimson note, addressed to the proper parties, might even stop a contemplated revolution in South America.

In an age when the art of letter writing has descended to its lowest levels, the League of Nations is fortunate in finding one who can pen a missive, couched in such terms that it immediately turns warring nations back into peacetime pursuits.

The world at large needs a lot of good letter writing, of the Stimson sort. Germany, France, Italy and England need to be told a few things for their own good.

After the world has been set at peace there will be plenty of room for letter writing at home. Some of the industrialists, cutting wages, might be put on the correspondence list; and a timely letter setting forth the facts about beer should be sent to each post, if not every member, of the American Legion. These fellows, especially those who were with the Army of Occupation in Germany, are getting up a false thirst that can not be easily satisfied.

* * * *

IF Secretary Stimson, who spent some time recently with Chancellor Bruening, would only take time to give the boys some inside facts, they would all be happier during the winter, instead of dreaming dreams that will never come true. They've even got Secretary Hyde, of the Department of Agriculture, delving into malt data, to find out if legalized brewing will help the farmer.

After the Secretary of State gets through with all these problems there is always a letter to be addressed to the editor,—on almost any topic.

The joy of it all is that the art of letter writing is not lost. And if a Stimson letter can keep the world happy, why a League of Nations?

U. S. SENDS NOTES TO CHINA AND JAPAN TO END CLASHES

cupy the Northern Railway City of Harbin.

He added he was informed Japanese troops were being withdrawn to the immediate area of the South Manchurian Railway, which they were authorized to guard.

Although the American notes to the Chinese and Japanese governments mentioned no international agreements specifically, Secretary Stimson had said previously that both the Kellogg-Briand pact for renunciation of war and the nine-power Pacific treaty of 1922 were concerned in the situation.

Extreme caution on the part of the American Government lest its efforts toward peace be misinterpreted was evident here. Nearly the entire day was spent in framing the notes.

Both Have Military Rights.

Among the complications which make the present situation more puzzling than the 1929 trouble between Russia and China, in which Secretary Stimson invoked the Kellogg-Briand pact, is the fact that both China and Japan have the right under treaties to maintain troops in Manchuria.

In the China-Russia affair the issue was more clearly defined, as neither nation had a right to send troops over the international boundary. Another difficulty is presented officials said, by the difficulty of obtaining accurate information as to what is occurring in Manchuria. Reports received through Chinese and Japanese sources have shown a tendency to conflict.

The Japanese cabinet at Tokyo disavowed territorial ambitions in Manchuria, after an extraordinary session yesterday.

The government said its sole aim in taking possession of strategic points along the Japanese-owned South Manchurian Railway was to protect its subjects in carrying on their commercial enterprises.

Places Blame on Chinese.

Placing the blame upon the Chinese for the inception of hostilities, the Japanese government asserted it had to act quickly to protect "hundreds of thousands of Japanese residents in order to forestall an imminent disaster."

The cabinet's statement continues: "It may be superflous to repeat the Japanese government harbors no territorial designs in Manchuria.

"What we desire is that Japanese subjects shall be enabled safely to engage in various peaceful pursuits and be given an opportunity of participating in development of land and by means of capital and labor.

"Unfortunately the conduct of Chinese officials and individuals for some years past has been such that our national sentiment frequently has been irritated. Unpleasant incidents have taken place one after another in regions of Manchuria and Mongolia, in which Japan was interested in especial degree, until the impression has gained strength in the minds of the Japanese people that Japan's fair and friendly attitude is not being reciprocated by China.

Ready to Cooperate.

"It is the proper duty of a government to protect rights and interests legitimately enjoyed by its nationals or individuals. Endeavors of Japan to guard the South Manchurian Railway against wanton attacks should be viewed in no other light.

"The Japanese government, true to its established policy, is prepared to cooperate with the Chinese government in order to prevent the present incident from developing into a disastrous situation between the two countries, and to work out such constructive plans as will once for all eradicate causes for future friction.

"The Japanese government would be more than gratified if the present difficulty could be brought to a solution which will give a new turn to mutual relations of the two countries."

At Shanghai it was said that the Japanese zone of occupation seemed to have been narrowed and that diplomatic exchanges promised to replace the clash of arms.

109 Americans in War Zone.

There are 109 American citizens in the Chinese-Japanese trouble zone, State Department records list all as living in the Mukden consular area to which the department reports indicate hostilities have been confined.

There are 229 Americans in Manchuria, including 95 in the northern area and 25 in southern Manchuria.

Geneva, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Hope of peace in Manchuria was raised tonight by two factors—an official announcement from Tokyo that Japanese troops had been withdrawn from Kirin, and Secretary of State Stimson's assurance that the United States was working along parallel lines with the League of Nations council to bring about a settlement.

The Japanese announcement, published by that nation's delegation here, was regarded as evidence that Japan had decided to yield to demands that her troops be ordered out of Manchuria. It buoyed hope also that the Japanese would agree to an inquiry into her conflict with China by a mixed commission under league auspices.

Occupation of Towns Denied.

Another official Japanese communique denied reports that troops had occupied Taingtao and Chefoo and that Japanese sailors had been debarked in China.

Secretary Stimson's note, received by the council today, banished the pessimism which for four days attended the efforts to bring about peace.

While technical difficulties still were considerable, league leaders felt American influence for conciliation was just the additional factor needed to bring a settlement.

The satisfaction aroused by the American note exceeded the bounds of the present dispute; international leaders said that in any future disturbance threatening peace the tremendous influence of the United States would be thrown into the scale on the side of concerted action for pacific settlement.

The assembly of the league displayed its authoritative interest in the council's conciliatory activities by publicly declaring, through President Nicholas Titulescu, it wished the council to continue in session until success was attained. The assembly also made clear it wished to have a report on the council's decisions so it might act on them.

The Italian proposal for an immediate armaments truce appeared to have received a serious, if not fatal, blow today when France, through Rene Massigli, characterized it as practically impossible of application.

M. Massigli agreed with the Japanese spokesman that the truce proposal should be postponed until the beginning of the disarmament conference in February. Thus American advocacy of the truce, announced yesterday by Minister Hugh R. Wilson, appeared to have come to naught.

Grammar School Pupils To See Radio Show Free

Sponsors of the Washington Radio and Electric Show, now being held at the Auditorium, yesterday notified Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of public schools, that all children of grammar school age may visit the exhibition today and tomorrow without charge.

The children need not be accompanied by adults, but must plan to arrive between 1 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon. All of the regular entertainment features will be presented for their amusement.

Man Hit by Trolley Incurs Fractured Skull

Lawrence Washington, 54, colored, is in a serious condition with a fractured skull, result of having been struck by a street car yesterday at Fifth and G streets northwest. He is undergoing treatment at Casualty Hospital.

William C. Davis, 1253 Newton street northeast, was driving the one-man car which struck Washington, according to police. He was not held.

Jobless English Return From U. S.

Plymouth, Eng., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—England today received tangible evidence of America's unemployment problem. Nearly 200 men, women and children landed from the United States, from which they had been returned at the expense of the American Government because there was no work for them there.

ACTION OF COLOMBIA BARS GOLD EXPORTS

Exchange of U. S. Dollars for Pesos Prohibited to Check Speculation.

Bogota, Colombia, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—President Enrique Olaya Herrera today barred gold exports from Colombia under authority granted by a blanket enactment of the legislature last night and immediately began consideration of appointment of a bankers committee of exchange to supervise exchange rates.

The new legislation gives the president the power to "take any economical or financial measures which are needed to assist the country in the present economic crisis."

The exchange of United States dollars for Colombian pesos was prohibited during the day by an agreement between the banks. The action was taken to prevent speculation.

The new law provides that the president may raise tariffs on foreign luxuries and agricultural products to whatever level he considers necessary to bar them altogether.

The legislation followed a decline of one-third of a cent in the value of the peso.

Ecuador's Envoy to Give Decoration to Cumming

(Associated Press.)

Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming, of the United States Public Health Service, will receive a decoration today from Minister Viteri, of Ecuador.

The decoration, Al Merito, with the rank of commander, has been awarded Cumming, who is chief of the Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, particularly for his assistance in improving sanitary conditions of the Port of Guayaquil, the minister said. The bureau last year declared the city a clean port of the first class.

Mexican Rail Strike Averted.

Mexico City, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Aquiles Cruz, president of the federal board of conciliation and arbitration, said tonight that the danger of a strike on the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico had been removed for the time being at least. He said the National Transports Union agreed to await the board's findings on the company's petition for authority to cut wages.

Son of Gen. Todd Weds Chicago Girl

Marianna Rogers Ruffner Becomes Washingtonian's Bride in Illinois.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 24.—The marriage of Miss Marianna Rogers Ruffner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers Ruffner, of Highland Park, to Harrison Tyler Todd, son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Henry D. Todd, of 2123 California street, Washington, D. C., was solemnized at 8 o'clock this evening at the Presbyterian Church in Highland Park. A small reception followed the ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents.

The bride and her attendants wore gowns of First Empire inspiration. Her maid of honor, Miss Virginia Ruffner, and the bridesmaid, Miss Louise Ruffner, Miss Harriett Todd, Miss Emily Snow Brewer, of Utica, N. Y., and Miss Margaret S. Ferguson, of Upper Montclair, N. J., wore white satin gowns of the same period.

Paul A. Johnson, of Honolulu, was best man for the bridegroom, and the ushers included Thomas I. Underwood, Gordon Mendersohn, of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., and Millbrook, N. Y.; Phillip Torchio, of Bronxville, N. Y.; Donald Frothingham and Gerard M. Ives, of New York City.

Wife Seeks to Set Aside Wealthy Hobo's Will

St. Louis, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ingeborg How, a former wife of James Eads How, "millionaire hobo," has filed suit in circuit court to set aside his will. How died at Staunton, Va., in July, 1930, leaving virtually all of what was estimated as a "six-figure" estate to the "Workers of the World."

Mrs. How contended the provision was indefinite and uncertain and incapable of being carried out.

Tyngsboro, Mass., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Five men were killed tonight as their automobile was struck by an express train of the Boston & Maine Railroad at a private crossing here. They were members of a band which had played at an outing today of the Yorick Club, of Lowell.

They were identified as John Carlson, James Buckley, Edward C. Looney and William A. D. Bugley, all of Lowell, and Michael Vendituoli, of North Billerica.

rying a double-indemnity clause for death from certain types of accidents, was obtained by Wimbley at the behest of an insurance agent whom Wimbley had interviewed with regard to a health and accident policy carrying weekly indemnity provisions. The agent, Michael Clachko, who has offices in the District National Bank Building, said he was unaware of the fact that Wimbley forged his wife's name to the application for the policy, which police say the accused man has admitted doing.

Clachko said that he sold Wimbley the policy after explaining to him that the type the latter sought could not be issued to Mrs. Wimbley because she was a housewife and not employed regularly.

The last stages of the investigation of the dual drowning appeared imminent with the pending arrival today of Detective Sergt. Robert Barrett from Cassville, Mo., where he went to question Miss Ida May Graves, third wife of Wimbley, who she said gave the name of Dickerson when she wed him. Barrett, who has talked with headquarters here over long-distance telephone, has indicated that Miss Graves expressed every willingness to cooperate with the police. It is understood he obtained information from her relative to the possible existence of a fourth wife of Wimbley, who is believed to be living in Hanna, Okla. A full report will be presented by Detective Sergt. Barrett when he arrives here today with regard to his questioning of Miss Graves.

Detective Sergt. Springmann, who, as head of the Homicide Squad, has had charge of the investigation of the case, announced yesterday that the evidence against Wimbley and Crowder will be ready for presentation to the new grand jury convening early in October. Meanwhile, the accused men are said to be conferring frequently with their attorneys in preparation for their defense.

Cabinet Head Quits By King's Consent

President of Jugoslavian Ministry Permitted to Leave Post.

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—King Alexander today approved the retirement of Gen. Peter Zivkovitch as president of the council of ministers.

Three weeks ago King Alexander restored constitutional government in his country after two years of dictatorship, which began in 1929, when the king, to break a deadlock between the Serb and Croat deputies in the congress, suspended the constitution of 1921.

Gen. Zivkovitch was made prime minister at that time and continued to head the cabinet during the dictatorship. When constitutional government was restored he submitted his resignation, but received a mandate from the king to form a new government. His new cabinet was virtually the same in personnel as the old one.

London Church Plan Delayed.

Liverpool, England, Sept. 15 (A.P.). Dr. Widzoe, head of the European mission of the Mormon Church, said today that plans to build an imposing tabernacle in London were continuing, but that actual construction would be delayed until more favorable economic conditions prevail.

STUDY OF METEORS WILL SEEK SOURCES

Harvard and Cornell Join in Attack on Problem of Shooting Stars.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 24 (U.P.).—The "first, modern scientific attack" on the problem of shooting stars is to begin the first of next month at Flagstaff, Ariz., under direction of Harvard and Cornell astronomers.

Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard College Observatory, who laid the foundation for some of the experiments to be made at Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff—where the planet Pluto was discovered last year—described some of the methods to be used there today.

Something like a thousand million meteors, not to be confused with meteorites, enter the earth's atmosphere daily, but no one knows where they originate, Dr. Shapley said. Most of them are tiny, mere dust, and burn themselves out before they reach the earth's surface. The larger shooting stars, meteorites, are comparatively rare and only one or two strike the earth's surface in a day.

Speed to Show Origin.

The speed of the shooting stars will be the principal means employed to determine their origin, according to Dr. Shapley. He described a somewhat complicated device, newly invented, which will enable the six observers at Flagstaff to compute the approximate speed of the celestial particles.

The device is a double-rocking mirror—one which moves in two dimensions, up and down and sideways—in which the stars and planets will appear not as stationary points of light but as circles of light.

The course of a meteor shooting across the sky and reflected in the mirror will take on the appearance of a line broken into short curves, a sort of bounding motion. The distances between the peaks of the curves will be measured and from these distances the astronomers hope to determine with some degree of accuracy the speed of the meteors observed.

Work May Take Two Years.

"If a shooting star is traveling 30 miles per second it is fair to assume that it has not originated in our solar system," Dr. Shapley said, "but if it is as slow as 25 miles per second it probably is a solar meteor."

Two observers will be stationed at Mars Hill, Flagstaff, and two more 25 miles away. They will sit all night in beach chairs and watch the sky through eye-pieces at convex windows. Each will be provided with a atop watch and graph papers. The appearance of a meteor will be timed and its course noted on the graph paper. Later, when the observers compare notes, knowing the distance between the two stations, they will be able to estimate the height of the meteors, usually varying between 40 and 80 miles in the air.

Dr. Ernst Opik, of the Harvard staff, and Prof. Samuel L. Boothroyd, of Cornell, will be in charge of the expedition. The observations may require two years to complete.

TAX BOOST DECISION IS EXPECTED SOON

have been trying to find new sources of revenue.

This work was intensified late in the last fiscal year when income-tax receipts declined approximately $550,000,000, as compared with the previous year. It has continued since the start of the new fiscal year as the fall in receipts has grown.

For the fiscal year to the close of business September 22 income-tax receipts amounted to $305,594,578, as compared with $538,353,914 in the same period of the previous year.

Total receipts to date from all sources have amounted to $549,962,789, while expenditures totaled $914,221,026, leaving the Government with a deficit of $364,258,237.

The receipts are $241,000,000 less than for the same period last year, while the expenditures are $170,000,000 greater.

In addition, the Government has to meet obligations incurred in other years and pay interest on the public debt left over from the World War. It must pay more than $100,000,000 on the public debt on December 15 and pay approximately $990,000,000 for maturing securities.

Faced with this imperative need for larger income, experts recalled yesterday that both Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills have pointed out that the income tax as a base for the Government's tax system had failed to meet the needs. They said that in times of prosperity the income tax had provided large returns to the Government, but that it was so responsive to business depression that it did not afford a dependable base.

While neither Mellon nor Mills has suggested what he believes would be an acceptable substitute, it has been pointed out that a system based upon an excise tax which would provide a steady flow of income through years of prosperity and adversity must be substituted.

The income of the Government for the present fiscal year has been insufficient to meet operating needs. Since July 1 it borrowed about $50,000,000 a week until it floated the huge security issue this month involving bonds and certificates of indebtedness totalling $1,100,000,000. Of that amount $670,000,000 was used to pay off maturing certificates of indebtedness and public interest and the remainder went to pay the operating expenses until December 15.

The amount, however, did not provide for retiring Treasury bills which become due in this period and yesterday Secretary Mellon announced the sale of $100,000,000 of 91-day bills to raise money to retire an equal amount which mature on September 30. This operation is only a turn over and does not increase the public debt.

Since last March the Government has floated securities totaling approximately $3,400,000,000, but about half of the amount represented turnover in that it was devoted to retiring maturing securities. Part of it went to take up the $903,000,000 deficit with which the Government finished the last fiscal year and the remainder to meet operating expenditures.

Government expenses increased during the last eighteen months chiefly because of its expanded activities in the public buildings, works and road programs designed to relieve unemployment.

Roumania Ends Pound Trading.

Bucharest, Roumania, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—As a result of the British financial crisis all business transactions in Roumania are being effected on a basis of French francs and grain is being traded at Roumanian ports on a basis of Dutch guilders or francs.

Closer U. S.-British Tie Credited to Trade Slump

(Associated Press.)

It takes an Englishman to find some good in the depression.

The lord mayor of Reading, England, Maj. Frederick G. Sainsbury, on a visit to Washington, credited the current economic conditions with having drawn the United States and Great Britain into a closer relationship than ever before.

Unemployment's mutual problem, Sainsbury said, has tended to unify the two nations in their efforts to end it. "The two great English-speaking countries," he added, "have recently come to a better understanding of each other's difficulties.

"They realize they must lead the way for the rest of the world to a return to normalcy and they are now engaged in a common endeavor, perhaps for the first time in history."

Sainsbury, who came to this country to visit the American namesake of his home city, Reading, Pa., called on President Hoover at the White House to pay his respects and later lunched at the British Embassy.

After several weeks in the United States, the visiting mayor said his greatest difficulty was to distinguish the Republican and Democratic parties here.

"I have been told that many Americans would like also to know the difference," he said with a smile.

A member of the British Conservative party, which he compared to the Republican of the United States, Sainsbury had praise nevertheless for the administration of his Pennsylvania host city, the only municipality in the United States under absolute control of the Socialist party.

"I found the mayor, J. Henry Stump, a very capable and well-informed executive," he said, adding, "Every one I talked with in Reading, Pa., seems pleased with their mayor and their city administration."

CLAUDEL AND EDGE DISCUSS LAVAL TRIP

Premier Will Give Question of Visit to Hoover to Cabinet Today.

Paris, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Paul Claudel, French Ambassador to the United States, called on American Ambassador Walter E. Edge today to discuss the possibilities of Premier Laval's projected visit to Washington.

The premier's reply to President Hoover's invitation will be handed to Ambassador Edge tomorrow. Earlier in the day the premier will submit the question to his cabinet colleagues at a meeting of the council of ministers, with every indication at his office pointing toward acceptance and the setting of mid-October as the time of sailing.

Premier Laval has been busy with preparations for his week-end visit to Berlin, President Hoover's invitation and economic problems. It was said at the ministry of the interior that he would make an important statement to the French people before setting out for Berlin Saturday afternoon in order to prepare the atmosphere, much as Chancellor Bruening did before coming to Paris last July.

Information came from high sources today that the Germans have indicated, since the United States showed a willingness to cooperate with France, that they are prepared to accept the nomination of a permanent Franco-German commission to facilitate an understanding on trade relations.

The premier indicated his daughter, Mlle. Jose Laval, would not accompany him in event he went to the United States.

"If I accept President Hoover's invitation," he said, "I will be the only member of the cabinet and the only member of my family going to America."

Berlin, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—President Paul von Hindenburg will receive Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Briand of France probably next Monday, said a semiofficial communique today.

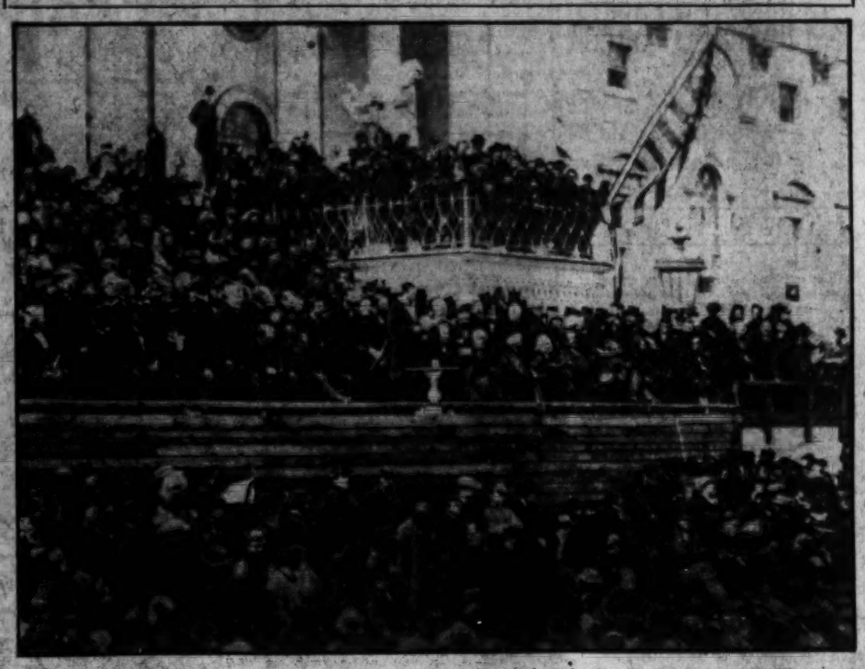
The French statesmen, who are coming to Berlin for a week-end visit, returning Chancellor Bruening's visit to Paris in July, had expressed a desire to be received by Germany's president, and the latter acceded, the communique said.

New Business Leaders Predicted by Official

Asheville, N. C., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The present business period was hailed by a Government official tonight as the "era of the passing of the stuffed shirt."

Frederick M. Feiker, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce addressing the annual meeting of the American Trade Association executives, said the next two years would give the country a "new group of business leaders, tried in the fire of the realities," with many of the present top place men and concerns relegated to the background by more capable competitors.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 55



THE above photograph, loaned by O. A. C. Oehmler, shows the second inauguration of Abraham Lincoln, on March 4, 1865. Rain fell during part of the ceremonies, but ceased while Lincoln was making his address. Contemporary accounts of the inauguration say the unpaved plaza of the Capitol was deep in mud.

Lincoln is seen in the central part of the photograph, beside the speaker's stand. The oath of office was administered by Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase. Stovepipe hats of the gentility and the caps of Civil War soldiers mingled in the throngs.

It was the second inaugural address of Lincoln that concluded with the oft-quoted passage: "With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in, to bind the Nation's wound, * * * to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

FARM GROUPS FIGHT PROPOSED RATE RISE

Spokesman Views Requested 15 Per Cent Increase as "Economic Crime."

(Associated Press.)

Former Gov. Clyde M. Reed of Kansas told the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday that an increase in freight rates on farm products would be "nothing short of an economic crime."

Testifying for 27 farm organizations, the Kansan said agriculture was without credit and farm operations were being conducted at a loss.

Speakers representing several Western railroad commissions presented similar arguments and asked the commission to dismiss the railroads' plea for a 15 per cent horizontal increase.

After quoting two economists to show that the railroad problem is one of reducing expenses, Reed said "the national transportation system is not threatened."

Sees Danger to Agriculture.

"It is the business of the country and especially the continued functioning of agriculture that is in danger," he said.

"If it be conceivable that under the circumstances the outcome of this proceeding should be the laying of an additional and an unjustified burden upon business in general and agriculture in particular, the repeal or modification of any legislation used as a pretext to this end would be clearly forecast."

Mr. Reed was referring to the "fair return" section of the interstate commerce act under which the railroads have asked the increase. They claim the commission must grant higher rates when the carriers show they are not making a fair return on their investment.

Agriculture, Mr. Reed said, has been in the midst of a depression since 1920. He cited testimony by bankers, farmers and live stock men to show that during the last eleven years agriculture has been so weakened that its reserves are exhausted.

Reserves Are Destroyed.

"Agriculture," he said, "is now confronted with the situation where its financial reserves have been destroyed, its surplus absorbed, its credit gone and its current operations being conducted at a loss.

"Railroad operation is still being conducted at a profit, though it may be granted freely that its credit has been impaired because of reduced revenues resulting from a reduced volume of business.

"Agriculture and the railroads are both essential to the welfare of the country, but agriculture has been destroyed while railroad credit has only been impaired."

INELIGIBLE JURYMAN BRINGS TEST CASE IN INDICTMENT

to re-present to the October grand jury the cases involving assaults alleged to have been committed by certain members of the Metropolitan Police Department. The re-presentation will be accomplished at the earliest possible date," his formal statement read.

Attacks Fraud.

While it is believed that any cases re-presented to the present grand jury with its two new members would be technically legal, it is believed Mr. Rover decided to hold off on re-presentation because defense attorneys might attack the indictments in court on the ground that the two new jurors were prejudiced by the first action of the 21 veteran jurors.

Until the present jury is dismissed at the end of this month it will occupy its time with the small routine cases of "joy riding" and petty thefts which remain before it. There can be no question of the legality of indictments in cases which have not yet been presented to the jurors.

Every precaution was taken yesterday to insure the eligibility of the two new jurors, Richard A. Garrett, 5408 Forty-first street northwest, and Robert L. Bradshaw, 1434 Harvard street northwest.

The two new jurors were chosen from a panel of 40 called before Associate Justice Jesse C. Adkins in District Supreme Court yesterday morning. Members of the panel were questioned carefully in open court, particular stress being laid upon their financial relations with the Government.

One man was excused when he said he was a Government pensioner.

From the list of 40 a group of 18 was selected and taken into a private room where Court Clerk William Adkins, who conducted the examination of the July jury, continued the questioning in the presence of Assistant Clerk Lee Ashford.

The two new jurors, who were first on the list of eighteen, were finally given official approval after an unprecedented period of questioning. Then Mr. Ashford signed an affidavit that he had heard the entire examination. Neither Mr. Garrett nor Mr. Bradshaw were required to sign affidavits. This form of qualification will be instituted with the October grand jury.

21 Sign Statement.

The 21 veteran members of the July grand jury yesterday signed a statement declaring that they had heard Clerk Adkins question the prospective jurors regarding whether they received money from the Government. The statement said:

"We, the undersigned members of the grand jury, certify that the clerk, Williams S. Adkins, did ask the question:

"'Do you get any pay or pension of any kind from either the United States or District Government?'

"Also the question:

"'Do you get any money in any way from either the United States or District Government?'

"It was perfectly clear that he was making every effort to ascertain whether any prospective juror received payments or compensation of any kind from either the United States or District Government."

Special Report Held Up.

The delay in presenting the third degree cases again to the grand jury will hold up the special report of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, for at least another month and perhaps longer.

Mr. Hoover was ready to present his findings on the police situation in Washington immediately after the July grand jury reported its last indictments which were to have been presented Wednesday. Now Mr. Hoover's statement covering all angles of the third degree investigation as conducted by his department will be postponed indefinitely.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride went to the Department of Justice yesterday to confer with Mr. Hoover. After the conference Mr. Bride said the conference was merely to ascertain the status of the Department of Justice investigation and that he had offered nothing new. Mr. Hoover told him, Mr. Bride said, that the special report to the District Commissioners would be delayed until all of the brutality cases have again been presented to the grand jury.

The legal error caused by the presence of Mr. Johnson on the grand jury and the decision to submit all of the cases in which indictments were returned to the October inquisitorial body will tie that jury up for about ten weeks.

Machinery Clogged.

It has taken just about that length of time for the present jury to cover the ground in its 179 cases and will take the October jury just about as much time to hear these cases over again. In the meantime, case after case will pile up, clogging the machinery almost hopelessly.

During the interim clerks in the United States attorney's office must go through the long list of invalid indictments page by page and select those in which the statute of limitations will soon apply in order that they may be presented as soon as possible after October 6. Cases in which the statute has already become effective will be thrown out.

The investigation of the July jury's charges in the Staples case will not be affected by the illegality of the jury, according to District Commissioners. The special board of five lawyers yesterday was studying the 1,634-page stenographic report of the Staples trial board hearing, with a view to submitting its report to the Commissioners within ten days.

A check-up has revealed that all of the witnesses the lawyers' board will need to hear are in Washington and invitations will be sent to them soon asking their appearance before the board. Former Policeman Frederick A. Schenck, brought to Washington a second time from the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, will be a leading witness.

DEPUTIES REMOVE BAN ON DIVORCEES

Lower Episcopal House Vote Retains Standing as Communicants.

Denver, Colo. Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Displaying unexpected strength, liberals in the house of deputies of the Episcopal Church today approved, 280 to 115, a section of a new matrimonial canon which would allow divorced persons to retain their communicant status.

Indorsement of an amendment to the report of the committee of canons on marriage and divorce came after three substitutes were rejected. The favored amendment, offered by the Rev. Caleb R. Stetson, New York, formerly of Washington, would allow the church to bless the union of a divorced person under certain conditions.

Under existing church law Episcopal ministers are permitted to remarry a divorced person only when he or she is the innocent party to a divorce granted on grounds of adultery.

Bishops Defer Issue.

Other sections of the proposed new canon, including provision for premarriage instruction and the establishment of ecclesiastical courts to consider marital cases, already have been approved by the deputies. The proposed canon, as a whole, will be considered tomorrow.

The house of bishops deferred consideration of the marriage and divorce commission report this afternoon for a secret session. No announcement was made of questions under consideration.

Under provisions of the deputies Stetson amendment any person whose former marriage has been dissolved "for any cause" by a civil court and who has been remarried by civil authority may apply to the ecclesiastical court "for the recognition of his or her communicant status or for the right to apply for baptism or confirmation in this church."

Court Given Power.

The court, after inquiry, would "determine whether the welfare of society and the good of the parties will be served by such recognition." In case of a favorable decision, the court would report its judgment to the bishop of the diocese and "no impediment shall exist to the admission of such person to Holy Communion, confirmation or baptism in the church, and a minister of this church may, in his discretion, bless the parties to the union."

Three bishops were placed in nomination late today for presiding bishop. The election will be tomorrow, the nominees are: James de Wolf Perry, Rhode Island, incumbent; James H. Freeman, Washington, and Edward L. Parsons, California.

Joint Commissions Plan.

The report of the joint commission on marriage and divorce submitted to the house of bishops today by Bishop Herman Page, of Michigan, chairman, proposed that any person whose former marriage has been dissolved for any cause by a civil court may, after expiation of one year from the granting of divorce, apply to the ecclesiastical court for permission to marry another person. Upon recommendation of the court a minister of the church would be allowed to solemnize the marriage.

Bishop Paul Mathews, of New Jersey, presented a minority report of the commission along the lines of the Stetson amendment.

Substitute More Stringent.

A substitute for both the minority and majority reports was presented by Bishop W. G. McDowell, of Alabama, for the bishops' committee on canons.

This report recommended that ministers of the church be not allowed to remarry persons divorced for any cause occurring after marriage. This recommendation removed the exception of adultery. The report, however, approves establishment of ecclesiastical courts to consider marital cases, dealing largely with impediments existing before marriage as a cause of annulment.

I. C. C. TO RULE BUS LINES, ESCH WARNS

Congress Should Provide an Increase in Staff, He Tells Experts.

Interstate bus traffic and transportation holding companies will soon be regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission, President John J. Esch told the Association of Practitioners before the Interstate Commerce Commission at its second annual meeting which began yesterday in the Hotel Mayflower.

Esch, former member of the I. C. C. and coauthor of the Cummins-Esch transportation act when a representative in Congress from Wisconsin, declared that Congress should be looking ahead to the time when this additional work will be given over to the I. C. C. He added that Congress was constantly imposing additional work on the commission staff through resolutions for information, but rarely ever included any extra appropriations.

The practitioners, who comprise traffic men and analysts as well as lawyers, were requested by Esch to ease the burden upon the Federal regulatory body through avoidance of useless exhibits and long arguments in their pleadings.

Social Side Emphasized.

Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman made the principal address at the banquet and dance of the organization held last evening. His remarks followed the avowed intention of emphasizing the social side of the organization at this meeting. He was introduced by Judge R. W. Barrett, of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, who was toastmaster.

Ezra Brainard, jr., chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, also addressed the association. He declared the commission is so burdened with work as to produce a situation "not at all conducive to the proper administration of justice."

Others who spoke were W. H. Chandler, veteran traffic expert, of New York City, and Arthur Mackley, one of the examiners of the I. C. C.

Warns of Ownership Drive.

Samuel J. Wettrick, of Seattle, Wash., vice president of the association, warned the members that the prevailing depression had stirred advocates of Government ownership of railroads to a new activity. He declared that nothing worse could befall the United States at present than to have the Government take over the railroads.

Commissioner Clyde B. Aitchison received a silver tea service. He spoke on "Rate Regulation in Great Britain."

Coal Production Rule Held Likely

Hoover Told Prospects for Interstate Compact Are Favorable.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover was told yesterday that prospects for an interstate compact to control coal production were extremely favorable.

William S. Bennet, general counsel of the Continental Coal Co. of Fairmont, W. Va., discussed with the President a plan which has as its foundation the appointment of committees of coal operators from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio to work out plans for the compact similar to the oil control plan used by Oklahoma, Texas and California.

Govs. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Conley of West Virginia and Sampson of Kentucky have agreed to take the preliminary steps, Bennet said. He added there were precedents for the formulation of such a compact without Federal action.

Bennet said he had told the President that unless something is done immediately the coal industry as a whole is in serious danger.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 24 (U.P.).—More than 5,000 miners employed by the Glen Alden Coal Co. went on strike today, closing down three collieries.

Cut in Coal Production News to Gov. Conley

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Gov. William G. Conley, of West Virginia, in response to inquiries tonight, said that "so far as I understand it, there has been no agreement yet," upon plans for stabilization of the bituminous coal industry through curtailment of production.

The governor's comment was made after he had been informed that William S. Bennett, general counsel for the Continental Coal Co. of Fairmont, told President Hoover that the governors of West Virginia, Kentucky and Pennsylvania had agreed to curtailment plans.

Two Suspects Released In Collings Mystery

Mineola, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—The first two suspects arrested in the yacht murder of Benjamin P. Collings were taken before the slain man's widow, Mrs. Lillian Collings, at Mineola police headquarters today, but Mrs. Collings failed to identify them as the pair who boarded the cruiser Penguin and killed her husband.

Mrs. Collings will give her first public recital of the events which occurred on board the cruiser two weeks ago when she appears voluntarily tomorrow at the coroner's inquest at Huntington.

Death Threats Fail to Halt Gandhi's Plan to Visit Mill

London, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Undaunted by threats against his life from Lancaster workers who blame his "message of the spinning wheel" for the desperate state of the textile districts, Mahatma Gandhi will go tomorrow to a village near Manchester to spend the week-end in the heart of the factory district.

Accompanying him will be three or four British government detectives—200-pound huskies—but the authorities believe the leader of the Indian independence movement will be allowed to go about without hindrance and his message will be listened to with nothing more ill-mannered than a few taunts.

Gandhi's own attitude is that the people will not harm him when they understand that in the boycott of the all-India national concerns against British cotton goods he meant no harm for Lancashire, only good for India.

If there should be an untoward incident he has told friends he neither cares nor fears—"my trust is in God."

He will be accompanied by Mira Dhen, the former Miss Madeline Slade, and the Rev. Charles Andrews, one of his English friends. The mahatma will spend his time in a worker's house near Darwen, arriving at about midnight and leaving late Sunday to return to London.

The time of his departure from London is being kept secret to prevent hostile demonstrations.

CONVENTIONS URGED FOR REPEAL ACTION

Bulkley Asks Consideration at State Meetings Rather Than Legislatures.

(Associated Press.)

A plank in the 1932 Democratic platform pledging the party's members in Congress to vote for resubmission of the eighteenth amendment was proposed yesterday by Senator Bulkley, of Ohio.

The proposed plan, as outlined by the Ohio Democrat, would stipulate that the repeal amendment must be acted upon by State conventions rather than Legislatures.

Bulkley, one of the outstanding opponents of the eighteenth amendment in the Democratic Party, said he would seek to have his party adopt this plank rather than commit itself on the merits of prohibition.

Under this plan, he said, neither the party nor its members would be pledged on the prohibition issue.

Democratic members of Congress would be required as a matter of party loyalty to vote to submit a repeal amendment to the States, but would be free to go back to their constituents and work against its adoption.

Support of Dry Advocates.

Bulkley said his plan had the support of a number of prohibition supporters as well as its opponents within the party. He said friends of the eighteenth amendment could consistently vote for resubmission and then oppose it in their States.

Coming from a man who has been mentioned as possible Democratic presidential material, Bulkley's plan was expected by observers to receive serious consideration from Democratic leaders.

Friends of prohibition within the party are determined a "wet" plank shall not be adopted at the convention next year.

Many of the leading opponents of prohibition are confident they will have the necessary votes to adopt a repeal plank, but are doubtful of the political wisdom of the move.

True Sentiment of Country.

He said he proposed State action by conventions instead of Legislatures to get the question out of partisan politics. Delegates to the conventions would be elected on the prohibition issue alone, and the true sentiment of the country would be developed.

No substitute for the eighteenth amendment would be offered under Bulkley's plan. He said the amendment should never have been made a part of the Constitution, and if removed, liquor control would revert to the States.

He would be willing, however, to place in the Constitution an amendment protecting the States in their enforcement of liquor laws.

LEGION URGES RUM BALLOT

vent the Government's practice of poisoning alcohol and tapping wires."

Next to the prohibition and bonus resolutions, the one which attracted most attention today was a resolution offered by Howard Coffin, local automobile magnate and a member of National Council of Defense in the World War period. The Coffin resolution, which was adopted, urges President Hoover to take advantage of a law enacted by the Sixty-fourth Congress and to revive the National Council of Defense for the period of the business depression.

As soon as Dr. Neal Williams, chairman of the resolutions committee, finished reading the antiprohibition resolution, the delegates began yelling, "We want beer."

A delegate from Nebraska demanded that the Legion refrain from action on the resolution.

Nebraskan Hissed and Booed.

Prohibition, he said, was purely a political question. He reminded the delegates that the constitution of the American Legion barred the organization from "dissemination of partisan politics."

The Nebraskan was hissed and booed, and National Commander O'Neill was forced to call the convention to order.

Knowing that a point of order would be raised against consideration of the prohibition question, Commander O'Neill had asked Past National Adjutant Scott Lucas, of Illinois, to prepare a ruling. The latter advised him that a discussion of prohibition would not be in violation of the Legion constitution.

"The eighteenth amendment," said Scott, "has been characterized as an experiment noble in motive, yet it has proven to thousands upon thousands of Americans to be an experience lamentable and loathsome in many of its details. After thirteen years of prohibition, we find business men, professional men, laboring men, men in high council in politics, young boys and girls openly and flagrantly violating and defying this amendment. We are confronted with sawed-off shotguns, machine guns, poison alcohol, gang murders, armed automobiles, high-powered rifles and stills by the thousand."

Want End of Gang Rule.

Vincent Carroll, of Pennsylvania, precipitated cheers when he declared that prohibition was "put over" on the veterans while they were in France.

"We don't want beer so much," he said, "as we want an end of gang rule."

Edward Neary, of the New York delegation, said that the shooting down of little children on the streets of his city was due to prohibition.

"Why don't you hang 'em?" yelled a dry delegate.

"Now be fair," said Neary. "I plead with you to indicate that you have got guts enough to vote with New York on this question."

Douglas Hudson, of Kansas, told the legion that if it voted for what he called the "beer resolution" it would be abandoning its ideals.

"It is not the eighteenth amendment that has caused these lamentable conditions," he said; "it is the widespread violation of the eighteenth amendment."

The wets greeted this with the noisiest burst of boos of the day.

John J. Wicker, jr., of Virginia, a dry, told the convention that he and the other drys in the divided Virginia delegation knew that they were facing defeat.

"We who are about to die," he said, "salute you."

Vote Cheered by Delegates.

A few minutes later, John Thomas Taylor was calling the roll on the prohibition question. As each department announced its vote there was a tremendous cheer. The wets were especially vociferous when a delegation representing a dry State cast its votes in favor of the wet resolution.

The delegates from Alabama, a State which is represented in Congress wholly by drys, all voted for the wet resolution. So, too, did the eighteen delegates from Georgia.

Of the Maryland delegates, eleven voted for the resolution and one against. The Virginia delegation stood nine for the resolution and eight against.

Virtually all of the large delegations voted wet.

Illinois cast 93 votes for the resolution; New York, 92, and Pennsylvania 80.

The largest vote against the resolution was cast by the Texas contingent, all 45 members voting in the negative.

When the roll call was finished and the 1,008 to 394 vote announced, the New York delegation began singing "East Side, West Side," Alfred E. Smith's theme song in 1928.

The song was sung, however, not in celebration of the wet victory, but because at that particular moment Mrs. Louise Williams, of Tuckahoe, N. Y., the new national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, had walked on the stage to be introduced.

Bonus Fight Follows.

The bonus fight followed the row over prohibition. Two resolutions were introduced, one urging cash payment of the bonus, the other opposing such payment.

That the cash payment resolution would be defeated had been apparent ever since President Hoover came here Monday and appealed to the veterans not to take any action that would further strain the Federal Treasury.

The fight for the resolution in favor of cash was led by Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas. The $2,000,000,000 that would be put into circulation, he said, would do much to bring about the economic recovery of the country. As to predictions that the Federal Treasury would be wrecked, he said, the same predictions were made when Congress passed the bill authorizing loans on 50 per cent of the value of the bonus certificates.

Department Commander Fraser, of the District of Columbia, followed Patman to the rostrum.

"All we are asking," said Fraser, "is the payment of a just debt. The former soldier who is out of work certainly needs the money more now than he will fifteen years from now.

"I am instructed to vote with our delegation for the bonus. Are we to tell our people back home that the legion has failed to do anything for the hungry, jobless veterans of the World War?"

Maryland Man Applauded.

Wally Williams, of Maryland, made a speech against the cash bonus resolution that evoked tremendous cheering.

"Thirteen years ago this fall," he said, "Dike O'Neill and I crawled out of a lousy trench and the regiment that we served with took that piece of ground where the Romagne Cemetery is today. When it was taken half of that regiment were killed and wounded. A comrade from my State lived, but lost both his arms. A comrade from downstate took three hours to die and left behind him nothing much, a wife and a kiddie he had never seen. The legion has had the esteem and the affection and the love of the people of America because it has done the job of taking care of them. On the day when we use our organized power to ask for a special privilege for ourselves and not for them the legion loses the love it so richly deserved.

"Some of you fellows feel you are bound by a majority vote from back home or in a delegation or somewhere else. You are not bound by anything except your conscience before God and your duty to the disabled, the widows and the orphans today."

William Broun, of California, who lost a leg and part of an arm in France, left the press table, hobbled to the stage and appealed to the delegates to kill the bonus resolution. "Forget yourselves," he shouted. "We gave in 1917; you give in 1932."

Floridian Is Booed.

James Morris, of Florida, echoed this sentiment.

"Let us stick by the unselfish idealism of the legion and not demand any special privilege now," he said.

"When President Hoover came here with an appeal to help the country it is for us not to give color to such a charge as that we are a selfish, money-grabbing organization. I urge you to oppose this."

There were boos as Morris finished.

John McCall, Tennessee, said, "We can not make requests for the widows and orphans and also ask for cash for the able-bodied soldiers now.

"If you do you are not worthy of membership in this organization."

There was a chorus of boos.

At this point, the roll was called and the cash payment resolution voted down. The District of Columbia delegation, as has been said, voted for the resolution.

Maryland and Virginia, however, voted against it.

Representative Patman said he was not in the least discouraged by the vote. The large number of votes cast in favor of a cash bonus, he said, indicated that there was a widespread sentiment in favor of it.

He said that he would again press his bonus resolution at the next session of Congress.

Following its custom of electing a Catholic one year and a Protestant the next year as national chaplain, the legion today elected Father H. A. Darche, of Illinois, to that post.

Assails Federal Boards.

The American Legion at its final session today adopted a resolution urging Congress to abolish the Bureau of Efficiency and the United States Workmen's Compensation Board and to transfer their functions to the Civil Service Commission.

The District of Columbia department has long been at war with the Bureau of Efficiency. It contends that the bureau's efficiency ratings are unfair to veterans.

The convention today also adopted a resolution asking Administrator of Veterans Affairs Frank Hines to replace all nonservice employes in his organization with men and women who served in the World War wherever such replacement is "legally possible." The War and Navy departments also were asked to show preference to veterans.

In other resolutions adopted today, the legion urged former service men to use American ships in traveling abroad; asked Congress to declare the future policy of the United States with regard to Porto Rico; advocated a reduction in the interest rate now charged veterans on their bonus loans, and declared that the education of the orphans of those who died in the war should be made a major activity of the legion.

The legion also directed the national commander to appoint a committee to visit the tomb of the Unknown Soldier on November 11, 1932, in connection with the George Washington bicentennial exercises.

An attempt to have the legion go on record in favor of American adherence to the World Court was defeated in the foreign affairs committee by Harry Photis, of the District of Columbia delegation.

LEADERS EXPRESS OPINIONS ON RUM REFERENDUM PLAN

action that "most of those who voted for the resolution came out of wet States."

Brookhart asserted "a bunch of soldiers who get together and send 750,000 colleagues to beg with tin cups when the Government owes them a bonus and then turns around shouting for beer when they need bread haven't any of my support."

"There is no bigger fraud than the argument that beer will help the farmer," Brookhart said, adding:

"They would put a tax on beer to transfer a billion of tax burden from the big taxpayers to the common people.

"They will never get beer or a tax on beer with my vote."

Bulkley Expresses Delight.

Senator Bulkley, Democratic antiprohibitionist from Ohio, informed of the legion move, said:

"I am delighted. I am so glad they voted on that instead of beer."

Senator Frazier (Republican), supporter of prohibition, from North Dakota, maintained the legalization of beer would prove of little benefit to the farmer. He said he was opposed to a referendum, but would agree "if the people want it."

The Prohibition Bureau disclosed it already had collected considerable data on the legal beer trade as it affected the farmer. A brochure bearing the seal of the Department of Justice reported that in 1915 and 1916 distillers and brewers used 32 per cent of the annual malt crop.

Of the statement issued by the wet and dry organizations, that of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment was the shortest. Mr. Curran, in one brief paragraph, added that he believed the American Legion was "a splendid cross-section of the American people."

The Antisaloon League contended that "obviously the wets made an aggressive campaign for a repeal vote (at the legion convention), while the drys believed the legion would not enter into controversial politics."

Dry Leader Assails Legion.

St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Dr. Clarence True Wilson, Methodist dry leader, attacked the action of the American Legion in voting for a prohibition referendum in a statement tonight asserting that at the Detroit convention "numbers of staggering drunks disgraced the uniform and yelled for beer."

The statement of the general secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who was in St. Joseph for a church conference, follows:

"The legion has again taken the wet side. I am not surprised. If you have seen the outfit that gathered in Detroit as I did, you would be surprised that 394 men (the number of delegates who voted against the referendum resolution) could be found who would stand up for the Constitution and decency and sobriety. Where did they get them?

"When these men were being trained for overseas it was as sober soldiers in dry cantonments. America tried to make total abstainers of every one. They went across to France the cleanest army that ever assembled on any field. A million maintained their American ideals even in French cities.

Claims Thousands Alienated.

"But some dropped down to another level. This is the crowd that seeks to dominate the legion and our civilization. The wet propaganda for which the legion has been used has so alienated thousands that they no longer attend the conventions.

"There was a marked absence of the sober, well-behaved, typical American. The other crowd is in power. That is why the headquarters over in Windsor was placed in the government liquor store. That is why such numbers of staggering drunks disgraced the uniform and yelled for beer."

Detroit, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Henry L. Stevens, jr., of Warsaw, N. C., new national commander of the American Legion, tonight answered Dr. Clarence True Wilson's comment on the legion's action in calling for a national referendum on prohibition with a denial that the legion had gone over to the "wet" side and an assertion that the legion has and always will support the Constitution.

"I certainly do not take the view that the legion has taken the wet side," Stevens said. "The legion did not take the wet side by calling for a referendum, but simply called for full expression of the opinion of the citizenry of the country.

"I have seen fewer drunks at this convention than ever at any convention.

"A million of us have stood up for the Constitution and still do stand for it."

Col. Frederick M. Alger, of Detroit, chairman of the Legion Convention Corporation, replied to Dr. Wilson as follows:

"Tell the gentleman, if he is such, that had he been here in Detroit he would have seen 92,000 men entirely sober, march down the street.

"I would recommend that Dr. Wilson find out what he is talking about. When a man stays far away from the front and tries to criticize from the rear his criticism is of no weight."

Wilmington, N. C., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The Rev. Arthur J. Barton, chairman of the executive committee of the Antisaloon League, in a statement here tonight said the American Legion, by calling for a referendum on the prohibition law, had made itself "ridiculous in the eyes of sober and sober-minded Americans."

He asserted the legion's action will not seriously affect prohibition and charged the legion had done itself more harm than it has done prohibition.

"The legion," he said, "takes itself a little too seriously in assuming that the people were expecting the legion to take upon itself leadership in this matter. The organization does not represent all or even the majority of the American Expeditionary Forces."

Legion Auxiliary Chooses Officials

Mrs. L. W. Williams Head; Five Vice Presidents Are Installed.

Detroit, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Officials of the American Legion Auxiliary today closed their business sessions with the election of Mrs. Louise Wereie Williams, Tuckahoe, N. Y., as national president to succeed Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, of Douglas, Ariz.

There were no contests for the offices to be filled by five vice presidents of the auxiliary, and the installation of officers followed the election of Mrs. Williams. The vice presidents are: Mrs. Agnes Bouriak, Sanford, Me.; Mrs. R. W. Waldrop, Bessemer, Ala.; Mrs. C. F. Snover, Fort Atkinson, Wis.; Mrs. Malcolm Douglass, Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. James Morris, Bismark, N. Dak.

Plan for Junior Legion Is Advanced by Official

Detroit, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—George Kellogg, American Legion official, today said he hoped to present before the national convention of the American Legion today a plan for the organization of a junior body to be recruited from sons and daughters of American Legion members.

Kellogg said the need for such an organization had been felt throughout the Legion ranks, and declared that numerous branches already have sprung up, needing only a national constitution to band them together.

HYDE TO STUDY BEER EFFECT ON FARMING

been listed as one of the Cabinet officers who was "on the right side of the question."

"What is the right side?" Hyde asked.

"That was interpreted as being the liberal side," was the answer.

"What," he exclaimed, "and me a Methodist?"

With this he departed, bound upon a journey to St. Louis.

As to the political side of the Department of Agriculture's beer investigation, Hyde had little to say. He conceded, however, that political consequences might arise from it.

Secretary Newton likewise was reticent. Asked if he had anything more to say on the beer data obtained by him last week, he said: "The incident is closed."

At the time the information was gathered, Mr. Newton said it was not for the use of the President and was obtained at the request of some one not connected with the White House. The name of the recipient has remained a mystery.

Newton said while no more information was being sought at this time, it was possible further steps would be taken if additional data were requested.

to 15 per cent as of July 1 and "wage adjustments" also have been made.

It is a quiet watch here, practically nothing having been said since the attack on the large steel corporations by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

That statement, in which the labor leader arraigned the wage-cutters as shortsighted and unethical, received a thorough study in all quarters concerned. There was no rejoinder to it, however, nor was it amplified.

The only word coming from the White House was that nothing would be said there. In his office, President Hoover kept in close touch with what went on.

There is an understanding among Government officers that whatever is to be said will be said at the Labor or Commerce Departments, which have to do with questions affecting the workingman and business. That has made other officials reticent, but one of them did take occasion yesterday to criticize wage-slashing as a product of bad thinking.

While seeing it as a discouraging turn, he doubted small industries generally would emulate the big ones. Under the duress of depression, the little fellows were believed by him to have improved efficiency in many ways and consequently to be able now to meet the big fellows on advantageous terms.

Senator Bulkley, an Ohio Democrat, commented he regretted seeing wages cut, "but there is the possibility that it may be a step toward ending the depression."

"It may be a step we have to go through economically," was another way he put it. He emphasized he was not advocating the lowering of a worker's pay, but pointed out in the past similar moves had been followed by a return of prosperity.

Some Government economists contend that industry made the cut only as a last step. There is no exact telling how radical will be the adjustments. One thing sure is that much will be heard in Congress on the whole question.

Walsh Upholds Steel.

As to that, Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, said yesterday he doubted the seriousness of William Green's suggestion to reduce tariff protection on items important to wage-cutting steel concerns.

"While many of the rates on products of the steel companies are inexcusably high," Mr. Walsh said, "the shock to industry, in general of putting them all on the free list would be so serious that I can not think such a radical change could be proposed for legislation."

Mr. Walsh predicted that Congress, at its next session, would not repeal antitrust laws as proposed in some quarters to revive business.

The Montana senator said that provisions for regulation of prices must accompany any repeal of the anti-monopoly act.

As a major committee of President Hoover's relief organization planned to discuss progress in relieving distress here today, William Green, a member, estimated that 5,600,000 in the United States are now without work.

This represented an increase of 500,000 over the labor chief's estimate a month ago. Expectant then of the usual fall gain in employment, Green had placed the winter's unemployment total at 7,000,000.

But in yesterday's statement he said: "The usual fall gain in employment has not yet occurred this year. The number out of work this fall, according to trade union records, is still well above spring level. Prospects for the winter are even more serious."

Green said industrial unemployment had increased steadily, from 17.1 per cent in May to 19.5 per cent in September. Employment gains in the clothing trade were more than offset in other fields, he said. The building, water transport, metal and manufacturing trades were listed as "suffering especially" from unemployment.

"The report for cities shows unemployment increasing in thirteen, employment better in ten and no change in one," the labor leader said. "The situation is reported as especially bad in Chicago, Jersey City, Cleveland, Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia, Detroit and Birmingham."

Today's meeting at relief headquarters, directed by Walter S. Gifford, will be attended by members of the committee headed by Eliot Wadsworth, Boston, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury.

Reports received by Wadsworth so far the organization said, indicate that many national groups and associations will cooperate actively in massing their memberships behind Nation-wide community relief activities this winter.

Secretary Doak continued to refuse any comment on the steel corporation wage cuts. A scheduled press conference with the Labor Department chief was canceled for a meeting between Doak and Secretary Lamont, of the Commerce Department, which both Cabinet officers said did not concern the wage situation.

Dry Leaders Say Beer Aided Farmers Little

(United Press.)

From prohibition headquarters yesterday there was issued a two-year-old pamphlet, in which it was said that the use by distillers and brewers of grains at the height of their activity in pre-prohibition days was:

Wheat and oats, 1914, less than 1 per cent of the crop; corn, 1913 and 1916, slightly more than 1 per cent; rice, 1915 and 1916, almost 8 per cent; rye, 1914-1916, 7½ per cent; barley and malt, 1915 and 1916, 32 per cent.

It was indicated that Secretary Hyde's survey would be along this line. The prohibition figures regarding crops fitted in with figures obtained last week by Walter Newton, one of President Hoover's secretaries. These purported to show that the brewing industry in preprohibition days employed but 75,000 persons, or 1¼ per cent of the estimated total of 6,000,000 person unemployed at present.

Girl Scout Jobless Aid Worked Out at Rapidan

(Associated Press.)

A plan for Girl Scout participation in unemployment relief work has been evolved at President Hoover's Rapidan Camp.

Mrs. Frederick Edey, of New York, president of the organization, said yesterday after her return to Washington from the conference of the executive committee with Mrs. Hoover that she would present the plan to the annual Girl Scout convention in Buffalo next month. She did not make the plan public.

All suggestions, she said, had been put in the hands of Dr. Lillian N. Gilbreth, member of the Girl Scouts executive committee and of President Hoover's unemployment committee, for crystallization into a definite and workable program.

Trust Law Revision Asked To Help Building Industry

(Associated Press.)

Modification of the antitrust law to permit a speeding up of construction and elimination of what were termed building industry drawbacks was recommended to President Hoover yesterday by Robert D. Kohn, on behalf of the Construction League of the United States.

Kohn, who also is president of the American Institute of Architects, headed a delegation from the league, which is meeting in Washington, in a call at the White House.

He said the league was making every effort to speed up local work in an effort to give employment and also was studying the development of proper relations between elements in the building industry.

LINDBERGHS TO TAKE DOCTORS ON AID TRIP

Noted Fliers Finish Survey of Chinese Flood Areas; Luncheon Planned.

Nanking, China, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—With the bulk of their aerial surveys of Kiangsu province and weste.n Anhwei province for the Chinese national flood relief commission completed, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today extended their volunteer flood relief program to include arrangements to carry doctors to isolated flood centers, where medical services are urgently needed.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh did not fly today, but spent the day conferring with the American consulate general and engineers of the flood relief commission.

On the three survey flights completed with that of yesterday, Anne Lindbergh piloted the plane and her husband annotated maps of the flood area, giving the flood commission its first accurate knowledge of conditions in the isolated parts of Kiangsu and Anhwei.

Today the Lindberghs and the commission's engineers made careful examination of Col. Lindbergh's maps and the many photographs he took of the three flights. The consulate said Lindbergh also was working upon the report of his flood findings for the commission.

The Lindberghs, who flew to China from the United States on an aerial vacation, still say they have no plans beyond their flood relief work. No social engagements are on their calendar. They canceled them all that they might do their part to relieve the disaster. An official luncheon is being planned, however, possibly for tomorrow.

Flood centers, entirely lacking in medical facilities, report diseases spreading among hundreds of thousands of refugees. Col. Lindbergh said an experimental flight would be made Saturday to determine the value of aerial delivery of medical men to these places.

Army Fliers Probe Storm Plane Death

Inquiry Into Dickerson, Md., Crash Will Require Three Days.

A board of inquiry comprised entirely of Army aviators stationed at the Bolling Field base yesterday began investigation into the airplane crash at Dickerson, Md., which Wednesday claimed the life of Lieut. William Clements, 24-year-old Army Air Corps Reserve pilot, of Durand, Ga.

Although it was said the official investigation probably will take three days, one of the members of the board expressed the informal opinion that Clements had encountered the storm northwest of Dickerson and turned back to escape it, when engine trouble forced him to seek an emergency landing.

Appointed to the board were Maj. Louis M. Field, Bolling Field flight surgeon, and Lieuts. Hobart R. Yeager, Malcolm S. Lawton, and Louis M. Merrick. It was stated at Bolling Field last night that the body will be returned to the home of Clements' parents, at Durand, Ga., for burial.

Mrs. J. W. Powell To Lie in Arlington

Colonel's Widow Died in San Francisco; Lived Here Formerly.

Mrs. James W. Powell, who died at San Francisco last Sunday, is to be buried in Arlington Cemetery tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Charles T. Warner, of St. Alban's Church. Mrs. Powell was the widow of Col. James W. Powell, U. S. Army, who was on duty in Washington for a number of years as disbursing officer of the Signal Corps, under Gen. W. B. Hazen, with whom he had served in the Indian campaigns of the far West in the 60s and 70s.

After the Philippine Insurrection of 1899, in which he was in command of the Seventeenth Infantry, Col. Powell was retired, but continued on duty as military instructor at the College of St. Francis Xavier in New York, and with the National Guard of Louisiana in New Orleans. After his death in 1907 Mrs. Powell lived in Washington until 1914. Since then she has made her home with her youngest son, Lieut. Leighton Powell, in San Francisco. Her eldest son, Maj. Theo F. Powell, finance department, died in Washington several years ago.

Another son, Grahame H. Powell, is practicing law in this city, while her daughter Mildred, who was named for the late Mrs. Dewey, is the wife of Col. Hugh La F. Applewhite, U. S. Army, now living in San Antonio. Mrs. Powell was the sister of Mrs. Dorsey Clagett, whose husband was formerly register of wills in Washington.

REV. DR. SHELTON VINDICATED BY VERDICT AT CHURCH TRIAL

no one has stuck by me like Dr. Deal."

Before the meeting was adjourned, and members of the congregation thronged forward to congratulate their pastor, Thomas D. Gannaway, who conducts devotional services at the church, announced that a wedding anniversary reception will be held at the church at 9 o'clock tonight for Dr. and Mrs. Shelton. They have been married just 31 years.

The defense issued this statement following the trial:

"The unanimous verdict of 'not guilty' just announced by the trial committee of thirteen clergymen and a presiding chairman, is the surest and strongest rebuke that can be given to the defamers of Dr. Shelton.

"After three day and two night sessions of the trial committee, where every vestige of testimony in support of the charge was produced, and where the defense was enabled properly to present its defense the tribunal vested with the obligation and duty of determining the truthfulness or falsity of the charge, composed of clergymen from various sections of the conference, embracing several States, has given its verdict in language understood everywhere.

Alleged "Confession" Read.

"It should be borne in mind that the trial committee had before it the alleged 'confession and apology,' which, at the height of the trial was circulated anonymously and furnished to some Washington newspapers in a vicious but vain effort to prejudice the case against Dr. Shelton.

"Dr. Shelton has been vindicated. Calumny, character-assassination, and perfidy have again been given a death blow. Truth, honor, integrity and high purpose comes into its own.

"It is needless to say that the defendant and his counsel are most gratified at the outcome."

Although the sessions of the trial committee were conducted in the utmost secrecy, each member of the board and every other person connected with the trial being bound to secrecy, "leaks" began to develop yesterday morning, pointing to a favorable turn to Dr. Shelton. Early in the afternoon it was persistently rumored that he would be vindicated, although no official word was received prior to the issuance of the defense's statement. Yesterday morning an anonymous letter, purporting to be a "confession and apology" by Dr. Shelton was received through the mails by the Washington newspapers, and a copy was placed in the hands of the trial board. The defense characterized it as a "vicious but vain effort to prejudice the case against Dr. Shelton."

During the last two days of the trial, Miss Williams, with a party of her friends and supporters, sat on the mezzanine floor of the George Mason Hotel, across the street from the church, and steadfastly refused to make any statement. About an hour before the announcement of the verdict they took refuge in the governor's suite of the hotel and could not be reached.

The supporters of Dr. Shelton were jubilant at the outcome of the trial. A large number of them were lined up on the sidewalk in front of the Young People's Building and when Attorney Raymond B. Dickey, who had been retained for the defense but who was not permitted to take an active part, other than advisory, in the proceedings, emerged from the side door with copies of the defense's statement, there was a hush, then, as he pronounced the words "not guilty," applause broke out and dignified women and staid men all but executed a war dance on the pavement.

Dr. Shelton Testifies.

Just before the verdict was announced, members of the Shelton party stated that tonight the quarterly conference of the Washington District would be held in the Mount Vernon Place Church.

Dr. Shelton testified briefly in his own defense in the afternoon. It is understood that he was informed by the trial board that his testimony would not be necessary, but that he demanded to be heard. It was also stated that the trial board had requested the defense to limit their witnesses to as few as possible, this being taken as an indication that the verdict would be favorable to Dr. Shelton. The testimony of the Rev. R. H. Deal, who was heard yesterday, is stated to have furnished all evidence necessary completely to exonerate Dr. Shelton. The Rev. Mr. Deal is assistant pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Church.

Dr. Lambeth Departs.

Miss Williams had no comment to make at the close of the trial, which the committee concluded with hymns and praying. Dr. Shelton was embraced by his wife as he emerged from the trial room.

Dr. W. E. Lambeth, who preceded Dr. Shelton as pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Church, and was the prosecution's star witness along with Miss Williams, left Washington immediately for his charge at Durham, N. C.

When the statement attributed to Dr. Shelton, apologizing to Miss Williams, was offered in evidence at the trial Dr. Hammond said it was made under "such duress it had no weight whatever." The statement had been anonymously circulated among Dr. Shelton's supporters.

Thomas A. Cannon, Produce Man, Dies

Began Trade at Center Market More Than 45 Years Ago.

Thomas A. Cannon, well-known produce merchant of this city, died at his home, 1327 Euclid street northwest, yesterday after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Cannon was born in Montgomery County in 1864. He moved to Washington with his family while he was a small boy.

More than 45 years ago Mr. Cannon became engaged in the produce business in Center Market where he remained until a short time before the structure was torn down. He was an authority on produce and poultry.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Cannon and four sons and two daughters.

Funeral services will be held Monday morning from his late residence. Following requiem mass at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart at 10 o'clock, interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Man Married 29 Times Loses Wife No. 28

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Norman Flood's twenty-eighth wife, Blanche Langdon, obtained an annulment of her marriage here today.

She married Flood in 1926, and since then he married a twenty-ninth wife, Jessie Ball, of Oakland.

Brig. Gen. Haskin To Be Buried Here

Civil War Veteran Dies in New London at 90; 40 Years in Army.

Funeral services for Brig. Gen. William Lawrence Haskin, retired, who died yesterday at New London, Conn., will be held tomorrow morning at 9:15 at the Fort Myer gates, followed by burial in Arlington National Cemetery with full military honors.

Gen. Haskin was born at Hancock Barracks, Me., on May 31, 1841. Educated at Mexico Academy, New York and at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, he was appointed in 1861 a lieutenant in the First U. S. Artillery.

He was brevetted captain in 1863 "for gallant and meritorious services in the capture of Port Hudson." In 1865 he was made a major "for gallant services." He was in command of a regiment in Cuba in 1898 and in 1902 commanded the troops still remaining there. He was retired in 1903 at his own request after 40 years' service.

Gen. Haskin is survived by a son, William H. Haskin, of New York City, and a daughter, the wife of Brig. Gen. Joseph A. Gaston, retired, of this city.

FRANC AND POUND VIE FOR INFLUENCE

Britain Is Believed Seeking Fall of Gold Standard in Other Countries.

Paris, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—A contest between the French gold franc and the British pound sterling for financial influence in European markets stirred the banking houses and chancelleries of Paris today as a result of the British gold standard suspension.

Although there were few untoward manifestations of the conflict, prominent financial and diplomatic figures were in conference and the financial wires were overcrowded with messages to every European capital.

There were reports that Great Britain was believed to be exerting pressure on all sides to obtain abandonment of the gold standard by other nations. Such action was considered certain to embarrass France and the United States if it should be successful. In this connection, it was understood that Sweden had seriously considered following the lead of Britain in suspension of the gold standard, but later decided to remain on a gold basis at present, apparently due to the influence of French sources.

France May Dominate.

The possible shifts of financial power in Europe as a result of the present situation were the subject of much speculation, and there were predictions that France's loans to Poland, Roumania, Jugoslavia and Spain to stabilize their currencies on a gold basis would eventually place her in a dominant position.

The question of several smaller European nations abandoning the gold standard was laid to the fact that most of their foreign business is based on the pound sterling. Therefore they would be in a difficult position unless they follow Britain's example, because the pound has declined on the exchange.

Officials of the Bank of France insisted that France has not exerted any pressure in Europe in this connection. They said the countries which have used the pound as a basis of international banking probably would suffer in a slump of the pound. Switzerland, Roumania, Jugoslavia, Turkey and other nations, however, already have changed to the franc as a basis for international transactions.

Laval-Hoover Conference.

The entire question of gold may be taken up by Premier Pierre Laval when he visits President Hoover next month, although his lack of specialization in financial fields would limit such discussions.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France today showed a reduction of 1,633,000 francs from last week in the total gold reserves, second largest in the world. The total is now 58,575,162,258 francs. The pound slumped on the late unofficial trading, closing at 98½, compared to 104 yesterday. The dollar recovered slightly to 25.39¼.

London, Sept. 24 (U.P.)—The feasibility of an early international conference on silver was discussed today by the International Chamber of Commerce advisory committee. Recommendations will be submitted to the chambeer's council in Paris, October 23. The committee included Marshall Tuthill, of New York; Ernest Franklin, of London, and E. D. Van Walree, of Amsterdam.

DR. EUGENE JONES RITES.

Attendance at Funeral Among Largest in Montgomery County.

Funeral services for Dr. Eugene Jones, of Kensington, Md., three times State senator from Montgomery County, were held yesterday at the residence. The services were conducted by the Rev. Thomas D. Windiate, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Joseph Sinclair, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church.

Pallbearers were Albert M. Bouic, Dr. Warren Price, James T. Cashell, Dr. Harry O. Trowbridge, W. P. Hunter and J. Hampton Jones. The funeral was one of the largest in the history of Montgomery County. Almost all county officials were present, including leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties. Dr. Jones was a member of the Progressive Democratic faction. Burial was in Monocacy Cemetery, near Beallsville, Md.

Women Defy Men As Bridge Experts

Katherine Friend Leads in Revolt Against Male Teachers.

New York, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—A feminine revolt against male dominance in the field of contract bridge teaching was launched with a preliminary flash of fireworks today, adding a new and interesting element to the current war over bidding systems.

Katherine Friend, a smallish, soft-voiced woman from Louisiana, is leading the attack against such notables as Milton Work, Sidney Lenz, F. Dudley Courtenay and other kingpins of Bridge Headquarters, Inc., sponsors of the new "official system."

Mrs. Friend has formed a committee of women to be known as the national committee for recognition of women's leadership in bridge teaching. In other words, Mrs. Friend and her compatriots believe that women actually make better bridge teachers than men, and that the public has been virtually deluded in the matter.

Man Swept Out to Sea Wins in Long Struggle

Brunswick, Ga., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—A story of all night struggle to keep afloat in the ocean after being swept from the beach at Sea Island by a strong undertow was related today by C. C. Reese, 25, of Brunswick.

He estimated the tide carried him out a mile and a half. He said he sighted the shore about half a mile away at daylight and started swimming for the beach. Policemen and a party of friends searched along the beach all night. Some while after dawn they found him, lying on the sand exhausted.

M'DONALD REGARDED AS KEY TO ELECTION

Prime Minister Relied Upon Also on Tariff and Party Lines Adjustment.

London, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, hiding away at some unrevealed country retreat to regain his health, holds the key to the vital questions of a general election, an import tariff and a readjustment of political party lines.

In the last analysis the Conservatives, Liberals and Laborites (who repudiated MacDonald as party leader) have admitted that the solution of the questions depends upon the prime minister's decision, and they are convinced that it will be based entirely on what he believes to be the best interests of the nation, irrespective of personal or party attitudes.

MacDonald's decision regarding an immediate election will be guided by the reaction of the pound sterling in the near future. There have been strong warnings against ending the present coalition government until the financial situation has been cleared up.

The Daily Express will say tomorrow that MacDonald will return to London Friday, three days earlier than planned, to confer with Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, on the question of an immediate general election. The newspaper understood that an election decision probably will be announced Wednesday.

London, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Another buying impulse was registered today on the stock exchange, and the newspapers spoke of it as a "boom."

Stock brokers generally described today as the best they have had this year. Prices went up by 4, 5 and 6 shillings in a few hours, so great was the demand, and traders everywhere were optimistic.

Only British funds were somewhat reactionary, owing to the weakness of sterling, but gilt-edged stocks were fairly firm with a good deal of small investment business in progress.

Chief Justice Hughes To Speak at Richmond

Richmond, Va., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes will deliver two addresses in Richmond next Tuesday. He will dedicate a bust of James Madison in the State Capitol rotunda in the afternoon and speak before the Richmond Bar Association in the evening.

The bar association will be attended by a distinguished gathering of the Virginia judiciary and legal profession.

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Human life is so cheap that it is possible to have a person killed for a $200 fee, Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, told a group of Northwestern University students and professors at luncheon today.

THE LEGION RESOLVES.

The American Legion convention at Detroit defeated a resolution calling for the immediate payment of the additional 50 per cent of the bonus. It was a patriotic stand to take at this time, a just recognition of conditions which demand that consideration be given first to the unemployed and needy, including, of course, veterans who come within these categories. Able-bodied soldiers of the World War who are at work will make no general complaint at this just decision. When the present depression has passed it is not hard to foresee that this action of the legion, which undoubtedly represents majority sentiment among all veterans, will add to a very general desire to meet their wishes with regard to adjusted compensation. For the present the legion is to be congratulated upon its decision to make no selfish appeal for class preference now.

Upon the question of prohibition, by a vote of 1,008 to 394, the legion convention indicated that it favored repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment, and by resolution evidently desired that the question be submitted to the voters of each State. The legion resolution "favors the submission by the Congress of the repeal or modification of the present prohibition laws to the several States with a request that each State submit this question to the voters thereof."

By a two-thirds vote of both houses, Congress can propose amendments to the Constitution. To be adopted they must be ratified by legislatures or conventions of three-fourths of the States. If Congress should propose the repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment, and should propose that ratification in each State should be by convention, it would be necessary for each State to choose delegates to such a convention, and in this way an indirect vote might be registered. Congress has no authority to propose the taking of a popular vote on a proposed amendment.

No valid objection can be offered to the legion's manifest desire to secure an expression of the American people on prohibition. The question whether an individual favors or opposes the eighteenth amendment does not affect the right of Americans to seek an expression of the people on the subject.

The difficulties in the way of making a change are formidable. Two-thirds votes must be secured in both House and Senate before an amendment can be proposed, and for the ratification of an amendment there must be a majority of three-fourths, not of the total popular vote, but of the several States.

The legion is entirely within its rights in its endeavor to have the question voted upon. It is somewhat significant, however, that even in the enthusiasm of the convention the adoption of the referendum resolution failed to command a three-fourths majority by 43 votes.

PATRIOTIC SPIRIT.

The little village of Adderley in Shropshire has started a movement to reduce the British national debt. By contributing a shilling every adult in the village did his bit toward easing the present financial crisis. Adderley has but 300 inhabitants, of whom every grown person, from the youngest farm laborer to the squire or employer, gave a shilling toward the cause in the hope that other towns would follow the example. The sum of £4 2s, about $20.50, was sent to the government. Though Adderley is but a hamlet, its inhabitants expressed the hope that larger communities would be prompted similarly to contribute without being called upon by the government. In this way a substantial sum could be raised.

The patriotic action of Adderley, which was reported through the Daily Mail, brought a deluge of letters from rich and poor alike in all parts of Great Britain, inclosing money to be devoted to national needs. One woman sent some dearly prized gold ornaments to help the country in its crisis. They consisted of a gold watch and chain, a ring and a bracelet. She wrote that she believed if every one would give a little both the gift and the spirit would bring back prosperity. Other contributions came from the employes in a small costumer's shop and a missionary worker. Four friends sent together their "economy savings" and asked that a day of prayer be appointed, as was done during the war. These and many more testimonials of a like nature indicate that the English people will as ever stand solidly behind the nation in the present crisis to assure ultimate triumph over the present difficulties. Shilling contributions will not go far toward meeting England's debts, but such voluntary offerings are an earnest of the British spirit that will give more and make whatever sacrifices are necessary in this emergency.

NO WAGE CUTS.

President Hoover and his administration are fixedly opposed to any steps in the industrial world that might lead to a lowering of the high standard of living enjoyed in this country. That has been the attitude of the President from the very beginning. All through the period of depression he has held the great industrial leaders in line by conference and vigil.

No other country in the world can boast of a standard of living on a plane with America. In no other land has the laboring man fared as well. Even wage cuts here and there do not materially affect the standard of living since, fortunately, lower prices for commodities prevail. Food, shelter and clothing are cheaper than they have been in years.

However, this is no time to let down the bars. The White House, by having it known that the administration is unalterably opposed to any movement that would be a setback to the standard of living that has been constantly on the upgrade for half a century or more, has called attention to a blessing enjoyed by all, and not always appreciated. President Hoover in his early career came in close contact with the laboring people of many lands. He saw at first hand conditions that would not be tolerated in America. He knows that the American workingman and his family must be protected by a tariff, by restriction of excessive immigration and by the maintenance of a decent wage scale.

It happens that the first threat against wages comes at a time when most people believe the depression is nearly over. The first signs of a reawakening in business and industry are unmistakable. That being the case, and with better days undoubtedly ahead, this is certainly no time to disturb wage scales, upset working families, invite strikes and otherwise prevent the return of good times.

The reduction of wages by the United States Steel Corporation was a foolish and selfish act. Its bad effect is already apparent.

NEW YORK-WASHINGTON TRAVEL.

Transportation facilities between New York and Washington have now reached such a point of perfection that Broadway and Pennsylvania avenue are only a few hours apart.

A commercial airplane capable of carrying six passengers made the Washington-Newark hop in 57 minutes 3 3-5 seconds last week, clipping a full minute off the record held by the master pilot, Capt. Hawks. From the Newark airport to New York City is only a 30-minute run by bus.

Five-hour railroad trains between the Nation's Capital and the metropolis are out of date. One railroad announces a new schedule which will bring the running time nearer four hours.

The electrification of one railroad system between New York and Washington will reduce the run between the two points to approximately three hours.

All of this is in keeping with the tempo of modern life. It calls for speed. Up to this time, England has shamed America in fast train service. Hereafter America will be able to point with pride to transportation that permits the passenger to leave New York after breakfast, attend to Government business in the Nation's Capital, and get back to Broadway in time for dinner and a show at night—all in the day's work.

MISLEADING STOCK PRICES.

When the stock market had its upward swing on Wednesday the first flight of its kind in many moons, it was believed in some quarters that this was a true reflection of the business condition of the Nation. It happened that the upward tendency came at a time when wage cuts were announced by three important concerns. Naturally, students of finance watched the procedure on Wall street with a great deal of interest. Yesterday, just as they were absorbed in their studies, the stock market climbed down off its perch and struck the lowest levels of the year.

There was a time when the stock market was a good barometer of business; when its fluctuations, one way or the other, told a story; but that day is past. The stock market of recent years has been out of step with the Nation. All the standards have been destroyed. There is no rhyme or reason for some of the movements on the market, outside of speculative terms. Stocks, nowadays, do not reflect their true value in the prices listed on the board.

After a time, when the world has righted itself, the stock market may regain its old prestige. That day seems to be far off. Market operators who were once rated as keen, who discounted long in advance almost every world movement, have lost their knack; which partly explains why the stock market is behind instead of ahead of the national trend.

FRANCO-BRITISH TRADE FIGHT.

Impending changes in England threaten greater dislocation in connection with trade with France than with any other nation. For the greater part of the present depression France was but slightly affected as compared with most other countries. The last six months, however, have with somewhat alarming rapidity changed the situation, until today France faces increasing unemployment and a mounting budgetary deficit that is now variously estimated at from $300,000,000 to $500,000,000.

The present threat of a British tariff and a possible bar on luxury imports comes as a distinct shock, since England is France's best customer for articles of luxury. English imports from France last year amounted to $250,000,000 and a tariff and luxury embargo would cut this total very materially. Such a possibility, in addition to the sharp decline in French exports elsewhere during the last half year, has been sufficient to cause not only concern in France, but threats of reprisal.

Such action would not come with very good grace, since France has herself found it advisable to place an embargo on wine and timber and some other articles in an effort to stem the unfavorable trade balance. When last month a balance of trade against the United States amounting to $1,000,000 was experienced for the first time in many years it caused much comment. During the first eight months of this year French imports were greater than exports to the extent of $400,000,000, which exceeds the unfavorable total for the entire year 1930 by $20,000,000.

Recent observers note that even some French writers urge generous consideration of England, as the situation there is worse than in France, but the possibility of a war of tariffs is not improbable. If England should enact a tariff and France retaliate with more embargoes the British may be expected to counter with embargoes of their own. It is evident that the recent financial interchanges between European nations, with a comparative accord in the realm of credits and exchange, will now be succeeded by economic readjustments and trade contests that will be fought with tariff bars and trade prohibitions inevitably resulting in important readjustments of government budgets.

A SUCKER LIST.

An inelegant word, yet very expressive, is "sucker." In the United States a sucker is one who is an easy dupe of fraudulent promotion schemes of any kind; one who is easily parted from his money, especially in get-rich-quick games. Stock market speculators usually have what are known as "sucker lists."

The longest sucker list ever brought to light was discovered by sleuths of the Department of Justice in New York, when they seized ten tons of documents belonging to the biggest bucket shop operator in the country. The list contained 700,000 names.

That this champion list contains the names of men and women who furnished money to the operator is evidenced by the office records. In one year alone the sucker list provided a profit of $1,800,000. It was because the stock dealer failed to make an income tax return that Uncle Sam came into possession of the prize sucker list of all time.

BUSINESS, KNOW THYSELF

By FREDERICK M. FEIKER, Director Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, in an Address at Asheville.

It seems to me that the greatest outstanding single idea which is growing out of our present situation is the belief on the part of business men that we must control the amplitude of the ups and downs of business. Various plans are proposed to exercise this control. It is stimulating to every man who has taken part in trade association work to realize that practically all of these proposals assume the trade association in some form as the essential unit of the proposed program of control.

The next idea that emerges from these many plans is that the Government must take some action with regard to the machinery of control. These ideas range all the way from having the Government take over industry to changes in our present laws which will make it possible for businesses to combine for the control of prices and for the interchange of sales and production policies not now possible under our present laws.

In a nutshell, it may be said that we have two camps of thought: One believing that force must be brought to bear to change or to direct the machinery of trades and industries; and the other that the machinery in trades and industries will not change the economic laws, and that the sure, and in the long run the better method, is the slower process of education.

It is hard to discuss these differences of viewpoint, and certainly there is not opportunity in this address to develop the many angles of the subject. When we discuss programs of control, however, we have the opportunity to study not only the methods we apply in our own country but those which have been applied in other nations. If you belong to the camp that believes that the source of our evil at the present time lies in the antitrust laws you will do well to read the results of a study of the operation of the cartel system which one of my associates, Mr. Louis Domeratzky, has presented in the October number of Foreign Affairs. In essence, the European cartel puts into action the Government blessing on about all of the things which the Sherman law refuses to allow, and apparently the cartel as an instrument for control has not lived up to its expectations in the European countries where it has been applied.

A third, and to me a most practical, angle to a stabilization program is the emergence of the idea of the deeper significance of commercial research in its relation to American industry and trade. * * * I take it for granted that in discussing stabilization we are talking about the stimulation of business, and not of the stabilization of business under present levels. In my opinion, a great opportunity faces the organized trade groups at the present time in divorcing themselves from a purely legalistic relationship to the problems of business development and establishing themselves on the platform of a solution of economic problems. * * *

One of the first things that come to mind is the difficulty of planning production because of our ignorance of probable consumption in given seasons and territories. An immediate objective, therefore, is relief measures that will give us a more detailed and accurate understanding of causes of fluctuation in consumption.

These fluctuations in demand are not susceptible to human control, but modern business forecasting is now a developed instrument which can and must be applied in forecasting consumption, at least to a reasonable degree of accuracy in advance of the establishment of the production budget. This thought is revolutionary as compared with the practice and theory upon which American industries have grown up. * * * Let us lay down this principle: Every industry must see to it that it is in possession of factual information, showing all the external and internal trends which influence consumption pertinent to that industry. It is axiomatic that complete information is essential.

The Lindberghs are delivering the photographs and maps of China's flooded areas to the Government, but what mental pictures will remain with them always of those stricken and desolate regions!

Gandhi is a sport. He renewed his offer to take on Great Britain as a "partner in full equality" with India after the pound had dropped to $4.

Kansas City puts grape concentrate on trial as containing "more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol and intoxicating in fact." Have our Westerners really become so susceptible?

We must agree with Muriel that whatever the reason may be that China must become Sino when hyphenated with Japan, it's silly.

British unemployed threaten to strike for a higher dole. It is not quite clear whether they will go to work or just refuse the present handout.

JUST FOLKS

SIGNS OF AUTUMN.

Autumn is coming soon! I saw today
Plump, red-cheeked apples hanging on a tree.
A scarlet sumach glistened by the way,
A threshing giant passed me noisily.

The corn is almost tall enough to shock,
Great golden pumpkins fatten in the sun,
The crows in strange conventions start to flock,
By every sign the summer's work is done.

But yesterday the martins still were here.
Now to their rooms return the sparrows bold,
A fluttering leaf, the first to fall this year,
Signaled the news the year is growing old.

Soon through a blaze of splendor man will tread,
While nature strews her trophies at his feet.
Autumn waits very near, with gold and red,
The labors of the summer to complete.

The Measure of a Man Is The Strain Required to Break His Word

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A YOUNG man with a troubled conscience writes to me for advice. Though married less than a year, he has grown tired of his wife. She still loves him and needs him, but he is quite sure their marriage was a mistake and he wishes to know whether it would be right to divorce her.

The question can be answered by asking another.

Some years ago, when cotton was selling at 8 cents a pound, certain planters of my acquaintance agreed to deliver their crop, when gathered, at 10 cents a pound. That price assured them a profit. They signed no contracts, but merely pledged their word. The crop was short that year and the price went up to 12 cents. And every planter in the lot broke his agreement and sold his crop at the market price.

The question is this: When a man has pledged his word to do a certain thing, and later discovers that he made a bad bargain, is it right to break his agreement?

Most of America's present troubles can be traced to want of character.

Character is not easy to define, but its minimum requirements are a sense of duty, a capacity for unselfishness, the ability to endure adversity, and that high pride in honor which keeps a man faithful to his pledged word despite loss or punishment.

Of what use is a man if he isn't dependable? How can you deal with him if his word is no good? A man's word is his honor, and the measure of his honor is the measure of the man. If his word is worthless, the man is worthless.

Selfishness has robbed the "modern" of character. His one guide is desire. His one standard of right is the thing that affords him pleasure and profit. He recognizes no obligation except that to please himself.

If a law doesn't please him, he breaks it. If his wife displeases him, his marriage vows are forgotten. If a contract threatens loss, he hires a lawyer to save his purse at the price of his honor.

Childish selfishness has taken the place of that old-fashioned quality called "bottom." There is much mouthing about "sportsmanship," but how many men swallow bitter pills if they can avoid it by the mere sacrifice of honor?

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Obstacles to Swope Plan.

Baltimore Sun.

Mr. Swope's program is based on the assumption that, in order for industry to discharge its responsibilities to labor in the way of insurance, a complete reorganization of our industrial life will be necessary. The first step in the execution of his scheme would be the elimination of the statutory barriers against monopoly and the establishment of industrial cartels under the protection of which the various insurance funds would be operated. In order to safeguard the public interest against the dangers of such a transformation, it is proposed to subject all the associations or cartels to Federal supervision through an agency such as the Federal Trade Commission.

It is not necessary to consider this elaborate plan of reorganization and Federal supervision on its merits to perceive that it is a far cry from the "rugged individualism" by which we have so often been urged to solve the problems to which it is addressed. Moreover, its very elaboration suggests that when we get out of the realm of theory and begin to consider the practical expedients of unemployment insurance in a country as diversified and as far flung as ours we are going to be confronted with many intricate difficulties that have not heretofore been perceived.

Buying Power.

Sioux Falls (N. Dak.) Argus-Leader.

Those who seek to provide jobs for the unemployed should not forget that the basic and permanent way of doing this is the greater diffusion of buying power. Creation of jobs through artificial methods is not the real solution of the problem that is depressing the United States.

Swatfest in Sight.

Macon Telegraph.

The understanding seems to be that the Democrats have a pretty good chance to beat the Republicans in 1932 if they can resist the impulse to quit swinging on the Republicans at critical moments to beat each other.

Disarmament Deadlock.

Chicago Tribune.

Since our Government is exerting its diplomacy to insure the holding of another conference on international limitation of armament it is important that the American people give serious attention to the issues certain to be raised, and indeed already vigorously debated in Europe. Among these is one upon which the French viewpoint has differed from ours. To many Americans it looks rather academic. The French know it is most practical. In terms of French policy it may be described as the rule of security first.

In other words, the French theory is that armament limitation and especially armament reduction must depend upon and follow, not precede, agreements of mutual aid. For France there is no sufficient security in the league covenant, the Locarno pact, or the Briand-Kellogg treaty renouncing war as an instrument of policy. She must have something more reliable, and her government already has formally announced that it will not reduce its present forces and program unless she gets it. Nothing of any importance in the way of reduction of armament can be expected from the February conference unless France's wishes are substantially fulfilled.

Our Government is not thinking on these lines. It considers that reduction in armament is a condition precedent to security, adopting the pacifist theory that armament makes wars and that all we need do is abolish armies and navies to insure peace. Our Government realizes that the American people has no intention of insuring the security of France or any other country. It realizes that, in spite of our pacifists, no agreement to use American forces to keep the peace in Europe has the slightest chance of adoption by any conceivable vote of the Senate, much less by the American people.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Writer Holds That Congress Can Constitutionally Fix Alcoholic Content of Beer at 20 Per Cent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos of your editorial under date of September 23, and captioned "Beer—Nothing Doing," I write to inquire whether it is your intention to mislead the many thousands of readers of your estimable paper or whether your editorial writer is merely uninformed regarding the terms of the eighteenth amendment and the law passed to enforce the provisions of this amendment—the so-called Volstead Act.

Allow me to inform you, if you have not since been so informed, that the eighteenth amendment does not define what is "intoxicating liquor," but merely forbids the manufacture, sale, transportation, possession, &c., of it for beverage purposes. The Volstead Act, passed by Congress over the veto of President Woodrow Wilson, does define the limit of alcoholic content of beverages, setting it at less than half of one per cent by volume.

You say in your editorial: "Many citizens who have not taken the trouble to analyze the situation for themselves would scorn the bare suggestion that Congress, the President and the Supreme Court should violate their oath of office and betray the Constitution and the laws, but that is what must be done if the trade in intoxicating beer is to be reestablished."

Such a misstatement of fact bears challenging. The Volstead Act is a child of the Congress, which today can repeal it at will and can pass another bill, if it is desired, setting forth the limit of alcohole content to be not over three or five or ten or even twenty per cent by volume.

If your editorial writer was aware of this fact did he intend to infer that the Congress by such action would be betraying the Constitution and violating their oath of office?

If this inference was not intended, then, to say the least, I sincerely believe that your editorial column should be devoted to an explanation of your real meaning—this in justice to your many former admirers and constant readers.

BOYD W. PERKINS.

Discourtesy of Public Servants Brings Complaint From a Mother and Taxpayer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Within the past two weeks I have been badly treated by public servants; first at the public health clinic at Sixth and I streets, and, secondly, at the Board of Education.

The employes at these two institutions are paid by the taxpayers of the District. I contribute my share toward paying their salaries. Yet why am I treated like a "beggar with a tincup" when I call upon them to do the work I pay them to do?

I had two of my four little children vaccinated at the clinic because I can't afford to pay doctors' and dentists' bills on all four. Other parents were there with their children. The surliness, curtness and rudeness exhibited by the attendants does not reflect credit upon these employes or the heads who put them there. One not knowing the functions of this health clinic would think the patients were criminals and the attendants their jailors. Why can't these employes take pride in their work—for it is patriotic work to safeguard the health of our future generation? Why are they not made to realize that they are the "servants of the people?"

Our school system has received lots of criticism lately. No one knows whom to blame. But one knows exactly whom to blame when information can't be gotten over the telephone in regard to school matters. One knows whom to blame when treated with brusqueness and indifference by some girl who answers the phone at the Board of Education. Can't these telephone clerks be made to realize that a mother who is starting her child to school wants exact information? And if these clerks who receive the taxpayers' money can not give the correct information, shouldn't they be taught the meaning of the word "courtesy?"

If I am alone in my grievances, then I'll say our District government is the most efficiently managed in the world.

If others feel that there is no excuse for the two conditions herein mentioned, why not let the Commissioners know about them? They should be corrected.

MOTHER AND TAXPAYER.

Chain-Store Beer a Fiendish Suggestion, Says Miss Tilton.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thank heaven for your editorial of the 23d, telling the truth about this beer hullabaloo—this rousing of hoodlumism, principally by New York.

This is no way to cure depression—to sell beer not in saloons, but at soda fountains and chain stores. Fiends could hardly suggest a worse nostrum.

But the common safety sense of the people seems dumb. But you spoke. Now let others speak. Return of beer is a solar-plexus blow at our Supreme Court and at prosperity.

Dr. Cole Takes Time to Toss a Nice Bouquet to Henry West.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After all the years in which I have been a subscriber to The Washington Post I have not taken the time to say that of all the features run by your paper I appreciate Henry Litchfield West's articles appearing in the Sunday paper more than any one thing in the paper. They are especially interesting to us golf fans and as a matter of fact to all lovers of sport. Long may his pen scratch and find favor.

COUNTY TO MARK ITS BICENTENNIAL

Prince William Plans All-Day Picnic Today; Will Unveil Tablet.

Prince William County, Va., will celebrate its bicentennial at an all-day picnic at Woodbridge, on the Richmond and Frederick highway, today. A tablet will be unveiled on the spot where the first courthouse stood, at a site then known as Colchester, a name that has long since passed out of existence. A large part of the population of Prince William County is expected to attend the exercises and partake of the old-time Virginia dinner, which will be served shortly after noon.

The program will begin with a band concert at 10 o'clock. At 10:30 the children of the public schools and others will present a pageant which will depict events in the history of the county. Col. Wade Hampton Ellis, whose ancestral family, the Blackburns, founded the town of Colchester, will unveil the tablet at 12, with an address.

After lunch the exercises will be resumed with a band concert at 2 o'clock, during which patriotic airs will be played. At 2:15 the history of Prince William County will be retold in an address. From 2:45 to 3 o'clock there will be group singing of "Dixie," "In Virginia" and "Auld Lang Syne."

Among the speakers on the program are Senators Claude Swanson and Carter Glass, Judge Howard Smith and Charles C. Carlin.

The public schools of the county have declared a holiday for the day.

Head of Bar Group Hits U. S. Business Control

Hoboken, N. J., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Henry Ward Beer, president of the Federal Bar Association, declared in an address before the Kiwanis Club here today that Government supervision of business has proven "a giant failure and colossal blunder."

Mr. Beer, who is professor of anti-trust law at Brooklyn Law School and formerly served as trial counsel for the Federal Trade Commission, assailed what he declared to be a move on the part of the American Bar Association and big business to cripple the antitrust laws.

Cotton Crop Provides Work.

Helena, Ark., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Truck loads of men formerly unemployed left here today for the cotton fields of Phillips County, Ark., as a consequence of a campaign by authorities to supply planters with laborers through ordering the idle to work or submit to arrest as vagrants.

Virginia Blue Law Attack Filed Here

Indoor Golf Firm Takes Richmond Battle to Supreme Court.

(Associated Press.)

The Broad-Grace Arcade Corporation, of Richmond, yesterday filed a brief in the Supreme Court supporting its contention that a three-judge Federal Court erred in refusing to enjoin Richmond police from enforcing the Virginia Sunday "blue law."

The corporation, operating an indoor golf course, applied to the court here for review on May 20. The brief elaborated on the corporation's claim that it was denied the protection of the due process clause of the Constitution by enforcement of a law which it asserts is "uncertain and vague."

The "equal protection of the law" clause of the Constitution also was violated, the brief contended, when Richmond authorities proceeded against the golf course but at the same time allowed soft drink stands, auto repair garages and hotel cigar counters to operate on the Sabbath. The brief pointed to Sunday operation of both regular and putting golf courses in Henrico County.

Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Mosely, acting chief of staff of the Army, will address the opening session of the annual meeting in the Interior Department Building Auditorium here on October 7.

Other speakers will include Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke, and Magnus W. Alexander, president of the National Industrial Conference Board. Brig. Gen. Benedict Crowell, president of the association, will preside. The following day the association will adjourn to Aberdeen for its engineering and scientific session.

India Places Rupee Again on Gold Basis

Simla, India, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Sir George Schuster, minister of finance, announced in the legislative assembly today that operation of last Monday's ordinance suspending the statutory obligation to sell sterling or gold against rupees will be terminated.

The Indian government will take measures to control exchange transactions, he said, so that sales of foreign exchange can be limited to actual requirements for purposes of trade, for fulfillment of obligations made before last Monday, and for reasonable domestic requirements.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The Merchants Savings & Trust Co. failed to open for business today. It was the fourth bank to suspend business here this week. It had resources of approximately $1,200,000 and deposits of $800,000.

The Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., the Highland National Bank and the Franklin Savings & Trust Co. closed Monday.

After the ceremonies in Paris early in the summer incident to the United States Flag Association programs, which prompted Mrs. Strong's visit abroad this season, she made several visits to the Chateau Moussey which she donated five years ago to the French association of "Les Gueules Casses." Another point of interest during her stay abroad was the new American Church on the Quai d'Orsay, which was dedicated in midsummer, the ceremony attended by practically the entire American colony and many visiting Americans.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"LIBRA."

IF September 25 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:08 a. m. to noon, from 4:15 p. m. to 6:45 p. m. and from 9:35 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger hours are from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Strange and curious influences will be provoked by the planetary aspects of September 25. They will prompt sweeping changes in general, but you must not allow yourself to be stampeded. Delays will be evidenced on the one hand, while on the other sudden happenings will occur.

A child born on this September 25 will be quiet, affectionate and tractable. As the years roll on, it will grow more and more uncommunicative, but will always be very observant. Although not especially clever, it will be endowed with common sense and is destined to "make good."

You, if born on September 25, are often imposed upon because you are rather gullible and give yourself too freely to others. Any tale of woe, any sob story, enlists your attention and commands your assistance—often to the detriment of your individual and family interest. You must be more discriminating and curb your impulsive charitableness. The "good Samaritan" act is worthy of your emulation only when service rendered does not jeopardize the welfare of those near and dear to you.

You are very optimistic and enthusiastic and your buoyant disposition generally sees you through difficulties. You should not, however, bank too much on proverbial good luck. You are too imaginative to be practical and, if engaged in business, it is desirable that you should associate yourself with one whose feet are firmly "on the ground" so that your flights of fancy, before you begin to soar, are reduced to a dollar-and-cent basis.

If endowed with literary gifts, your ability to weave romance out of practically nothing should lead you to success. You are a loyal and true friend—except to yourself. As a husband or wife you will be complaisant, affectionate and demonstrative. As a parent you will indulge the whims of your children and overlook their defects, with anything but satisfactory results.

Successful people born on September 25:

Thomas Whittaker, author.
Alfred Vail, inventor.
Charles B. Cochran, English theatrical manager.
William LeB. Jenney, architect.
Vinnie Ream Hoxie, sculptor.
Thomas C. Chamberlin, geologist and educator.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ROSEBAY RHODODENDRONS.

THE rosebay rhododendron is probably the best broad-leaved evergreen we have for use in the shade. The flowers of this variety vary from rose color to purple and white.

When planting these shrubs I think it is best, when possible, to use a number of them in a group and always to plant them quite close together so that the roots are well shaded.

All varieties of rhododendrons are slow growers. This applies to roots as well as foliage; therefore, it always takes a plant a full year to become established in a new environment. This is a reason why the rhododendrons are expensive. The growers devote much time to developing a young plant for the market.

The first year is always the most important one for a rhododendron. I refer, of course, to a plant in the open garden. When first set out the rhododendron seems quite undecided whether to live or die. Later, after the first year, it will require little care, but the first summer it demands some coaxing.

Always when planting a rhododendron in the fall be sure to prepare the soil properly. Then consider the location. The rhododendron will never, no matter what variety you plant, do well in any but a sheltered place. If you have a north angle of the house, where you feel sure plants will never grow, but which is sheltered, that is just the place where the rhododendron will flourish.

If you set out one of these shrubs this fall, dig the hole very deep, as much as 3 feet. Break the soil into very fine particles. The rhododendron will delight in any good loam, but you should incorporate a generous portion of peat or leafmold with the soil. Be careful to see that the drainage is good, else the plant will die or, at least, be only a very indifferent specimen.

During the growing season the rhododendron must be given a great deal of water, and the roots of all varieties must be kept well mulched during the entire twelve months of the year. You may mulch with dead leaves, pine needles or peat moss.

Jane Interprets the Mode

A formal and stately tea gown of ruby red satin and brocaded velvet, with a twisted girdle of tiny gold beads. (Sketched in a New York shop).

New York, Sept. 24.

THERE'S always one frock in each large Paris opening that is worn by countless women, in countless materials and colors, because of its universal appeal and becomingness. This frock is spoken of, disrespectfully but graphically, as the season's Ford!

And the couturier who produced the frock that is seen everywhere this season is Lanvin. It's a really delightful frock, too, with great charm and general becomingness, and absolutely nothing banal or cheap about it. It's a frock which has elbow-length balloon sleeves and, oddly enough for daytime, is ankle-length.

Women know that they look more slender, tall and graceful as their dresses lengthen. There's an undeniable femininity about long skirts that simply doesn't exist in shorter ones. And this ankle-length skirt is long enough to suggest this slenderness and grace, and yet not so long as to be impractical.

'N' breathes there anywhere a woman with style-sense so dead that never to hearself hath she said: "I SHALL wear one of the new, modified Victorian frocks in spite of my fear of appearing extreme." This Lanvin frock uses the one best method to give the required old-time touch to the costume—the sleeve! Balloon sleeves inescapably mean a Second Empire costume, yet in their present-day version they are graceful and not too large. A leg-o'-mutton sleeve would be extreme, and uncomfortable, too, while the delightful little balloon sleeve on this Lanvin frock is subtly and gracefully reminiscent of olden times, and entirely in good taste!

Tea gowns have left frivolous fripperies behind, and have entered into the realm of stately graciousness that should, after all, belong to them more than to any other type of feminine attire! For it's at the tea hour that the woman relaxes and becomes her most charming, delightful, quiet self, and her clothes must be the frame for this mood of hers. The tea gown I sketch for you today, for instance, consists of a long plain undergown of dark red heavy satin, and a coat of velvet brocaded in horizontal stripes. The coat is perfectly simple, with sleeves that are split at the elbow and hang gracefully free from that point. And the girdle is a thick twist of fine, tiny gold beads, with a long beaded tassel!

When you entertain at tea before your own fireplace, delete as many useless floating ends and gadgets—for the fewer of these you have the smarter you will be!

* * * *

Gold kid and crimson velvet and a baby French heel and a spiky one, and a square toe, too, are reasons why I sketched the adorable boudoir slippers for you today!

* * * *

And the lovely part of it is, my deahs, when you wear the corsets I'm speaking about today, you don't get all stiff and bony and unbendable! 'N' any woman who has lived through the agonies of "breaking in" a new corset appreciates what this means. The corset I'm speaking about today doesn't let the figure wander at its own free will, either—it confines it gently and firmly in all the right places, and entirely does away with the bulge of fat that's pushed up around the waistline by so many corsets. And the best part of all is that to get this miraculous corset, which is an exact copy of my $60 one that I bought in Paris, you simply have to send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet!

Au revoir.

Faith in Officials Is Urged by Sizoo

District Heads Guests of Kiwanis as Pastor Speaks.

The world needs "a return of faith for men in public affairs," Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, yesterday told members of the Washington Kiwanis Club as it observed "District of Columbia Day" at the Washington Hotel.

District Commissioners Luther H. Reichelderfer and Herbert B. Crosby, who attended as guests of the club, heard Dr. Sizoo declare the world is suffering badly from a lost confidence in government. "A pentecost of faith in government" is what is needed, he said.

Other guests of the club included Judge H. W. Smith, of Alexandria, newly elected representative for the Northern District of Virginia, and Robert J. Cottrell, secretary of the Washington Board of Trade. Lewis T. Breuninger was program chairman and President Merritt O. Chance presided.

Cadet Named to Committee.

Cadet Jack G. Capers, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Capers, of this city, yesterday was named a member of the cadet committee of The Citadel, at Charleston, S. C., according to word received here. He will receive the degree of bachelor of science next June.

Bolshevism in U. S. Assailed by France

Former Senator, in Chicago Speech, Hits Government in Business.

Chicago, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Former Senator Joseph Irwin France of Maryland, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, spoke before a luncheon club today with a plea to "get the Government out of business."

"I never feared that bolshevism at Moscow menaced or would overcome us," he said. "Bolshevism at Washington was and is the peril of this Republic. Those to whom bolshevism is really repugnant should be warned that we had it here during the war and that the temple of our liberty has not yet been cleansed from its filth.

"Bolshevism suppressed free speech; so did we. They censored the press; so did we. They took over the railroads and coal mines; so did we. They had a food dictator; so did we. They established national prohibition; so did we. They took over telegraph wires and cables. This was attempted here."

Silver Star Awarded For Bravery in Battle

(Associated Press.)

For bravery in France thirteen years ago, Elmer C. Lindquist, then a first sergeant of Infantry, was awarded a silver star citation by the War Department yesterday. Lindquist is now a first sergeant, 118th Observation Squadron, Connecticut National Guard.

The citation "for gallantry in action near Greves Farm, France, July 14-15, 1918," relates that "during a heavy artillery barrage, Sergt. Lindquist, with utter disregard of his own personal danger, displayed great courage and devotion to duty in rendering first aid to the wounded."

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

DRAWING INCORRECT INFERENCES

THE language of Contract bidding is beautiful indeed. Partners, whose ears are attuned to evaluate correctly the responses they receive to their bids and fit the knowledge so obtained into the facts as to honor-tricks and distribution shown by their own hands, are able to make bids at the Contract table that to other players seem daring, perhaps foolhardy, but that are actually safe and in accordance with the best practice of expert players. Duplicate Contract, because it affords a comparative test of comparative play, is the favorite proving-ground of Contract theories. No theory of bidding is good unless, at the Contract table, it can be converted into a winning game.

The hand which furnishes the text of today's article was played in the recent Masters' Pair tournament for the Von Zedtwitz gold cup. This tournament was held at Asbury Park, N. J., last July.

North and South vulnerable. East and West not vulnerable. South, Dealer.

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1♣(1)
Pass(2)	1NT	Pass	2♡(3)
Pass	2NT(4)	Pass	3NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—East, Fourth Hand, holding 4 honor-tricks, opens the bidding.

2—It would be foolhardy for South to overcall in view of the fact that North and South are vulnerable. It is true his hand contains a six-card suit and a probable trick in clubs, but a set of 2 tricks would be a high price to pay, in view of the score, for defeating a non-vulnerable game. Furthermore, South is not even sure that a game will be bid or that, if it is bid, it will be made.

3—A strong rebid, as it may force West to a three club contract, if he lacks support for hearts and is again unwilling to bid notrump.

4—The bid of two notrump shows that West's notrump takeout was based on more than a minimum. The additional values are not great and many players with West's hand would not find them sufficient to court playing the hand in notrump, as West, who was an expert player, knew that his partner, also an expert, would read his rebid as showing additional strength, however slight, over the minimum shown by his notrump takeout of the opening bid.

In the play, North disregarding East's bid of two hearts, elected to open his longest suit. His hand contained a possible entry in the spade suit and a bare chance of getting in with a diamond. It seemed apparent that the major heart tenace was held over him, so he reasoned that nothing could be lost by the heart lead. As a matter of fact, while a diamond opening would have proved embarrassing, West could make game in notrump regardless of the suit opened, although the play against a diamond opening would border closely on "Double Dummy" play—that is, playing the cards as though all were exposed. To make game if diamonds were opened would involve passing the first lead of diamonds and capturing the second with the Ace. West would then lead a small spade and finesse the Knave in Dummy. This would be followed by three more rounds of spades. Following this West would lead the nine of hearts and what North did would be immaterial. If the nine was not covered it would be finessed and the remaining heart led from the West hand. If North played the Knave to the first lead, 3 heart tricks would be established by the immediate return of the suit and West would thus make one diamond, four spades, three hearts and one club for game.

TODAY'S POINTER.

To allow your opponents to take full advantage of approach methods of bidding unmolested, simply because you assume they can not score game, is an expensive policy. Each defensive bid judiciously made diminishes the number of low bids available to opponents. Consequently, they also increase the probability of guessing by the opponents and thus make reaching the correct declaration more improbable.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Youth in Turmoil.

DEAR Frances McDonald: One wouldn't think a freshman in college would have any troubles, and yet my life is such a mess. The family seem to do nothing but fight, and I can't even take a bath without some one yelling to hurry up. Is it any wonder that I want to get out? And this town is such a soggy place. I want to teach mathematics, and that requires a college education. Since I rely on dad for my bread and buttter, he seems to think that I am bound to him body and soul, as you might say. You can't expect me to accept that point of view. He even wants me to do as he says merely because he says so. I'll have to make the wheels go around without him some day, and I certainly will try out my own methods first. If I come to grief that will be my funeral. I envy any one who has proven he is worth his salt—and I will some day. But wait! Every time I try to think things out I always come to the same conclusion. Seven years is a long wait, and some times I think it isn't worth it. Things are pretty tangled, and the family is looking around for a place to dump me for the rest of the summer. Do you think that if I went away things would straighten out in the fall, or ought I to stay here and defy their every onset and smile? My one thought, my one object, is to own my own car and put my feet on the seat if I like and to rent an apartment where I may use all the electricity I like, &c. I could go on forever, but do you think I ought to forget independence, go away for the summer, and come back in the fall and make a fresh start? Has my dad the right to order me around, or ought I to defy him to do his worst? Do I owe the family a life-long obligation? Will I ever find happiness or at least peace?

I hope you can help, and thank you for trying. I know you will find the way out if there is one. If there isn't—well, there's always one way out.

MARGARET.

My dear child, even your handwriting betrays a mind utterly out of control. Calm down. The 4-year-old stamping his feet and yelling in rage is as controlled and as ready for life as you in your present mood.

Stop and study yourself. You are worth it you know. Look into the matter of you! What type are you? Do you know? Have you ever read anything about types? If not, why not? Begin now and find out just what it is in you that is causing this futile stamping of feet and yelling? Your big ambition is to put your feet on the cushion of the car? Brave and big, that program! And you want an apartment of your own where you can run up big light bills! Never suspecting that the moment you have an apartment of your own you will begin automatically to watch the light bill! In other words, with adult accomplishments come adult intelligence and sense of responsibility—in fact, the accomplishment depends upon the requirement of the intelligence and sense of responsibility.

What you need most is more respect for yourself. When you begin to respect your own intelligence you will stop stamping your feet and will begin to read about yourself—how you are made and why. You will then begin to comprehend the father who sees in you a future woman to be sheltered and protected as a young plant. In place of a tyrant you will see him as a friend, and a dear and devoted one. And about that time your handwriting will suddenly cease to be a frantic scrawl and take on new dignity and character. Will you do this? Go to the library and ask them for a book on handwriting. Then sit down, and with a sample of your writing, find out what I found out about you by reading your letter. Some of what you read will make you blush. But even that will be good for you. So do it.

And, of course, go away and have a good time, and start school again a much older and saner girl. Life is your apple, honey, but if you gulp it, it will make you sick. So take it slowly, and know how wonderful life can be.

ROCKVILLE FAIR SITE OFFERED TO COUNTY

Land Is Being Considered as Location for Schools; Is Declared Ideal.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Negotiations for the purchase of the Rockville Fair Grounds as a school site are being carried on by Montgomery County officials and the Montgomery Agricultural Society, it was learned last night. Fair officials, despairing of combating public sentiment against pari-mutuel betting at the annual Rockville fair, have offered the 32 acres of the Fair Grounds at Rockville to the county.

This offer would enable the county to secure what is believed to be an ideal site for the proposed Rockville Elementary School and for the future Central High School at an extremely reasonable figure and at the same time permit the fair association to get out from under without debts.

Fair Has Lost Money.

The fair for several years apparently has been losing ground, and this year, the seventy-eighth of its existence, was the worst in the history of the association. Fair officials announced at the close of the fair that unless pari-mutuel betting was permitted at the fair it probably had opened its doors for the last time. Since that time several organizations have adopted resolutions condemning the proposed betting at the fair and officials have conceived the sale of the Fair Grounds as a school site as the next best alternative.

Fair officials point out that the fair grounds presents an almost ideal location for a school site which would care for the needs of central Montgomery County for many years. The people of Rockville have been seeking a school site for several years and various civic groups of the town are discussing several four and five acre tracts which would cost from $12,000 to $20,000. The new elementary school unit could be built at once on the fair grounds and the high school, as well as the elementary school, could enjoy the use of the fine athletic field made possible by the purchase of the grounds. When the number of students at the Rockville High School increases enough to warrant, new high school units also could be built there without impairing the value as an elementary site.

Have Business Possibility.

It also is pointed out that the grounds present a very valuable business possibility and could be sold by the county at a future date at a good profit. Closing of the fair grounds will mean also that the county school officials must seek another place for the annual county-wide athletic meets, although this need probably could be taken care of in the suburban park areas. Should the grounds be bought by the school system, however, the annual meet could continue in the large oval at the center of the tract.

No definite understanding has been reached as to price but it is understood that the county is willing to pay approximately $1,000 an acre for the property, which would cover the debt of the fair association.

County officials have not committed themselves to the project but are feeling their way with a view to ascertaining public sentiment. The negotiations have been carried on quietly.

Court's Rights Denied In Scholarship Award

Alleging that the awarding of scholarships is left to the school board and the circuit court has no jurisdiction in the matter, Olge Marbury, attorney for the Prince Georges County school board yesterday filed an answer to the mandamus proceedings instituted by Forrest D. Bowie, of Largo.

The answer also said that evidence produced to show that young Bowie had been a student in the county schools was "meager, fragmentary, and not supported by the records of the school board." The Bowie boy filed suit to compel the board to award him the scholarship to Charlotte Hall School, after he had attained the highest mark in a competitive examination.

When he applied for a marriage license in Marlboro, Md., last Tuesday, he gave the girl's age as 18 and she is only 16, the mother says. His own age he gave as 24.

West Falls Church Pastor To Retire After 22 Years

The Rev. A. J. Inglegem, of St. James and El Nido Churches, Tenders Resignation Because of Age and Illness; Farewell Reception Planned.

The Rev. A. J. Van Inglegem, who for 22 years has been pastor of St. James Catholic Church at West Falls Church, Va., has tendered his resignation to the Right Rev. A. J. Brennan, Bishop of Richmond, and on October 2 will retire from the pastorate of St. James and El Nido Churches.

"Father Van," as he is affectionately known in Fairfax County, is dean of the Catholic clergy in Virginia, and it is understood that he will become chaplain to a religious order in Richmond, where his duties will not be arduous. For several years "Father Van" has been ill and this, combined with his advancing years, have caused his resignation.

About three years ago Father Van Inglegem celebrated the golden anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood and a large reception was held attended by members of all faiths.

Members of St. James and El Nido Churches are preparing a farewell reception to Father Van next Thursday evening, the day before he leaves for Richmond. The Rev. Thomas J. Walsh, assistant pastor of St. James' Church, will have temporary charge of the churches of the parish until a successor is appointed. The congregation of St. James' Church seek to have Father Walsh appointed to the pastorate. Petitions bearing signatures of all the members of St. James' and El Nido Churches are being sent to Richmond.

ANTIQUE COLLECTION SOUGHT FOR TAVERN

Post of Alexandria Legion Hopes to Obtain Relics for 1932 Exhibit.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU, 907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va. Phone Alexandria 523.

One of the finest collections of antiques, valued at more than $100,000, may be brought to Alexandria and exhibited in historic Gadsby's Tavern in 1932, according to reports. The collection consists of furniture, paintings, &c., and, it is believed, would attract thousands of persons to the tavern.

This old tavern, now the property of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, has been opened to visitors for some time, having been restored as nearly as possible with the limited information at hand, to its condition when it was occupied by Gen. George Washington as his headquarters.

It is the intention of the legion post eventually to furnish it appropriately to the period and, if the collection for which Alexandria citizens are negotiating can be secured it will add greatly to the interest.

A meeting will be held early in October by the Alexandria United Charities to map plans for relieving the city's poor during the winter. A preliminary meeting was held yesterday, when William Albert Smoot, president of the organization, briefly outlined tentative plans.

Grady Thomas, colored, of Wilson, N. C., was almost decapitated yesterday morning, the accident occurring while he was apparently asleep on the tracks of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad at Cameron Yards, near Alexandria. A companion escaped injury. Railroad officials who investigated were unable to say which train struck the man.

Randolph Chapter, Rose Croix; Lafayette Council, Knight Kadosh, and the Virginia Consistory, Scottish Rite Masons, will hold a stated communication at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Scottish Rite Club, North Alfred street, when matters of importance relative to the coming fall reunion will be discussed.

Maryland Labor Urged by Citizens

Federation's Resolution Is Sent to Governor and Other Officials.

The Prince Georges County Federation of Citizens Associations has gone on record as favoring a clause in all contracts for public works making it obligatory for the contractors to use Maryland labor, and a copy of the resolution has been sent to Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and other agencies.

The Prince Georges County Commissioners, the State Roads Commission, and the Suburban Sanitary Commission have been notified of the federation's stand. The resolution was adopted at the quarterly meeting held in St. Luke's Parish Hall, in Bladensburg.

The body also was notified that the State Roads Commission will put stop signs at all roads leading into the Defense highway in the vicinity of Seabrook. There have been a number of accidents at these points lately.

Alexandria Group Hears Candidates

J. W. Rust Tells Kiwanis Club How Virginia Aided Nation.

He traced the history of Virginia from Colonial days to the present time, and referred to the part taken by Virginians in the National Government.

Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, Democratic candidate for the Legislature from Fairfax County, also spoke and pledged his support not only to his county of Fairfax but also to Alexandria, if elected.

George W. Herring, nominee from Prince William County, and J. Fred Birrell, Alexandria's candidate, made short talks. The program was in charge of Harry Hammond.

Selling of Wine Bricks Held Illegal in Virginia

Richmond, Va., Sept. 24 (A.P.). Sale of wine bricks is against the law in Virginia in the verbal opinion given out here today by Assistant Attorney General Edwin H. Gibson. Maj. Gibson said that wine bricks, from which it is possible to make wine, are materials for making ardent spirits and "so are against the law."

He expressed the opinion also that malt extract is being sold in technical violation of the law.

A sample wine brick was being tested today at the direction of the attorney general to determine its ingredients and whether wine would result when it was placed in water and allowed to ferment.

School Purchase Of Land Approved

Committee Inspects Site for New Building at Fairland, Md.

Purchase of an additional four acres for the Fairland School at Fairland, Md., was decided upon yesterday by a joint committee of school and county officials following an inspection of the property. The land to be acquired is owned by Howard Marlow.

The State Legislature authorized expenditure of $35,000 for the land and erection of the first unit of the school. Plans call for a one-story brick building of two classrooms and an auditorium and other additions are provided to be made later in the plans of Howard Cutler, architect.

Those who participated in the inspection were Lacy Shaw, president of the Montgomery County Commissioners; O. W. Roby, member of the State Legislature from the county; A. C. Bready, principal of the school; Mrs. O. W. Roby, a trustee; Mrs. Walter Perry, of the county school board; Mr. Cutler and W. B. Walters, a trustee.

OFFICE SEEKERS VIE FOR LYON PARK VOTE

Five Commonwealth Attorney Candidates Speak at Citizens' Sessions.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST. Tel. Clar. 509 Clarendon, Va.

Five candidates for the office of Commonwealth attorney of Arlington County in the election to be held November 3, spoke at a meeting of the Lyon Park Citizens Association at the Community House last night.

They were William C. Gloth, incumbent; Clarence R. Ahalt, Amos C. Crounse, Lawrence Douglas and Emery N. Hosmer. Gloth is seeking his third term. He said, in part:

"I have been in public office in Arlington County for the last 16 years, for eight years serving as judge of the Police Court. The Commonwealth's attorney is not only a prosecutor but the legal adviser of all county officials. There is no organized crime and there will be none as long as I am in the office."

Mr. Ahalt declared the county needs a new Commonwealth attorney under the new form of government in effect after the first of the year. Criminal practice is a minor consideration, he said, as the work as legal adviser to officials of the county is much more important. "When the voters of Arlington County reach a point that they elect to public office men aspiring to serve, rather than to boss we have a chance of getting somewhere," he concluded.

Mr. Crounse declared the county is embarking upon a new form of government and will have a new county court, therefore it should have a new Commonwealth attorney.

Mr. Douglas, also opposing Mr. Gloth, declared that in the office of Commonwealth attorney the criminal and civil work are of equal importance.

Mr. Hosmer, last speaker for the office, spoke of his service in the World War and assured the voters if elected he would give the office the attention it required.

Hugh Reid, Democratic candidate for reelection to the house of delegates, gave a brief outline of the efforts of himself and State Senator Frank L. Ball in bringing about the change in the form of county government.

J. Foster Hagan, Republican opposing Mr. Reid, said he is most interested in seeing the educational facilities of Arlington County increased.

Arthur Orr, president of the Lyon Park Citizens Association, announced that next Thursday evening candidates for the office of sheriff and commissioner of revenue will be heard.

Names of candidates for membership on the county board will appear on election ballots in alphabetical order, according to an announcement yesterday by Claude O. Thomas, secretary of the election board.

Names of candidates for other offices at the election November 3 will appear on ballots as filed and certified. The change, as explained by Mr. Thomas, is that the board feels that much time will be saved in voting because of the innovation.

Contract for printing of ballots has been awarded to the Colonial Printery, Inc., Clarendon.

Refusal of the five Republican candidates for membership on the county board to permit consideration of their names by the Arlington County Better Government League last night drew the fire of John A. Petty, president of the Livingstone Heights Civic League and a delegate to the Arlington County Civic Federation. The latter organization sponsored the change in the form of county government.

Mr. Petty, who is credited by the Civic Federation with having been largely responsible for having his community, one of the smallest in Arlington County, rank third in number of signers of the court petition asking for a change in government, denounces the attempt of the Republicans to elect an all-Republican board.

Woman Loses Divorce Suit; Admits Selling Cook Stove

Ruling that the plaintiff had "used the best method to make him (her husband) leave home; to sell the cook stove is the surest way for a wife to get rid of a husband she does not want," Judge Robert B. Peter, in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, yesterday dismissed the petition for divorce of Mrs. Carolyn E. Stivers, of Rockville, Md.

The wife alleged that William Thomas Stivers, of Elkridge, Md., had treated her in a brutal manner and then deserted her and that he refused to support her or their child. The husband denied the desertion, but said that she refused to cook his meals and to live with him. The wife told the court that she sold the cook stove to buy provisions.

The judge ordered the husband to pay $25 a month maintenance to the plaintiff, who was awarded custody of the 8-year-old daughter.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

THE CITY NEGRO'S HEALTH.

NORTHERN cities are finding their large Negro populations a distinct health burden. There is no evidence that when they came North they brought typhoid or malaria with them, for these diseases continue to decline in those places into which there has been a heavy Negro migration in the last 20 years. It is thought that their presence has added to the increased difficulty in controlling smallpox, though the evidence on that point is not conclusive.

The States of the upper Mississippi Valley into which the tide has flown so strongly are having an excessive amount of smallpox and are finding it difficult to control.

An increase of consumption was anticipated. Something operated to halt the decrease in the consumption rate for several years, but within the last year or two the rate has again decreased.

The principal difficulty has fallen on hospitals. A report by Dr. F. P. Allen, on a Cincinnati study, indicates that they are adding to the heart disease rate and can be expected to do so increasingly as their average age increases and as they break more and more under heavy labor.

It is estimated that in Cincinnati about one-seventh of the total population is Negro. In a detailed study of 1,000, Dr. Allen found only one who was free from all physical defects, organic defects, and evidence of disease.

Of the thousand, 966 had some kind of malformation; 566 had some type of heart abnormality. This was very much the most serious of the several findings. Many of the physical defects were of minor importance. Some could be easily remedied and many did not do any particular harm. What most of the Negroes needed, more than anything else, was some training in habits. The heart situation was of greater significance. A large proportion of those found with abnormal hearts can be expected to have a break in compensation before many years.

While they are now working, making a living, and, in most cases, feeling no heart symptoms, they can anticipate the time when they must be cared for either by their savings, by the family, or by the public. The incapacity occasioned by heart disease is prolonged. This group ranks with consumption and cancer as impoverishing diseases.

RHEUMATIC HEADACHES.

J. M. writes: Is there such a thing as rheumatism of the head? It seems to be worse when awakening.

REPLY.

Rheumatism of the head is one of the causes of headache. Headaches that are relieved by salicylates or aspirin are likely to be rheumatic.

IT USUALLY IS SAFE.

H. A. writes: Do you think it wise for second or third cousins to marry? On account of the relationship would there be any danger that children from this marriage would not be normal?

REPLY.

From the eugenics standpoint the marriage of second cousins and third cousins is safe. There is rarely an exception, and then only where an inheritable quality is thoroughly grounded in the stock.

Europe Gets Taste For U. S. Grapefruit

Jacksonville, Fla. (A.P.).—American citrus fruits are coming into competition with figs, wines and other drinks and delicacies on the European dining table, and the Department of Commerce office here finds the exports are growing.

Twenty years ago grapefruit was unheard of in England and much of Europe. In the season recently ended 408,000 boxes were shipped abroad from American ports.

France has been found a difficult market, as the wide use of wine discourages use of the fruit.

BEACH SIMPLIFIES ESCAPE FROM HEAT

Advantages Secured at Post Property With Minimum of Expenditure.

When nature supplies a beautiful spot in which to get away from the heat and dirt of the city at the season when hot weather is causing great discomfort, it is up to the public to take advantage of that place to the fullest extent.

Just such a spot is Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development on the South River in Maryland. It offers a place to rest or play and without the cost of doing the same things at resorts where one must live in hotels.

Woodland Beach lots are being offered to Capital residents at $93. Terms have been arranged whereby the purchaser of property there need pay only $9 down, together with a subscription to The Washington Post, the remainder to be cleared through monthly installments of $3.50. There are no interest charges to be met.

Surely along the four and one-half miles of waterfront at the beach there is a choice location on which you would like to build that summer cottage you have always wanted. Run out to the beach and look around. Think of the fun you and your friends can have with week-end and overnight outings in such surroundings. Think of the days spent bathing, boating and fishing when others are worrying about the heat. Think of the advantages of having the children in a safe, comfortable place during the warm months.

Then buy before that spot which appeals to you is snapped up by some one else with just the same idea.

Economies Are Ordered By Justice Department

It was announced yesterday at the Department of Justice that an order to reduce expenditures and conserve appropriations has been sent to all officers and employees of the department, the United States courts and penal institutions, and is to apply in all cases except where otherwise provided by specific statute. It is estimated that the change will effect a saving of about a $1,000 a day in the expenditures.

The order provides that "the per diem allowance in lieu of subsistence now fixed at $6 is reduced to $5, and the limitation on actuel expenses of subsistence now fixed at $7 a day is reduced to $6 a day, effective October 1."

Thieves Smash Store Door; Take $530 Loot

Jewlery and clothing valued at $530 was yesterday reported stolen from the Moskin Credit Clothing Co., 729 Seventh street northwest.

James H. Martin, store manager, told police that when he opened the establishment yesterday morning he found the rear door broken open and the store ransacked.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

FOR the benefit of those who may wonder why the engagement of the George C. Tyler revival of Sir James M. Barrie's play of "The Admirable Crichton" is announced to begin at the National Theater on Tuesday, October 6, a most interesting explanation has just been given by Mr. G. Horace Mortimer, outrider for this splendid production, which is making an astonishing record on the road, despite the economic depression and reputed low estate of the theater in the hinterland.

Because it was deemed the ideal vehicle with which to test the road public's willingness to react to an attraction of the first rank, interpreted by players of such accomplishment and renown as Walter Hampden, Fay Bainter, Sydney Greenstreet, Effie Shannon and numerous others of like standing, "The Admirable Crichton" was selected as one of the first road enterprises to be allied with the "Save Our Stage" campaign fostered by the T. P. R. O. A., the national organization of publicists of which the full name is Theatrical Press Representatives of America.

So it is that in line with the fixed policy of the T. P. R. O. A., with which George C. Tyler is one of the few producing managers to be wholly in sympathy and cooperation, the Barrie revival is being routed to as many cities as possible where civic interest has given promise of adequate support to protect the investment.

The company's itinerary, worked out by the most expert theatrical minds in the business, is such that Richmond, Va., where marked interest in the presentation of the play has been manifested, can only be played by snipping the Monday performance off of the Washington engagement and sandwiching Richmond in between the Baltimore and Washington runs. So now you know.

It is interesting to know that Mr. Mortimer, during his first few weeks out of New York, has become convinced that a worthy attraction has a better chance of profitable support "on the road" than it has on Broadway this season.

The response to the Tyler gesture, designed to test the worthiness of the "S. O. S." movement sponsored by the press representatives, so far has been no less than amazing. It is for this reason that "The Admirable Crichton" has been given a tentative route of 30 weeks, or more, to the Coast and back, with performances scheduled in not less than 35 States in the Union.

The road seems to be there, now where are the rest of the managers as courageous as Mr. Tyler?

This business of meeting visiting luminaries of the stage and screen who travel by plane is getting to be a habit with some of us whose timidity normally prevents our visiting an airport for any other purpose.

This afternoon at 2:40, Fifi Dorsay, the famous comedienne with the Parisian pep, will arrive at the Washington-Hoover Airport by Ludington Line, preparatory to a week of personal appearances at the Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow afternoon. It is the present plan of the Earle management to have Miss Dorsay greeted upon alighting from the heavens by a large group of representatives of the press, a delegation from the National Association of Accent Benders and the Earle fifi and drum corps.

Miss Dorsay—and I presume it should be written D'Orsay, since there seems to be one of those little jiggers on the typewriter—is making a vaudeville tour of a dozen cities before returning to Hollywood to resume her colorful career in pictures. She is accompanied by her aunt and sister.

Incidentally, I am tipped off by the helpful Mr. La Falce, of the Warner Brothers' local executive offices, that a sure way to arouse the full destructive force of Miss D'Orsay's—atta napostrophe!—explosive Gallic ire is to let her hear you humming or whistling the tune of that interminable chansonette, "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean."

It seems that when she was playing in the "Greenwich Village Follies," in which for a long time she was content to do an apache dance with a male partner, she made the fatal error of suggesting that she be permitted to follow the Messrs. G. and S., with a French version of a chorus or two.

The darn thing made such a hit that Miss D'Orsay estimates that she only sang it about five or six million times! Hence . . . . . .

Last three days for that dip in the Crystal Pool out at Glen Echo.

Just to prove that you didn't know everything there is to know about Hollywood, after all, Hollywood isn't a city, but a borough.

And if you want to know how it came to be called that, it was named by Mrs. Daeida Wilcox in 1885, when she gave that name to her husband's ranch.

Hollywood has the largest municipal park in the United States, Griffith Park, a preserve of 3,751 acres. Oh, Mr. Grant, how many acres is Rock Creek Park?

And—you'll die at this, what with all those wild tales coming out of the town all the time—the city also boasts 43 churches!

And they do say that there isn't a decent, not even a half-way decent, speakeasy in town.

What you say we go to Agua Caliente, instead?

Gaming Charges Placed As Man Is Seized in Raid

A garage in the rear of 1417 Irving street northwest, was raided yesterday afternoon by H. G. Wannamaker and J. K. Baker, of the headquarters vice squad, and Fred Saffrell, 30 years old, of 217 Q street northwest, was arrested and charged with permitting gaming.

A quantity of slips and "number" books was seized. Police are investigating reports that Saffrell is the head of the "number" racket in the upper northwest section of the city. He was released on $500 cash bond.

Indicted Man Commits Suicide With Auto Gas

Special to The Washington Post.

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Sept. 24.—Frank Reibert, 44, under indictment in Jefferson County for implication in a series of thefts here, was found dead here in the closed garage at his home this morning, the engine of his automobile running and the exhaust pipe run up through the floor of his car. He had been missing all night.

Relatives said he had been brooding over impending trial. He was indicted with three others, two of whom pleaded guilty; the fourth is still at large. The case was pronounced a suicide, and no inquest ordered. Reibert conducted a pool room here.

DISORDERED STOMACH

Ocala, Fla.—"Last fall I became nervous and terribly run-down, lost weight and couldn't sleep well at night; my appetite was very poor and what little food I did eat didn't agree with me—my stomach seemed to be out of order most of the time," said Mrs. I. J. Yandle of 1232 No. Osceola St. "But when I had completed the third bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I had gained in weight, enjoyed my meals thoroughly, slept well at night and my general health was normal."

POLITICAL CLUB QUIZ BARES TWO KILLINGS

Gambling and Liquor Selling Described to Tammany Probe Group.

New York, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Gambling, liquor selling and a double killing were described today to the Hofstadter legislative committee as incidents in the night life behind the heavily barred doors of Tammany district clubhouses.

A city detective, discussing two slayings in 1926, which, he said, occurred in a club headed by Harry C Perry, chief clerk of the city court, testified that police had known for five years the identity of "the actual perpetrator" of the killings.

To back up his contention before the committee investigating the municipal government he presented a police "wanted card" bearing a picture of the suspect.

"Is there an indictment pending or has a bench warrant ever been issued for this man?" asked State Senator John J. McNaboe, Democrat.

"No," replied the witness, Detective John O'Neil.

After a long argument the committee voted to admit into its records the "wanted card" and photograph which gave the suspect's name as Lorenzo Fuzzio, alias Larry Young Gilmore, 38.

Earlier in the day Capt. Lewis J. Valentine, a former police inspector, told of what he called unsuccessful attempts to persuade Perry and John H. McCooey, Democratic chieftain in Brooklyn, to suppress gambling in Democratic clubs.

He also testified that liquor had been on sale in a gambling room of Sheriff Thomas M. Farley's club and that a loaded revolver was found when police raided the place.

The story of all raids on the clubs was much the same. Seldom was any one convicted on the gambling charges.

As an example, the captain cited that when 82 men arrested in the Perry Club were haled into court, all were discharged after it had been pointed out no complaint had been made by the landlord (Perry) or by the tenants (members of the club).

Valentine said it was while a Democratic Club headed by former Alderman Peter J McGuinness was under observation that he was sent by the police commissioner (George McLaughlin) to McCooey with a direct plea for assistance.

"The commissioner told me to ask McCooey to suppress the gambling there before a scandal resulted," the witness testified. "Large numbers of men, particularly railroad employes in yards nearby, were losing their money to professional gamblers.

"He asked me to urge McCooey to put a stop to it so the organization would not be scandalized.

"I did this. McCooey thanked me, thanked the commissioner and said he would see McGuinness that night. Apparently it did no good. We kept the place under observation for three or four weeks, had men in there who played, and finally made the raid."

The testimony disclosed that all the prisoners except four were discharged immediately and three of the remaining four were subsequently acquitted.

New York Borrows At Record Low Rate

New York, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—New York City today arranged to borrow $52,000,000 in the short-term money market at a record low rate for its municipal financing.

Four banks—the Chase National, National City, Empire Trust Co., and Barr Bros. & Co., Inc., extended the loan. The city obtained $46,000,000 at 1¾ per cent on three-month notes, and $6,000,000 at 1½ per cent on four-month notes.

OFFICIALS CHECKING GUN VICTIM'S VISITS

Movements of Marr During Several Hours Prior to Shooting Traced.

Prince Georges County police investigating the death of Alem K. Marr are making a strenuous effort to learn where the man spent the day and night before his shot-riddled body was found in the kitchen of the caretaker's home of the Glebe Club at Mount Calvert, Md.

Authorities spent several hours yesterday in interviewing persons whom the man was known to visit. His movements between 11 o'clock the day before his death and 4 o'clock in the morning before his body was found are unaccounted for. He was killed about 9:30 Saturday morning. Friday morning he visited Marlboro and cashed a check, and at 11 o'clock that morning he was seen walking along the tracks of the Chesapeake Beach Railway in the direction of his home. About 4 o'clock Saturday morning he went to the home of George McKinzie, where he was later shot.

County police took up the investigation under the direction of Alan Bowie, State's attorney, after the accident theory accepted by the sheriff's office was rejected by a coroner's jury. Accused by the 8-year-old George McKinzie, jr., two younger McKinzie boys were said to have confessed the shooting to a neighbor. The verdict rendered at the inquest, however, absolved the boys of blame

Insects Swamp Homes As Fire Fails in Its Aim

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 24 (U.P.).—The West Utica insect plague became city-wide today as a result of the fire department's efforts to solve the problem.

The millions of insects, which have not yet been identified, but which look like grasshoppers and sound like crickets, were attacked at the west side dumping grounds, where they have darkened an area ten blocks square. Firemen sprayed gasoline over the dumps then ignited them. The flames immediately surrounded the attackers and only by quick action did they escape serious injury.

Furthermore, the fire only served to send the insects to shelter in Utica homes. Frantic citizens reported their houses filled with them. Health and fire department heads are at the end of their resources.

Federal Reserve Rate Remains Unchanged

New York, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The New York Federal Reserve Bank announced no change in its rediscount rate of 1½ per cent following a meeting of the board of directors today.

BEACH SIMPLIFIES ESCAPE FROM HEAT

Advantages Secured at Post Property With Minimum of Expenditure.

When nature supplies a beautiful spot in which to get away from the heat and dirt of the city at the season when hot weather is causing great discomfort, it is up to the public to take advantage of that place to the fullest extent.

Just such a spot is Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home development on the South River in Maryland. It offers a place to rest or play and without the cost of doing the same things at resorts where one must live in hotels.

Woodland Beach lots are being offered to Capital residents at $93. Terms have been arranged whereby the purchaser of property there need pay only $9 down, together with a subscription to The Washington Post, the remainder to be cleared through monthly installments of $3.50. There are no interest charges to be met.

Surely along the four and one-half miles of waterfront at the beach there is a choice location on which you would like to build that summer cottage you have always wanted. Run out to the beach and look around. Think of the fun you and your friends can have with week-end and overnight outings in such surroundings. Think of the days spent bathing, boating and fishing when others are worrying about the heat. Think of the advantages of having the children in a safe, comfortable place during the warm months.

Then buy before that spot which appeals to you is snapped up by some one else with just the same idea.

Economies Are Ordered By Justice Department

It was announced yesterday at the Department of Justice that an order to reduce expenditures and conserve appropriations has been sent to all officers and employees of the department, the United States courts and penal institutions, and is to apply in all cases except where otherwise provided by specific statute. It is estimated that the change will effect a saving of about a $1,000 a day in the expenditures.

The order provides that "the per diem allowance in lieu of subsistence now fixed at $6 is reduced to $5, and the limitation on actuel expenses of subsistence now fixed at $7 a day is reduced to $6 a day, effective October 1."

Thieves Smash Store Door; Take $530 Loot

Jewlery and clothing valued at $530 was yesterday reported stolen from the Moskin Credit Clothing Co., 729 Seventh street northwest.

James H. Martin, store manager, told police that when he opened the establishment yesterday morning he found the rear door broken open and the store ransacked.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

FOR the benefit of those who may wonder why the engagement of the George C. Tyler revival of Sir James M. Barrie's play of "The Admirable Crichton" is announced to begin at the National Theater on Tuesday, October 6, a most interesting explanation has just been given by Mr. G Horace Mortimer, outrider for this splendid production, which is making an astonishing record on the road, despits the economic depression and reputed low estate of the theater in the hinterland.

Because it was deemed the ideal vehicle with which to test the road public's willingness to react to an attraction of the first rank, interpreted by players of such accomplishment and renown as Walter Hampden, Fay Bainter, Sydney Greenstreet, Effie Shannon and numerous others of like standing, "The Admirable Crichton" was selected as one of the first road enterprises to be allied with the "Save Our Stage" campaign fostered by the T. P. R. O. A., the national organization of publicists of which the full name is Theatrical Press Representatives of America.

So it is that in line with the fixed policy of the T. P. R. O. A., with which George C. Tyler is one of the few producing managers to be wholly in sympathy and cooperation, the Barrie revival is being routed to as many cities as possible where civic interest has given promise of adequate support to protect the investment.

The company's itinerary, worked out by the most expert theatrical minds in the business, is such that Richmond, Va., where marked interest in the presentation of the play has been manifested, can only be played by snipping the Monday performance off of the Washington engagement and sandwiching Richmond in between the Baltimore and Washington runs. So now you know.

It is interesting to know that Mr. Mortimer, during his first few weeks out of New York, has become convinced that a worthy attraction has a better chance of profitable support "on the road" than it has on Broadway this season.

The response to the Tyler gesture, designed to test the worthiness of the "S. O. S." movement sponsored by the press representatives, so far has been no less than amazing. It is for this reason that "The Admirable Crichton" has been given a tentative route of 30 weeks, or more, to the Coast and back, with performances scheduled in not less than 35 States in the Union.

The road seems to be there, now where are the rest of the managers as courageous as Mr. Tyler?

This business of meeting visiting luminaries of the stage and screen who travel by plane is getting to be a habit with some of us whose timidity normally prevents our visiting an airport for any other purpose.

This afternoon at 2:40, Fifi Dorsay, the famous comedienne with the Parisian pep, will arrive at the Washington-Hoover Airport by Ludington Line, preparatory to a week of personal appearances at the Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow afternoon. It is the present plan of the Earle management to have Miss Dorsay greeted upon alighting from the heavens by a large group of representatives of the press, a delegation from the National Association of Accent Benders and the Earle fifi and drum corps.

Miss Dorsay—and I presume it should be written D'Orsay, since there seems to be one of those little jiggers on the typewriter—is making a vaudeville tour of a dozen cities before returning to Hollywood to resume her colorful career in pictures. She is accompanied by her aunt and sister.

Incidentally, I am tipped off by the helpful Mr. La Falce, of the Warner Brothers' local executive offices, that a sure way to arouse the full destructive force of Miss D'Orsay's—atta napostrophe!—explosive Gallic ire is to let her hear you humming or whistling the tune of that interminable chansonette, "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean."

It seems that when she was playing in the "Greenwich Village Follies," in which for a long time she was content to do an apache dance with a male partner, she made the fatal error of suggesting that she be permitted to follow the Mesars. G. and S., with a French version of a chorus or two.

The darn thing made such a hit that Miss D'Orsay estimates that she only sang it about five or six million times! Hence . . . . . .

Last three days for that dip in the Crystal Pool out at Glen Echo.

Just to prove that you didn't know everything there is to know about Hollywood, after all, Hollywood isn't a city, but a borough.

And if you want to know how it came to be called that, it was named by Mrs. Daeida Wilcox in 1885, when she gave that name to her husband's ranch.

Hollywood has the largest municipal park in the United States, Griffith Park, a preserve of 3,751 acres. Oh, Mr. Grant, how many acres is Rock Creek Park?

And—you'll die at this, what with all those wild tales coming out of the town all the time—the city also boasts 43 churches!

And they do say that there isn't a decent, not even a half-way decent, speakeasy in town.

What you say we go to Agua Caliente, instead?

Gaming Charges Placed As Man Is Seized in Raid

A garage in the rear of 1417 Irving street northwest, was raided yesterday afternoon by H. G. Wannamaker and J. K. Baker, of the headquarters vice squad, and Fred Saffrell, 30 years old, of 217 Q street northwest, was arrested and charged with permitting gaming.

A quantity of slips and "number" books was seized. Police are investigating reports that Saffrell is the head of the "number" racket in the upper northwest section of the city. He was released on $500 cash bond.

Indicted Man Commits Suicide With Auto Gas

Special to The Washington Post.

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Sept. 24.—Frank Reibert, 44, under indictment in Jefferson County for implication in a series of thefts here, was found dead here in the closed garage at his home this morning, the engine of his automobile running and the exhaust pipe run up through the floor of his car. He had been missing all night.

Relatives said he had been brooding over impending trial. He was indicted with three others, two of whom pleaded guilty; the fourth is still at large. The case was pronounced a suicide, and no inquest ordered. Reibert conducted a pool room here.

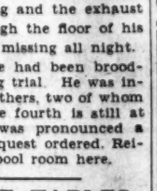
DISORDERED STOMACH



Ocala, Fla.—"Last fall I became nervous and terribly run-down, lost weight and couldn't sleep well at night; my appetite was very poor and what little food I did eat didn't agree with me—my stomach seemed to be out of order most of the time," said Mrs. I. J. Yandle of 1232 No. Osceola St. "But when I had completed the third bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I had gained in weight, enjoyed my meals thoroughly, slept well at night and my general health was normal."

POLITICAL CLUB QUIZ BARES TWO KILLINGS

Gambling and Liquor Selling Described to Tammany Probe Group.

New York, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Gambling, liquor selling and a double killing were described today to the Hofstadter legislative committee as incidents in the night life behind the heavily barred doors of Tammany district clubhouses.

A city detective, discussing two slayings in 1926, which, he said, occurred in a club headed by Harry C Perry, chief clerk of the city court, testified that police had known for five years the identity of "the actual perpetrator" of the killings.

To back up his contention before the committee investigating the municipal government he presented a police "wanted card" bearing a picture of the suspect.

"Is there an indictment pending or has a bench warrant ever been issued for this man?" asked State Senator John J. McNaboe, Democrat.

"No," replied the witness, Detective John O'Neill.

After a long argument the committee voted to admit into its records the "wanted card" and photograph which gave the suspect's name as Lorenzo Fuzzio, alias Larry Young Gilmore, 38.

Earlier in the day Capt. Lewis J. Valentine, a former police inspector, told of what he called unsuccessful attempts to persuade Perry and John H. McCooey, Democratic chieftain in Brooklyn, to suppress gambling in Democratic clubs.

He also testified that liquor had been on sale in a gambling room of Sheriff Thomas M. Farley's club and that a loaded revolver was found when police raided the place.

The story of all raids on the clubs was much the same. Seldom was any one convicted on the gambling charges.

As an example, the captain cited that when 82 men arrested in the Perry Club were haled into court, all were discharged after it had been pointed out no complaint had been made by the landlord (Perry) or by the tenants (members of the club).

Valentine said it was while a Democratic Club headed by former Alderman Peter J McGuinness was under observation that he was sent by the police commissioner (George McLaughlin) to McCooey with a direct plea for assistance.

"The commissioner told me to ask McCooey to suppress the gambling there before a scandal resulted," the witness testified. "Large numbers of men, particularly railroad employes in yards nearby, were losing their money to professional gamblers.

"He asked me to urge McCooey to put a stop to it so the organization would not be scandalized."

"I did this. McCooey thanked me, thanked the commissioner and said he would see McGuinness that night. Apparently it did no good. We kept the place under observation for three or four weeks, had men in there who played, and finally made the raid."

The testimony disclosed that all the prisoners except four were discharged immediately and three of the remaining four were subsequently acquitted.

OFFICIALS CHECKING GUN VICTIM'S VISITS

Movements of Marr During Several Hours Prior to Shooting Traced.

Prince Georges County police investigating the death of Alem K. Marr are making a strenuous effort to learn where the man spent the day and night before his shot-riddled body was found in the kitchen of the caretaker's home of the Glebe Club at Mount Calvert, Md.

Authorities spent several hours yesterday in interviewing persons whom the man was known to visit. His movements between 11 o'clock the day before his death and 4 o'clock in the morning before his body was found are unaccounted for. He was killed about 9:30 Saturday morning. Friday morning he visited Marlboro and cashed a check, and at 11 o'clock that morning he was seen walking along the tracks of the Chesapeake Beach Railway in the direction of his home. About 4 o'clock Saturday morning he went to the home of George McKinzie, where he was later shot.

County police took up the investigation under the direction of Alan Bowie, State's attorney, after the accident theory accepted by the sheriff's office was rejected by a coroner's jury. Accused by the 8-year-old George McKinzie, jr., two younger McKinzie boys were said to have confessed the shooting to a neighbor. The verdict rendered at the inquest, however, absolved the boys of blame

BANK OF COMMERCE BOARD IS REELECTED

Institution Recalls 24 Years of Success; Beavers Is Made Director.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Bank of Commerce & Savings was held yesterday for the twenty-fourth year of its history as a banking institution. The following directors, the majority of whom have served for many years and some since the organization of the institution, were reelected:

Maurice D. Rosenberg, Joseph Sanders, Irving Owings, John M. Riordon, Thomas J. Groom, Joseph H. Milans, Clarence A Weaver, William L. Bush, Harry M. Bedell, James E. Colliflower, E. Taylor Chewning, Floyd E. Davis, Richard L. Elliott, Albert S. Gatley, Martin A. Leese, Harry E. Mayer, John F. Maury, Vernon G. Owen, Elie Sheetz, Frank Owings.

In addition to the foregoing, Thomas N. Beavers, vice president and treasurer of Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., was added to the directorate. Mr. Beavers enjoys the acquaintance of many well-known Washingtonians and has many personal interests, financial and otherwise, which it is thought eminently qualify him for the office of bank director. He resides in Chevy Chase, Md., is a member of the Manor Country Club, Chamber of Commerce and Board of Trade. He has a number of fraternal affiliations among which is King David Masonic Lodge.

Bank Formed in 1907.

The Bank of Commerce & Savings, located in its spacious and attractive building at Seventh and E streets, was organized in 1907. The continuous growth of the institution from time to time has made it necessary to enlarge the banking rooms and today maintains quarters well equipped for the banking business.

M. D. Rosenberg, president; Joseph Sanders, vice president, and John M. Riordon, executive vice president, being among those today elected to the board have occupied executive positions with the institution continuously since the bank was organized.

Thomas J. Groom, vice president and cashier, is one of the recent acquisitions to the official staff of the institution.

The prosperity of the bank has been a matter of great satisfaction to those intrusted with its management The stability of the institution is reflected in the market value of its stock as shown by the quotation on the Washington Stock Exchange.

Taxicab Competition Felt.

The Washington Railway & Electric Co. suffered from taxicab competition during August, according to its monthly financial statement filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission.

Operating revenues for August totaled $388,202.36 against $442,633.22 for the same month last year. Operating expenses amounted to $369,075.56, compared with $403,489.96 in the corresponding period last year. Deduction of the operating costs left an operating income of $19,126.80 compared with $19,173.26 last year.

After all other deductions the company reported a net income of $380,050.74 for the month compared with $345,405.37 a year ago, an increase of $34,645.37. The operating income of the company for the first eight months of this year was $577,100.87 against $532,012.03 last year.

Electric Income Increases.

Operating revenues of the Potomac Electric Co., were $842,446.27 against $809,512.39, an increase of $32,933.88. Total net income for the month after deductions were made was $326,165.82, a decrease of $437.92 compared with the same month last year. Net earnings for the first eight months of the year were $2,986,604.59, compared with $3,013,832.01 in the same period last year, a slump of $27,227.

A substantial sum of money has been made available to I. Fischman & Sons through recent negotiations to take care of curfent requirements and provide additional working capital, it was announced yesterday by Maurice I. Fischman, president of the company.

The corporation will continue to operate as before, Mr. Fischman said. He expressed confidence that business would be better during the remainder of the year.

Equipment of Railways.

Class I railroads of this country on September had 6,173 locomotives in need of classified repairs, or 11.4 per cent of the number on line, according to reports just filed by the carriers with the car service division of the American Railway Association.

Insects Swamp Homes As Fire Fails in Its Aim

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 24 (U.P.).—The West Utica insect plague became city-wide today as a result of the fire department's efforts to solve the problem.

The millions of insects, which have not yet been identified, but which look like grasshoppers and sound like crickets, were attacked at the west side dumping grounds, where they have darkened an area ten blocks square. Firemen sprayed gasoline over the dumps then ignited them. The flames immediately surrounded the attackers and only by quick action did they escape serious injury.

Furthermore, the fire only served to send the insects to shelter in Utica homes. Frantic citizens reported their houses filled with them. Health and fire department heads are at the end of their resources.

Federal Reserve Rate Remains Unchanged

New York, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The New York Federal Reserve Bank announced no change in its rediscount rate of 1½ per cent following a meeting of the board of directors today.

In some quarters an advance in the rate had been expected following a sharp reduction in the price of bankers' acceptances.

Dissolution of partnerships of Thomas A. Biddle & Co. and Townsend Whelen & Co. effective September 30 and formation of a new firm of Biddle, Whelen & Co., of Philadelphia, is announced by the New York Stock Exchange. Partners in the new firm are James D. Winsor, jr., John Strawbridge, Thomas L. Elwyn, John M. Denison, Robert S. Bright and J. E. Cope Morton.

Edward P. Bracken has been elected executive vice president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad and the Colorado & Southern and allied lines, succeeding the late Conrad E. Spens.

The American Safety Razor Corporatino reports decided improvement in its business during August over the previous months of the third quarter, and officials expect the gains to be maintained in view of the progress made to increase distribution and sale of its products. It is expected the company will earn its $5.00 annual dividend on the common in 1931

Department stores sales in the New York metropolitan area showed a 17 per cent decrease in the first two weeks of September compared with the comparable period last year, the New York Federal Reserve Bank reports.

Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation has been authorized to proceed with construction of a second 132,000-volt transmission line from the Osage Hydroelectric Plant in Central Missouri to St. Louis. The estimated cost will be $1,000,000.

Johns-Manville Corporation will pay its common dividend of $3 this year, said H. Edward Manville, chairman, prior to sailing last night for Europe. He said the movement to reduce present wage scales was a necessary step forward and that the sooner this was accomplished the sooner industry in general would be in a position to overcome the present depression and increase wages again.

Youngstown steel plant operations were a shade higher at midweek, being placed at 40 per cent, an advance of 1 per cent in effect as the week opened and 1 per cent below mill activity based on raw steel production a week ago. A small gain in the steel melting rate at the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.'s Campbell plant accounted for the slight increase.

Temporary suspension of specie payments by the Bank of England has deranged sterling exchange, says the monthly review of the Bank of Montreal, but "there is no reason to anticipate serious consequences to international trade which in the past has flowed freely in like circumstance."

They are Standard All-America Trust shares cumulative series A; Trustee Standard Investment shares, series C, and United American Trust shares.

A low red-blood-cell count often exhibits itself in one or more of the following symptoms: — paleness, quick fatigue, lack of normal resistance to disease, pimples, boils, and general run-down condition.

A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health in various manifestations.

Take S.S.S. as a tonic and notice how much better you will "feel" . . . it has effect in aiding Nature to build red-blood-cells and creating an appetite for food. These two things working together aid the human body in its struggle for health and vitality.

S.S.S. contains in pleasant liquid form the active medicinal principles of certain plants and roots known for their value in building New Strength in the blood and for the making of better utilization of food.

These vegetable ingredients are gathered fresh, and while in this condition, processed in our own laboratories.

STOCK GAINS WIPED OUT IN SELLING RUSH

Average Loss Heaviest Since June, 1930; Industrial Leaders Head Drop.

New York, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The Wednesday rise in stocks was more than washed out today by a flood of selling which reached large proportions toward the close. Final prices, as measured by the Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite, dropped 6.7 points to 84.8, the largest decline since June, 1930, against yesterday's gain of 5.7.

Professional short sales rolled in during the afternoon, augmented by further liquidation. The higher levels attained yesterday naturally attracted bear offerings, but the break was so emphatic that it was assumed further important liquidation had been drawn out. Sales totaled 3,128,233 shares, of which 1,000,000 shares changed hands in the last 50 minutes.

Profit-taking influenced the downward trend of the morning, but until noon the reaction was no worse than was to have been expected after so sharp a rally. However, the market's undertone appeared to be soggy and when no important resistance developed the declines broadened, finally becoming precipitant. Bonds were affected to a considerable degree, although as a whole the investment market was erratic rather than uncompromisingly weak.

Effect of Day's News.

The day's news contained such items as the insolvency of an old Cologne, Germany, banking house and some unfavorable dividend actions—notably the omission by Anaconda and the Lackawanna cut—but Wall street has been through much worse adversity, and so was somewhat at a loss for satisfactory explanations of the fresh weakness. It is possible, of course, that the short interest had been rather thoroughly eliminated earlier in the week, leaving no cushion of short covering underneath.

Market leaders made the poorest showing. U. S. Steel lost 7¾ net, American Telephone 8¼, American Can 6⅝, Eastman Kodak 9½, Atchison 15¼, Norfolk & Western 14, Union Pacific 11⅞, General Electric 3¾, General Motors 3, Allied Chemical 8, North American 7¼, Consolidated Gas 5¼, National Biscuit 3¼, and New Haven 7⅜. Selling was on a large scale in many of these and other stocks.

The credit situation came into prominence with the further weakening of bankers' acceptances and the firming of time money rates, the latter advancing to 2 per cent flat. An unusually large volume of bills is being held here, which necessarily is forcing down their prices, and it was reported that another advance in rates might be forthcoming. However, the Federal Reserve Bank maintained its old buying rate and selling banks found a market there.

Increased Bills Supply.

The increased supply of bills is said to have originated chiefly with foreign banks which are withdrawing their balances or converting them into gold, an operation reflected in the increased earmarkings here. Today's rate advance, the second this week, led to a belief that the reserve might raise its rediscount figure, but no change was made, although the Government bond market evidently expected one.

Sterling exchange ruled sharply lower, fluctuating between $3.82 and $3.95, and closing at the bottom, off 29 cents. Scandinavian currencies were particularly soft. Swiss and Dutch were firm, while Far Easterns eased a little in sympathy with silver.

Weakness in Wall street, a bearish Canadian crop estimate and large Russian weekly exports depressed wheat slightly more than half a cent. Corn likewise returned fractional losses; cotton broke sharply after early gains of about $1 a bale, closing 90 cents to $1.05 lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Breaks in Wall Street securities threw a wet blanket on grain prices today, and more than overcame bullish effects of Transpacific war tension. Announcement from Washington that the Department of Agriculture was investigating economic possibilities regarding legalization of beer fell flat as a market influence, and so did later word that the American Legion National Convention at Detroit had voted heavily for repeal or change of prohibition laws. Deliveries on September corn contracts kept heavy.

Wheat closed nervous at about the day's lowest level, 1/2 to ¾ cents cheaper, corn ⅜ to ⅞ down, oats ¼ to ¾ off, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 37 cents.

Wheat displayed a decided upward trend until about midday, even in the face of stock market setbacks, but finally succumbed to the bearish showing made by securities. Persistent instability of British exchange rates acted as a disturbing element, and was emphasized by Winnipeg reports that Canadian interests were clamoring for arrangements by which Canadian grain could move to world markets unhandicapped by the pound sterling or by Canadian dollar discounts. Estimates were current that Canadian stocks in Canada totaled 141,000,000 bushels against 181,000,000 a year ago, not including stocks on farms or in transit.

Bulky shipments of Russian wheat, 4,720,000 bushels in the last week, an amount but little below the previous week, attracted notice, especially as Russia was reported to have sold 500,000 bushels additional today for export. North American wheat export business today was estimated at 500,000 bushels, mainly Canadian wheat to European continental countries. Bears stressed the fact that the Liverpool wheat market today although closing 3/8 to 3¼ pence a bushel higher in British currency was ¼-cent lower to ⅛ higher in American money, a difference of 23 points in sterling being responsible.

Corn and oats reacted with wheat and stocks. Deliveries on September corn contracts were 596,000 bushels, Chicago receipts, 117 cars compared with only 50 a week ago, were a further drag on the market.

Provisions averaged lower with hogs and grain, lard touching new bottom records.

BOND SALES RECORD LOSSES AT CLOSING

Market Reverses Trend With $23,895,000 Turnover; Some Issues Gain.

New York, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—After opening generally higher on moderate activity, the bond market reversed its trend today and closed with many sharp losses.

The closing average price of 60 representative domestic corporate loans was 86.1, a net loss of eight-tenths of a point, just about half the gain of yesterday. However, a number of bonds finished higher for the day.

The majority of such issues reached higher ground when prices were advancing, and did not fall when the slump was under way. Sales aggregated $23,895,000 on the stock exchange, the largest total for a full session since March 20, 1930, when the turnover was $30,121,000.

Heavy British Sales.

Sales of United Kingdom 5½s of 1937 exceeded $1,400,000, and the net loss was 2½ points.

Issues with sales exceeding $100,000 and losses of 1 point or more included Italian 7s, German 5½s and 7s, Belgian 7s of 1955, American Telephone 5s of 1965, St. Paul 5s of 1975 and the 5s of 2000, Metropolitan Edison 4½s of 1968, Missouri Pacific series I 5s, Pennsylvania Power & Light 4½s of 1981 and St. Louis San Francisco 4½s of 1978.

Great Northern 7s of 1936, Consolidated Gas of New York 4½s of 1951 and Union Pacific first 4s, all of which have high credit ratings, were more active than usual and closed with fractional losses. The slump was far from being confined to second grade or speculative obligations.

U. S. Issues Decline.

The action of the Liberty and Treasury loans was as impressive and indicative of heavy liquidation. Sales in this group exceeded $5,000,000 and net losses ranged upward to three-quarters of a point. The fourth Liberty 4½s were the most active, with sales of $1,800,000.

News of the rejection of the demand for immediate payment of veterans' bonds insurance certificates by the American Legion convention did not come until after the close.

The passage of bonus legislation by Congress, bankers said, would have caused either an increase in taxes, or the flotation of new bonds, or a combination of these methods of raising revenue to redeem the bonus certificates. Presumably such a course will be avoided now.

FRIDAY SEPTEMBER 25 SPORTS

MRS. VARE AND ENID WILSON GAIN GOLF SEMIFINAL

Helen Hicks Will Oppose U. S. Champion as Briton Meets Virginia Van Wie

Miss Wilson Defeats Marjorie Kerr, Also of England.

Miss Van Wie Victor by 2 Up and 1 Over Maureen Orcutt.

BUFFALO COUNTRY CLUB, Williamsville, N. Y., Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The queen of American and British golf, Glenna Collett Vare and Enid Wilson, reached the semifinals of the United States women's championship today in company with two of this country's outstanding younger stars, Helen Hicks, of New York, and Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago.

The quarter-finals were featured by the sparkling triumph of Miss Van Wie over her New Jersey rival, Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, 2 and 1, but produced no upsets. Mrs. Vare, the five-times champion, easily disposed of Mrs. Leo Federman, of New York, 5 and 4, while the British titleholder, Miss Wilson, scored over her countrywoman, Marjorie Kerr, 4 and 3. Miss Hicks eliminated the last California contender, Miss Leona Pressler, of San Gabriel, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Vare's opponent in the 18-hole semifinal matches tomorrow will be Miss Van Wie, while Miss Wilson plays Miss Hicks in a match that brings together two of the longest range feminine games in golf.

Virginia Van Wie Gains Revenge.

The 22-year-old girl, Miss Van Wie, who has twice been the national runner-up in the past three years, played supremely to force Miss Orcutt out of the title picture. Her victory atoned for her defeat by the New Jersey girl in the North and South finals last spring.

In spite of a penalty at thirteenth hole, where her second shot came to rest beneath an apple tree and was unplayable, Miss Van Wie played the 17 holes in 77 strokes, one over women's par for that distance. Miss Orcutt's total was 79, due chiefly to costly mistakes on the twelfth and seventeenth holes.

Mrs. Vare Piles Up Six-Hole Lead.

The other semifinalists scored impressively. Mrs. Vare was out in 39, two under women's par, and gained a 6-up lead that was too much for Mrs. Federman to do anything about. The champion's steadiness, especially around the greens, was conspicuous in contrast to the New York woman's wildness. Mrs. Federman took the tenth and thirteenth, her only winning holes, but Mrs. Vare shot a birdie four to end the match on the fourteenth.

Miss Hicks, out in 40, took swift advantage of Mrs. Pressler's erratic play to become 4 up at the ninth. The Long Island girl shot an eagle three on the second hole, and won four consecutive holes as her opponent battled with the rough and bunkers. Three putts cost Miss Hicks the sixth hole and represented her only lapse of the outgoing journey.

Mrs. Pressler Steadies.

Mrs. Pressler steadied and played fine golf, after Miss Hicks won the tenth with a 20-foot putt for a birdie three, but the best the Californian could do was prolong the match to the fifteenth green.

Miss Wilson had no trouble disposing of her English rival, Miss Kerr, after capturing four straight holes to become 4 up at the turn. After a brave start, Miss Kerr's game went to pieces. She was in traps on the seventh, eighth and ninth. Safely entrenched, Miss Wilson played conservatively to close out the match at the fifteenth hole.

Booth, in Scrimmage, Exhibits His Old Skill

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 24 (U.P.).—Capt. Albie Booth, of the Yale football varsity, got into real scrimmage today for the first time this season, dispelling all reports that he is not in the best of condition. Booth scored the only touchdown against a strong Gray team in the half hour scrimmage. Sullivan was at quarter for the varsity and Booth and Taylor at half back, with Muhlfeld filling the full back berth. The excellent forward passing was commended by the coaches. A long drill in fundamentals composed the afternoon drill.

Army Coaches Polish Attack for Saturday

West Point N. Y., Sept. 24 (U.P.).—Army's offensive got a final polish today for the Ohio Northern game Saturday. Running plays featured but one long forward pass, Carver to Shegibam at right end, resulted in a touchdown. For tomorrow Maj. Sasse has ordered light work, consisting of signal rehearsals and a kicking and passing drill.

DUSEK BEATS ROEBUCK TO PUNCHES

Indian Flattened by Rocking Cradle as 7,000 Watch.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

ROUGH RUDY DUSEK, who is so tough they're going to break him up for D street steaks, made a triumphant return to Washington's wrestle-dumb last night at Griffith Stadium when he butted, jolted, threw, knocked, kicked and cradle-rocked Big Tiny Roebuck into a limp mass of protoplasm in the union time of 40 minutes.

Wesley Eddy, in all his pristine glory, never had a homecoming like Rudy had last night. The saber-toothed 218-pound bone bender was welcomed home from his home town of Lincoln, Nebr., by nearly 7,000 gore-starved citizens, who, since Master Dusek departed early last August, have compared all other pifformahs to this flat-swinging, scowling muscle rippler.

Tiny was never in the show last night. Dusek was a raging little dynamo, sprung loose from its moorings and leaving a chaotic trail of debris in the ring after him. He was a strong young tiger, charging in and out of the ponderous waving of the eighth of a ton tower of Haskell Indian.

Dusek's Hand Rocks The Cradle.

Dusek's winning hold was his customary rocking cradle, a ghastly looking affair, appreciated only when seen, but that was just the finishing touch. Roebuck, although he probably is wrestling hundreds of miles from here tonight, was all in last night, or else George Arliss might as well auction off the grease paint. Two rocking cradles and a series of Thor-hammers had him groggy in the middle of the bout, and a trip out of the ring flush into the ball park infield aided his cause in no way.

Dusek never let him rest, and himself suffered only from two good headlocks of Tiny's and an abortive airplane spin, neither of which did appreciable damage. The end came when Roebuck, evidently with his last vestige of energy or willingness, made three flying tackles in the neighborhood of his accomplice, who sunk to the mat while the Graf Roebuck was sailing over, and kicked hard and true right in the gondola. Dusek had to lift the Indian off of the floor to throw him.

Rudy forgot his lines several times during the show, and departed from the role Mr. Turner made for him during the past season. He fled from Tiny's elephantine rushes three times, and twice deserted the ring for the safety of the infield, but it is not likely that his "home town" propensities have suffered. Watch out for a Steele-Dusek match.

Well, they had some other torso tableaux preceding the big bout. In the semifinal round of the double-

Giants, Yanks and Charity Win as 44,000 Fans Watch Robins Absorb 2 Beatings

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Robins, gluttons for punishment, stood up and took it twice today for the benefit of the unemployed and 44,000 wild-eyed interborough fans.

With any claims they might have to the city title at stake, the Robins first took a 3-to-1 beating from their National League neighbors, the Giants. Then, after an hour's pause in which they held something approximating the major league olympics, Uncle Robbie's boys came right back to catch a trimming from the Yankees of the American League, 5 to 1.

Homers Decide Both Games.

Southpaw pitchers and home run knockers proved the Dodgers' undoing in each instance. In the opening battle it was Bill Walker's hurling and Johnny Vergez's home run into the right field stands with one on that turned them back. In the nightcap they found themselves puzzled by Big Ed Wells, and Yankee home runs accounted for four of the victors' runs Lyn Lary and Bill Dickey each planted one with the bases empty, while Lou Gehrig belted another with Sewell on second.

What today's hilarious program did toward settling the metropolitan title, it was difficult to say. The Yankees, who defeated the Giants in a previous charity game, emerged with the strongest claim. At any rate, the three engagements put something over $107,000 into Mayor Walker's fund for the unemployed.

The mayor was very much on hand. He led the opening parade. He stayed around to help officiate in the field contents and then presented the winners with wrist watches and other paraphernalia.

Chapman Best in Baseball Throw.

Ben Chapman, Yankee outfielder, and his teammate, Babe Ruth, carried off a lion's share of honors in the field events. Ruth set a new record for fungo hitting, 421 feet and 3 inches. The former mark, 419 feet, was said to have been held by Big Ed Walsh, then of the Chicago White Sox.

Chapman captured the baseball throw with a heave of 392 feet 10 inches, and in a special event against time did 100 yards in 10.6, said to be the fastest time ever made on grass.

Lefty O'Doul, Brooklyn's hefty outfielder, ran to first base faster than eight rivals, in 3.3 seconds.

Ethan Allen, of the Giants, won the base-circling contest in 13.8 seconds.

Cullinane's Net 65 Best In Press Building Tourney

Capital Women Win; Pitt Honored at Manor; Maryland State Open Starts Today; Mrs. Dowdall Gains Title.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

LEO CULLINANE, of the New York Herald-Tribune bureau, and who is still a younger player with his golf confined to the public links, yesterday captured the National Press Building trophy in the tournament played on the course of the Indian Spring Club, competition being eighteen holes medal play, handicap allowance.

He played the course in 89 strokes, and with his 24 handicap had a net 65, which so far spread-eagled the field that, as in the famous Kentucky horse race, there was no second. He won by a margin of seven strokes.

The low gross score of the day was turned in by Percy S. Ridsdale, whose card was 84, while P. T. Cook and Paul Y. Anderson tied for second low gross with 87, Anderson naturally lamenting the fact that he had five 6's on his card, due to three-putt greens. The event attracted 65 contestants, whose scores covered a wide range.

Seward Gains Second Low Net.

The second low net was recorded by P. F. Seward, whose card was 96—24—72. The scores made by all the other contestants were as follows:

F. N. Butcher, 109, 23—86; H. K. Phillips, 107, 21—86; Wilson Batten, 122, 29—93; C. J. Sterner, 107, 21—86; S. B. Foy, 115, 25—90; J. S. Surrock, 106, 19—87; Charles O. Smith, 96, 20—76; Carter Field, 104, 20—84; Harry T. Peters, 120, 24—96; Paul Wooten, 115, 27—88; T. M. Esch, 117, 23—94; A. M. Hahn, 122, 29—93; Stanley Glaser, 124, 26—98; John S. Scofield, 102, 19—83; Edward Kelly, 108, 27—81; A. P. Erb, 114, 24—90; S. R. Fox

SUNVIR TAKES SEVERN HANDICAP IN FOUR-HORSE FINISH

Choice Beats Blind Lane By Neck

Sidney Grant Is Third at Havre, Another Head Away.

Fairdale Beats Blanc Seing by Length in Fifth Race.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Md., Sept. 24.—A crowd of 12,000 saw Mrs. Katherine Elkins Hitt's Sunvir win the Severn Handicap, 1 1-8-mile feature, in a driving four-horse finish, from the Goodstone Stable's Blind Lane, with A. Bartelstein's Sidney Grant heading Mrs. H. Pyne's Storm, one that should have won the race, but received a weird ride.

A crowd of 12,000 saw Mrs. Katherine Elkins Hitt's Sunvir win the Severn Handicap, 1 1-16-mile feature, in a driving four-horse finish from the Goodstone Stable's Blind Lane, with A. Bartelstein's Sidney Grant heading Mrs. H. Pyne's Storm, one that should have won the race, but who received a weird ride.

Blind Lane, with Sunvir at her saddle cloth, cut out the early running. They fought it out for three-quarters where Sunvir took command. In the meantime, Maiben tried to go through on the rail with Storm and was blocked.

As the field swung for home, Maiben shot Storm into third place but he made the mistake of clinging to the rail and eventually ran into a pocket behind Sunvir and Blind Lane.

Seeing he had no chance to get through, Maiben took up, but in the meantime Sidney Grant had come fast on the outside and when Storm tried to come around the two pacemakers, he was again blocked and had to be content with fourth money, whereas he should have won by open daylight.

Sunvir beat Blind Lane out a neck. Sidney Grant was beaten a head for the place and another nose away finished Storm.

Queenly Way Lucky To Win Opener.

The Log Cabin Stud's Queenly Way won the day's opener at the lucrative odds of $41.40, but it was the luckiest score witnessed on this track in many a day, for the best horse, Rabbit Skin, stumbled while enjoying a length lead within 70 yards of the wire and finished outside the money.

Rabbit Skin unseated Jockey Coltiletti on the way to the post, but when the break came she took command and appeared to have her field well beaten within sight of the wire when she stumbled. Jockey Coltiletti was lucky to keep her on her feet, but it cost him the race. The break enabled Queenly Way, who was running second, to escape interference, but she was hard driven to the end to win by a short head from Boscobel, 86-to-1 shot. Beret, another long shot, was third.

While the field was at the post Dinner Time twice threw Jockey Jimmy Burke and ran off the second time. She was caught by her trainer, Benny Creech, as she was endeavoring to find the gap leading from the track.

My Sis Outruns Platers.

A dozen platers met in the six furlongs of the second, with C. H. Sprague's My Sis being returned the winner.

The 5-year-old daughter of Tryster and Gurgling Water made the pace for a half, but was outrun to the sixteenth pole by Bacciocco. The latter stopped suddenly and My Sis went on to win in a drive from Calgary Kay, with Perkins heading the remainder of the field.

A sensational dash along the inside railing enabled C. V. Whitney's Clotho to get up in the final stride and win the Montpelier, the day's secondary feature, at 6 furlongs.

D. Homewood's Fairdale, who has been showing consistent form all season, raced a mile and one-sixteenth in 1:48 2-5 to win the fifth.

Charlie Phillip kept Fairdale within striking distance of the lead until the turn for home, where he turned the 5-year-old bay gelded son of Ormandale and Fair Phantom loose and he soon took command to win handily from Mrs. Belle Watson's Blanc Seing, with R. Cremens' Mina F. third.

W. R. Kirkpatrick's Ruane, making his first start since last spring, just galloped to his field in the mile and one-sixteenth of the sixth.

The third favorite of the day to win scored in the seventh race, when Baritone, 5-year-old gelding owned by E. E. Watson and ridden by T. Luther, led a field of seven platers in handy fashion. Star Lassie was second and Crossbones third. Baritone paid $5.60 in the $2 mutuels.

—Havre de Grace Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Md., Sept. 24.—The Melody Handicap and the Piedmont Purse were originally scheduled to be runt here tomorrow, but as neither race filled the patrons will have to be content with an all-claiming program.

The fourth race, a mile and a sixteenth gallop for high class platers, will be looked upon as the feature event. M. L. Schwartz's QUARTERDECK has never raced with as cheap company as he will meet in the fourth. Man o' War's son has finished close up with top sawyers on occasions, but we doubt if there is a more consistent horse in training. If he can't win this time, we will be convinced he is no account. NEGOPOLI looms as the contender. This fellow went in good form back of Tancred Wednesday. EAGER PLAY figures slightly better than the other six named to start.

FIRST RACE—LOUIS MERRYMAN may be graduated in the day's opener, providing he gets off the also eligible list. He was outclassed Monday, but in his last New York race he was second to San Kai and beat eleven other fair juvenile platers. WHITE FLYER has been knocking at the door. Should Louis Merryman fail to get in the filly may be hard to beat. JAFFA is a rapid beginner and the distance of this race will be but 5½ furlongs.

SECOND RACE—W. R. Coe has two able representatives in the second event in HA HA and JAMBALAYA. Either can win, we believe, but JAMBALAYA is last on the also eligible list and not likely to start. HA HA was far back in the Champagne Stakes, his last New York start, but the stable might have been relying on Pompeius to win the race. The latter was second. HA HA was an easy winner of his race prior to the Champagne. AMERICANA is an inconsistent fellow. On best races he gets a high figure. ALTMARK has been training well.

THIRD RACE—GOLDEN PRINCE may get up to whip the fleet, but faint-hearted VOLTAGREEN in this sprint for high-class platers, GOLDEN PRINCE has been racing with better company, so our advice is to forget his recent New York races. VOLTAGREEN is fast away from the barrier and she will be the one to catch. SIR JAMES may need a race. He's a bad legged fellow and he hasn't been out since last spring.

FIFTH RACE—Buddy Stotler appears to have the Sagamore Stable horses on edge. Stotler has picked what appears to be a soft spot for SNAPPY SNUB and the filly needs only to improve over her last New York race to win the fifth. MARGARET MC is in good trip. She was a good second to Boundless Deep in a maiden race here Tuesday. CLIPSETTA raced well in Kentucky before coming East.

SIXTH RACE—SKID may prove best in this open contest. He beat better horses in New York and after that performance he was placed over his head. He is now back where he belongs. FIRE BRIGADE'S Canadian form was good. ROYAL PANOPLY probably needed Wednesday's race at this track.

SEVENTH RACE—GLENNO can beat the kind he will meet in the nightcap, providing he is in a running mood. Although he failed to win, GLENNO was well supported to beat $3,000 top platers his last out in New York. WORKLESS went fairly well in Wednesday's nightcap here. STRONGHEART should hold the others safe.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUEENLY WAY, $41.40, $12.80, $10.60; BOSCOBEL, $75.50, $29.40; BERET, $16.00.

QUEENLY WAY, away in the first flight and going prominently from the start, took command nearing the final furlong pole and, under strong pressure, just lasted long enough. BOSCOBEL, hard ridden from the start, came to the outside for the final drive and was wearing the winner down gradually. BERET improved her position from the start, came with a good sweep on the outside entering the stretch, but could not reach the leaders. TEMPLE BELLS broke slowly. RABBIT SKIN was under severe urging nearing the final furlong pole after setting a good pace. She stumbled badly at that point and almost fell. DINNER TIME was very unruly while on parade and unseated Burke in one of her lunges, but just cantered for a sixteenth of a mile before being checked.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:56. Off at 2:57. Winner, C. H. Sprague's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MY SIS, $13.00, $5.40, $3.80; CALGARY KAY, $9.50, $5.60; PERKINS, $3.70.

MY SIS, taken under slight restraint when BACCIOCCO moved into the lead, was kept close in pursuit of the pacemaker, responded readily when placed to punishment and, under stout urging, just lasted to stall off CALGARY KAY. Latter came to the outside after the opening furlong and finished full of run. PERKINS, shuffled back directly at the break, secured clear passage in the final half mile and closed with a rush. MORDROM finished gamely after meeting with much early interference. BACCIOCCO took command while under steadying restraint, but flattened out badly when the real test came. BABOO had no mishaps. YOUR FLAG broke slowly.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,400; allowances. The Montpelier. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:27. Off at 3:27½. Winner, C. V. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLOTHO, $15.50, $3.90, $3.70; MASKED KNIGHT, $3.10, $2.50; MAD WIND, $4.00.

CLOTHO, hustled along from the start, moved through on the inside of the leaders when straightened into the home stretch, finished courageously and was up in the concluding strides. MASKED KNIGHT raced MONEL into submission after four furlongs and fought it out stoutly when put to punishment. MAD WIND saved ground when racing in the leaders, but closed with good energy. PHANTOM LEGION tired well for the final drive. ETCETERA, punished until getting into his best stride, was forced extremely wide when entering the home stretch and lost all chance. MONEL quit.

FOURTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $2,000. The Severn Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:36. Off at 3:36½. Winner, K. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUNVIR, $3.80, $2.50, $2.20; BLIND LANE, $3.10, $2.70; SIDNEY GRANT, $3.40.

SUNVIR, rated along in close attendance of BLIND LANE, came determinedly for the final drive and, in a game finish, was up nearing the finish. BLIND LANE, steadied in front while saving ground, fought it out with rare courage when the final test came. SIDNEY GRANT, going in his best form, finished stoutly in the final quarter mile. STORM, under restraint for six furlongs, was blocked when attempting to move through on the inside at the far turn and was blocked again inside the final furlong. He secured racing room in the last sixteenth, and was going the fastest at the end. BERBER tired.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:27. Off at 4:29. Winner, D. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIRDALE, $7.80, $5.30, $3.70; BLANC SEING, $7.60, $5.10; MINA F., $9.00.

FAIRDALE, rated forwardly, secured racing room on the inside when moving to the leaders, swung to the outside of BLANC SEING entering the home stretch, took command in the final furlong and was under pressure at the end. BLANC SEING, quick to get going, raced TEWSENELDA into submission and continued gamely after regaining the lead. MINA F. finished stoutly. SWEET AIR closed a good gap after meeting with interference at the first turn. VOWED VENGEANCE had no excuses. TEWSENELDA stopped. ROAN ANTELOPE broke in a tangle and was badly blocked at the first turn.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 2-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:00. Off at 5:02. Winner, W. R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RUANE, $5.60, $4.00, $3.20; FAIR DAWN, $3.30, $3.50; VIMONT, $4.10.

RUANE saved a lot of ground going to the first turn, entered contention when securing clear passage along the inner rail, came around the leaders approaching the home stretch, and held FAIR DAWN safe in the final furlong. FAIR DAWN, close up from the start, came with good speed when put to drive. VIMONT was forced to race on the outside all the way. He finished gamely. SKIRT closed resolutely. TINITA raced well. GUNTHER had no mishaps. VOLTABUSH and BANAL GIRL quit.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:32. Off at 5:32½. Winner, E. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BARITONE, $5.60, $3.60, $2.70; STAR LASSIE, $6.20, $4.70; CROSSBONES, $3.10.

BARITONE, reserved off the early pace, moved up fast after five furlongs, went to the outside when approaching the leaders, wore STAR LASSIE down and was going gamely at the end. STAR LASSIE, close up, raced SOUTHLAND CHIEF into submission, but could not withstand the winner's effort. CROSSBONES reached the pacemakers rounding the far turn, but bung badly in the concluding test. ALL BLUE went evenly throughout. SOUTHLAND CHIEF tired. CARTHUSIAN quit early.

G. P. O. NINE DEFEATS COMMERCE IN SERIES OPENER, 5 TO 1

Riley Victim Despite 10 Strikeouts

Typos Pound Hurler for 3-Run Lead in 1st Inning.

Corkins Holds Foes to 3 Hits; Homan Hits Homer.

IN the language of the ball player, Leon Riley was "shooting 'em down the alley" yesterday for Commerce in the opening game of the play-off series with Government Printing Office for the championship of the week-day leagues. But Riley's accuracy was too fine, for when he wasn't fanning G. P. O. batters his pitches were being slammed to all corners of the Ellipse diamond.

As Bill Corkins, G. P. O. hurler, was doling out but three hits in the meantime, the natural result was a victory for the Typos, score 5 to 1, and a big advantage in the post-season race for the title.

During the course of the afternoon Riley struck out ten, but he saw his offerings nicked for nine hits also. Corkins fanned six.

The inconsistency of Riley's hurling was evident at the very outset, for he yielded three runs in the first inning while fanning two G. P. O. players.

Homan Greets Riley With Homer.

Homan, first up for G. P. O., drove a home run to center field and was followed over the plate by B. Schneider and Gartland as the rally continued. B. Schneider, Harding and Simon connected for singles in this frame.

Commerce cut down this lead by one run in the fourth when Shapiro doubled and scored on Well's single. Corkins then showed his mettle by stifling an incipient rally, fanning Lewis and forcing Hessler to pop after Wells had stolen second and Riley walked.

The Typos scored one run each in the seventh and eighth. Homan singled with two out in the seventh and tallied on B. Schneider's triple. The last run was manufactured on singles by Mosedale and Harding, Simon's pass and A. Schneider's fly, which enabled Mosedale to count from third base.

MIRACLES OF SPORTS. —By Robert Edgren

Tech and Central Elevens In Baltimore Games Today

THREE full teams and a generous sprinkling of substitutes will open Tech High's football season this afternoon against Baltimore Poly in Baltimore at 3:45 o'clock. The big squad will leave at noon, not to return until late tomorrow night, after playing Winchester High at Winchester in the afternoon.

Coach Hardell will send a squad of shock troops against Poly this afternoon, reserving his grade A team until the more trying moments of the game. The same course will be followed tomorrow. Unlike recent years, Tech is out to take both games this time. Last year Poly defeated the Maroon and Gray, 7-0, and Winchester tied them, 6-6, with most of Tech's subsequent stars on the bench.

Tech Shook Troops Experienced.

They will be supplanted by the following huskies, in the order named: McKinney, Bell, Remlick, Baxter, Himmelfarb, Howser, Stehman, Edwards, Hatos, Sachs and Weisman, all of whom saw service with Tech last year. The third Tech team was not named by Hardell last night.

It was learned last night that Tech's scheduled game with Episcopal for October 2, at Tech, a game whose revenue was hoped to pay off Tech's football bill of last season, will not be played at Tech. The contest was to have opened the field, but failure of school authorities to erect a fence around the layout in time has forced Hardell to ask Episcopal to take the game.

Coach Bert Coggins takes his big Central squad into action today for the first time, with a revamped lineup and a list of injured stars, all of whom, however, will probably get into the game. Baltimore City, which Central has not played in recent years, will be met at the Orioles' Park at 8 o'clock tonight.

Koscis Shifted to Back Field.

Central's two teams will be picked from Buscher, Heflin, Graham and Fisher, ends; Boyle, Lalande, Raub and Cleveland, tackles; Pistolis, Lamond, Garrott and Nickopoulus, guards; Brasch and Fitzwater, centers, and the following backs: Bryant, Cumberland, King, Koscis, King, Dunlop, Cooke, Myer and Porter.

The most notable change Coggins has made in his first year of coaching has been the shifting of Frank Koscis, all-High tackle, to a backfield berth. The strong-muscled youth, who was Central's one lone able lineman last year, has proved a sensation in the back field in scrimmage, and is expected to make, with Frank Cumberland, two of the outstanding backs of the high school series.

The Maryland State open golf tournament will be played today on the course of the Congressional Country Club, 36 holes, medal play, with 60 contestants.

At the Columbia Country Club the women golfers will compete for the cup offered by Mrs. William A. Corby, former president of the Women's District Golf Association, eighteen holes medal play, with handicap allowance.

Harry G. Pitt, District amateur champion, sat as the guest of honor last night at the dinner given by his fellow club members at the Manor Club. Nearly 200 were present. Pitt was surrounded by a glittering array of silverware and medals, the numerous trophies which he has won during his golfing career.

Ray F. Garrity, president of the club, presided and the affair was all the more enjoyable because of its informality.

The Manor Club announces that its first annual junior championship tournament will begin tomorrow morning, all sons of members being eligible who are under 21 years of age. The first round of match play will start at 9 o'clock and subsequent rounds will be played on following Saturday mornings. The winner will receive a gold medal and the runner-up a silver medal.

Mrs. J. F. Dowdall is the new woman champion at the Congressional Country Club. In the final round yesterday she defeated Mrs. R. Lester Rose, 1 up. At the turn Mrs. Dowdall had an advantage of being 1 up but the match was all even on the seventeenth tee. Mrs. Dowdall won the last two holes and the championship.

In the second flight final round, Mrs. Frank Yates defeated Mrs. F. M. Toomey, 5 and 4.

The golf committee of the Beaver Dam Club yesterday announced the pairings in the three championship flights as follows:

CLASS A—C. K. Dunton, 89, vs. H. A. Neff, 89; Henry Phipps, 79, vs. L. R. Day, 88; W. J. Cox, 86, vs. G. F. Stringer, 83; J. W. Gregory, 89, vs. C. S. Runswick, 88; Don Buckingham, 83, vs. William H. EPISCOPAL IN GRID DEBUT TOMORROW

Meets Eastern High at Alexandria in Opening Game.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 24.—Episcopal High School gridders will open their 1931 football season here on Saturday afternoon against Eastern High eleven of Washington, on Boxton Field.

Last year the Maroon and Black warriors, under the direction of Head Coach Bick Cardwell, walked off with all-State honors. Practically most of last year's players have returned and another good year is expected.

The coaching staff for Episcopal is composed of B. W Cardwell, of the University of Virginia, head coach; Gus Kathinel, University of Virginia, and Robert Lawson, Hampden-Sidney, assistant coaches. Neil Robinson is captain and Tommy Tabb is manager.

The big game of the season with Woodberry Forest School will be played at Episcopal on November 21. This contest last year was fought out at Orange. The locals won, 12-6. They were the underdogs in the game.

The schedule follows:

September 26—Eastern High, home, 4 o'clock.

October 2—McKinley, away.

October 10—Augusta Military Academy, home, 3:15 p. m.

Alexandria High Team Opens Season Today

Alexandria, Va., Sept. 24.—Alexandria High School football warriors will inaugurate their 1931 season here Friday opposing the National Training School eleven of Washington at 4 o'clock in Baggett's Stadium, head of King street.

PLAYGROUND NETMEN IN DRAW

Burroughs Team Ties Georgetown; Darkness Halts Play.

GEORGETOWN and Burroughs battled to a draw in the first round of the playoff for the junior championship of the Playground Tennis League yesterday on the courts of Chevy Chase Playgrounds. With the score tied, 2—2, in singles, Wilbur Robb and Walter May, of Burroughs, and Leroy Lomax and Clarence Allen, of Georgetown, were tied at a set apiece in the deciding doubles match when darkness intervened.

Lomax, 13 years old, stamped himself as a player of great promise when he took a straight-set decision, 6—2, 8—6, over the more experienced Walter May. Lomax, making use of a good forehand drive, and an unorthodox reverse service, was too steady for May, who, while he hit the ball with great speed, did not produce any steadiness until late in the match.

The final set of the deciding match will be played Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

This afternoon the two remaining teams in the running for the junior championship will meet when Rosedale clashes with Chevy Chase, at Chevy Chase. The final round will be played Saturday at 10 o'clock.

Singles—Leroy Lomax (Georgetown), defeated Walter May (Burroughs), 6—2, 8—6; Clarence Allen (G.), defeated Jimmy Roach, 6—8, 6—3, 6—4; Wilbur Robb (B.), defeated George Lochite, 6—1, 4—6, 6—2; Eddie Pinkham (B.), defeated Francis Beamer, 7—5, 6—4.

Doubles—Robb and May tied with Lomax and Allen, 6—4, 3—6 (darkness).

Vines Reaches Semifinal In West Coast Tourney

Los Angeles, Sept. 24 (A.P.).—Playing in form true to his numerous titles, Ellsworth Vines, 19-year-old University of Southern California sophomore, won his way with three other favorites into the semifinals of the Pacific Southwest men's singles championship here today.

The national singles champion and title defender defeated Gregory Mangin, Newark, N. J., 3—6, 6—3, 6—4.

George Lott, the veteran Philadelphian, brought Lester Stoefen's victorious spurt to a sudden end by setting down the Los Angeles youth, 6—2, 7—5. Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbaran, who also figured in the upsets of a day ago, fell before the rushing game of Fred Perry, English Davis Cup player.

It was up to Perry to keep the name of Britain in the tournament, for his partner, George Hughes, was unable to cope with the surprisingly treacherous service of John Van Ryn, Los Angeles, listed No. 3, and was conquered in the easiest fashion of the round, 6—2, 6—2.

C. U. Coach Broadcasts Tonight on New Season

George Vik, Catholic University's end coach and a regular wingman on the late Knute Rockne's great 1930 Notre Dame eleven, is to broadcast his views on the launching of college football, locally and nationally, over Station WJSV at 7:45 o'clock tonight.

Among other topics Vik will discuss the prospects of Notre Dame for the 1931 season.

jointed doubles, Mister Pat O'Shocker ground the fine old Italian shoulders of Michael J. Romano several inches into the mat in just 37 minutes, with what the official timer identified as a flying head mare. Before that Carl Pojello introduced Abad Kasah to American rassling by tossing the barely arrived Turk in 16½ minutes, the half-minute being necessary because it was a double armlock and not the standard job.

Let it be recorded that the first two exhibitions were culminated by Umpire Bortniek raising the hands of both growlers. Doctor Wilson and Jean Ladoux were in the ring 30 minutes to no definite avail, while the same negative result was achieved in the Paul Jones-George Zaharias' 'sibition.

SWEENEY TO COACH.

Joe Sweeney, who graduated from the Stanton Juniors to the Apaches and Mohawks, will coach this year's Northeast entry in the Capital City League's 150-pound class. The team will drill tonight on the Terminal Field at 8 o'clock.

COLUMBIAS SEEK FOE.

The Columbia A. C. Grid Team, a 150-pound outfit, would like a Sunday game. Call Lincoln 7779-J. The Columbias will join The Post's Capital City League this year.

MAJESTICS IN SWAN SONG.

The Majestic Radio nine will play Elk Ridge Sunday at Elk Ridge in a double-header, which will ring down the season for the radio boys. All Majestics are to report at 932 H street northwest Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

CENTS MEET AND DRILL.

The Centennials will hold a meeting and a practice tonight at 7:30 o'clock on the New York Avenue Playgrounds.

Maryland to Test Reserves In Tomorrow's Grid Debut

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY expects its football team to receive a fair early season test tomorrow when the Washington College team from Chestertown, Md., invades Byrd Stadium for the 1931 Old Line gridiron inaugural.

While no match for the host team in point of ability the Eastern Shore outfit is reported to be stronger than in 1930, when Maryland won by a score of 60 to 6. To the acquisition of Ward and Hurl, ends; Groswith, center, and Blizzard, tackle—all freshmen—is attributed the visiting team's improvement. Five 1930 regulars also will appear in the line-up.

Maryland plans to put its reserves rather than its regulars to the test, for the big worry in the Old Line camp this year is the material that must be called on if a veteran team needs replacements. The veterans will start the game, but Coach Byrd intends to inject the reserves at an early stage.

C. U. DEPENDS ON PASSING AT BOSTON

Bergman Expects His Players to Battle; Squad Leaves.

TENDERED a royal send-off by a small but enthusiastic band of students and alumni prior to their departure, Catholic University's Cardinals, 32 strong, last night entrained for Boston. There they are to stack up against Boston College's powerful Eagles at Fenway Park tomorrow.

Unusual spirit predominated yesterday as the Cardinals frisked through their final preparatory practice on the home gridiron. Clicking smoothly in every department, they looked the part of a well-oiled machine as they rehearsed signals and perfected special formations.

Light Work at Boston Planned.

Upon arrival in Boston and following a period of rest the Cardinals this afternoon are to hustle through a series of light exercises at Fenway Park. This marks their final workout prior to the launching of Saturday's kick-off.

Though steadfast in his contention that Catholic University's eleven is to enter tomorrow's game an odds-on short-ender, Coach Bergman last night confessed that he anticipated a worth-while battle.

Forward passing, Bergman believes, will prove his team's main offensive weapon. With Oliver spinning his consistently long aerials and a flock of capable receivers available, the Cardinals likely will depend mostly upon this method of attack.

Johnny Stapleton, reserve end, failed to make the trip owing to an ankle injury.

Hitting The Head Pin

ALTHOUGH outrolled in total pinfall, 1,776 to 1,771, Hyattsville's team took two of three games from the Fountain Hams in the District League last night on the Lucky Strike drives. Hyattsville took the first and second games, 617-607 and 591-588. The Hams won the final, 591-563.

Temple, Hyattsville, turned in the night's best set, with 152, 111, 127—390, while Fantini led the Hams with 143, 102, 112—384.

At Convention Hall on Wednesday, the Knights of Columbus Bowling League turned in some rather nifty early season bowling in its second week of the season. Only two teams, Marquette and Cortez, were able to clean-sweep their sets. Marquette, egged on by some stiff competition by Ovando, turned in a 586 game and 1,696 set. San Domingo also went over 1,600 in its set, but lost the middle game when the entire team went more or less haywire.

A number of 350 sets were topped by Fred Moore, of Marquette, and Mulquin, of Palos. Frank Mischou's (Ovando) 142 was high game by a nose.

A meeting of the Class B section of the Capitol Hill Bowling League was held last night. Milton Levy was elected president; David Lattin, vice president; Charles Cronck, recording secretary; Nathaniel Hepner, treasurer. Eight teams will make up the league this year, and all matches will be rolled at the Capitol Hill Alleys. League play opens next month.

PETWORTH PENNANTS DRILL.

The Petworth Pennants will work out Sunday at 10 o'clock on the Sixteenth street reservoir field. Due to injuries, the Pennants have been forced to cancel their scrimmage with the Brookland eleven.

The Virginia Cavalier and Columbia Heights 135-pound football teams will combine. Players of both teams are requested to meet tonight at French's sports store at 7:30 o'clock.

MERIDIANS TO WORK.

All Meridian gridmen are requested to report tomorrow at 1 o'clock at Sixteenth street and Reservoir road in full uniform.

PLAY PALISADES.

The Phoenix nine will play the Palisades tomorrow at the Phoenix field and Ciro's Italian Village Sunday.

WHEATON VS. GULFERS.

The Wheaton A. C. and the Gulf Refining nine will clash Sunday at 3 o'clock at Wheaton, Md.

Capital Officials to Handle Tilden-Richards Clash Here

THE Washington Tennis Association yesterday appointed a squad of officials to facilitate Sunday's professional tennis matches at Wardman Park Hotel, in which William T. Tilden 2d will meet Vincent Richards in a three-out-of-five-set singles match.

Winifree Johnson, president of the local net body, named John Ladd, William O. Shreve, Joseph Rutley and Pat Deck as linemen for the event, and Capt. A. J. Gore, A. G. White and Herbert L. Shepard as umpires of the three matches on the afternoon's program of tennis.

Workmen this morning will begin the job of erecting the stands. Grand stands will be erected on courts No. 1 and No. 3, on each side of the championship court, which has been specially treated with calcium chloride for the match. A third grand stand will be erected behind the court, nearest the hotel. Forty boxes, seating six people each, will line the side of the court.

Richards laid aside his teaching duties on Long Island yesterday and engaged in several hard singles matches to tune up for his more than serious task against Tilden. Richards is reported in better shape than he has been since he turned pro in 1926. He will arrive in town this afternoon, and if he still needs the practice, will engage several local opponents.

Tilden will not arrive until tomorrow night, since he plays Albert Burke, European professional champion, in Richmond tomorrow afternoon at the Country Club of Virginia.

Among the other stars at Wardman Sunday will be Burke, Bruce Barnes, Emmett Pare and Bobby Sellers. Tickets are on sale at Spaldings, the Tennis Shop and at the hotel.

G. U. LINE-UP INDICATED BY MILLS

'Regulars' Run Wild in Drill Against Freshmen.

MUCH of the indecision about selecting Georgetown's starting line-up for the Lebanon Valley game was cleared away yesterday when one of two teams Coach Mills sent against the freshmen in scrimmage far outshone its competitor.

A team composed of Carolan and Hudson, ends; Dyer and E. Katalinas, tackles; Danner and Dubofsky, guards; McManus, center; King, quarter; Alenty and Gellis, half backs, and Bradley, full back, ran wild through the freshmen for ten minutes. The other team was composed of Skovinski and Mutl, ends; Anderson and Richards, tackles; Tremblay and Becker, guards; Callahan, center; Costello, quarter; Maczees and Danieu, half backs, and Shimmins, full back. This latter combination, the first to face the freshmen, gave a somewhat ragged exhibition.

Mills announced he would be satisfied if Georgetown defeated Lebanon by six points. Many Georgetown adherents, however, anticipate a much easier victory. Lebanon is reported to have little real football material this season.

Free admission will be granted high school students and Boy Scouts at the game tomorrow in Griffith Stadium. They are requested to use the Fifth street entrance.

CIROS VS. PHOENIX.

The Ciro's Village will attempt to stop the long winning streak of the Phoenix nine when those teams clash Sunday at 3 o'clock on the Phoenix diamond.

FASHION SHOP WORKS.

The soccerists of the Fashion Shop will practice Sunday on the Monument Grounds at 12:30 o'clock. All of last year's players and new candidates are requested to report. Phone W. S. Mann at Columbia 9650 between 4:30 and 6:30 for information.

DIXIE PIGS TO DRILL.

The Dixie Pig eleven will practice tonight at Seat Pleasant.

GRAYS IN TWO GAMES.

The Chevy Chase Grays will play the Washington A. C. nine tomorrow on the Chevy Chase Playground Field at 3 o'clock and Sunday they will travel to Baileys Cross Roads for a battle with the Virginia White Sox at 3 o'clock.

SCHEME TO DIVERT DIVIDENDS BARED IN CAPITAL GAS PROBE

New York Witness Admits Washington and Suburban Income Not Adequate.

DECLARES $6,500,000 IN BONDS SOLD PUBLIC

Officer of Firm Said to Own Local Company Will Testify Today.

Use of the surplus of the Washington Gas Light Co. to pay increased dividends to provide the Washington & Suburban Companies with funds in excess of its fixed charges incident to the involved financing surrounding acquisition of control of the local company was proposed by trustees of the Washington & Suburban Companies, it was developed at the gas hearing before the Public Utilities Commission yesterday.

Fred S. Burroughs, of Chase, Harris, Forbes Corporation, of New York, who was the only witness yesterday, admitted in response to questions by William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, that the income of the Washington & Suburban Companies was not adequate to meet its fixed charges and leave anything over to wipe out large amounts advanced by the Central Public Service Corporation, $400,000,000 utilities holding concern, which first announced its acquisition of the local company, but since has denied that announcement.

Testimony of Burroughs.

The proposal to increase the dividends of the local gas company was advanced in a letter written by Sherman Damon, one of the trustees of the Washington & Suburban Companies, to a Mr. McCullough, officer of the Central Public Service Corporation. Mr. Damon proposed that the dividend be increased from $3.60 to $5 a share. This was not done, Mr. Burroughs explained, in response to questions from Mr. Roberts, because it was felt that the local company should keep its reserve funds for future needs rather than to pay it out in increased dividends and then have to go into the market and seek money for its future needs. The proposed increased dividend, he said, could have been paid without exhausting the corporate surplus of the Washington company.

Mr. Burroughs testified that $6,500,000 in bonds of the Washington & Suburban Companies had been sold to the public through his own and affiliated banking interests. The holders of $6,000,000 collateral notes, issued by the Westfield Trust, as one of the deals involved in the acquisition of the local gas companies, expected to make a profit in addition to the 6 per cent interest due on the notes, Mr. Burroughs said, explaining that these notes were exchangable for Class A stock of the Central Public Service Corporation at $25 a share. That was the market value of the stock at that time, though it since has dropped to $5 a share. Had the market gone up the note holders could have taken stock and disposed of it at a profit on the market.

Notes to Bankers.

Mr. Roberts, as counsel for the utilities commission, is seeking to show that the Central Public Service Corporation is the actual owner of the Washington Gas Light Co. in violation of the La Follette anti-merger law.

On the books the company is owned, along with others, by the Washington & Suburban Companies, which succeeded the Seaboard Investment Trust. All of the voting stock of the Washington & Suburban Companies, in turn, is owned by the Westfield Trust, all of the share of beneficial interest in which are owned by Albert E. Pierce, head of the Central Public Service Corporation. Mr. Pierce put $10,000 into the Westfield Trust, which since has been repaid him through transactions between the trust and another of his companies.

Against the trust holding of the Washington & Suburban Companies there has been issued $6,000,000 collateral notes to bankers. These are guaranteed by the Central Public Service Corporation, which also holds $13,750,000 in notes from the Westfield Trust. These latter are junior to the $6,000,000 notes, but call for the payment to the Central Public Service Corporation of all the income of the trust after payments on the $6,000,000 notes have been met.

Contention of Roberts.

These facts, Mr. Roberts is seeking to show through examination of witnesses before the commission, place the actual ownership of the local gas companies in the Central Public Service Corporation in violation of the antimerger law. They mean, he said, either the corporation owns the local and other companies in the group or has advanced $13,750,000 for which its stockholders have got nothing in return.

Efforts of the new owners of the gas company to keep quiet some of their transactions were indicated by a postscript on one of the letters identified at the hearing yesterday. The postscript said "this letter and the letters of June 2 and June 21, 1931, should not be filed in your regular files." The letter was addressed from the Central Public Service Corporation to Mr. Damon.

Wildes to Testify.

Extent of the control exercised over the management of the local company was shown further by other letters which Mr. Roberts asked Mr. Burroughs to identify. This control included passing on attorneys' fees and other expenses included in which was an item of $2,500 as a fee for Wilton J. Lambert, Washington attorney, for work in connection with the gas merger legislation which failed of enactment.

Attorneys for the utilities interests objected strongly to the introduction of much of the matter, and D. F. McPherson, general counsel, protested that what was being done indicated "a desire to pillory and humiliate us."

W. H. Wildes, vice president of the Central Public Service Corporation, is to be the first witness when the hearings are resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

SCHOOL FURNISHINGS DELAY STILL PUZZLE

Assistant Purchasing Officer Admits Knowing Details; Refuses to Talk.

The reason why six weeks elapsed between the receipt of the bids and the award of the contract for school furniture which was not delivered in time for school opening, still remained unexplained last night.

Only one District official, Melville D. Lindsay, assistant purchasing officer, admitted that he knew something about the transaction, but even he was "not talking." Marion C. Hargrove, the purchasing officer, whose office generally knows the history of bids and contract awards, is on leave.

Asked the reason why six weeks expired between the receipt of the bids and the awarding of the contract, Mr. Lindsay said: "That is more than I can tell."

McCarl Places Blame.

"Do you know any of the history of this particular transaction?" he was asked.

"I know something of it; but I am not talking," he replied.

The blame for the delay in the delivery of the school furnishings, which resulted in several hundred pupils having to sit on the floor at the opening school sessions, was laid at the door of the District officials by Comptroller General McCarl.

The usual procedure followed in handling bids, according to Mr. Lindsay is: They are received by the purchasing officer's office, then they are submitted to the interested board or department (in this case the school board) for recommendations, then they are returned to the purchasing officer for further recommendations and final submission to the board of commissioners.

Six Weeks Elapse.

Usually, according to Mr. McCarl, this procedure takes but a few days. In this case, the bids were received on May 5 and the contract was not awarded until June 16.

Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, whose office records all contracts and purchases, is on leave. His principal assistant, Arthur R. Pilkerton, could not be reached last night.

Maj. D. A. Davison, Acting Engineer Commissioner, could not be reached last night, and Maj. H. L. Robb, assistant Engineer Commissioner, is on a two-day leave.

The Comptroller General's office pointed out that the contract for the school furnishings, awarded to the Derby Co. of Gardner, Mass., was not held up voluntarily by his office; but it was because of a lower bidding firm had filed protest because of the award, charging it had been discriminated against.

Fail to Explain.

As a result of the protest, the Derby Company held up manufacture for sixteen days. On July 17, the day after the award of the contract, a low-bidding firm filed protest with the comptroller general. Five days later the Commissioners, at the request of the comptroller general's office, submitted the record of the transaction, but failed to explain that the reason for the rejection of the lower bid was the failure of the company to submit proper samples, according to specifications.

On July 23 the Derby company representatives explained their side of the case, and four days later the comptroller general's office approved the award of the contract to the Derby company. The furniture failed to arrive on time, and makeshift chairs and desks were installed. Most of the furniture has now arrived and has been set up in the new buildings.

Wife Is Granted Order Halting Suit of Mate

Preston A. Roberts was yesterday directed by Justice Jesse C. Adkins to temporarily discontinue his attempt to obtain a divorce from his wife, Mrs. Marybel Roberts, in Philadelphia. The restraining order was signed at the request of Mrs. Roberts, who claimed that she would suffer irreparable injuries if her husband was allowed to continue with his Philadelphia suit.

Mrs. Roberts filed suit for a limited divorce here last May. She also asks the custody of a minor son. On June 15, under an order signed by Justice Jennings Bailey, Mrs. Roberts was awarded temporary alimony and the boy's custody. A hearing will be held October 3 to determine whether the temporary restraining order shall be made permanent.

Cadet Wins Health and Commission

As a reward for the same kind of grit and courage which brought his father, grandfather and great-grandfather military honors, Charles Hartwell Bonesteel 3d yesterday won the commission which illness denied him last June when he was graduated from the United States Military Academy, and was detailed as a Rhodes scholar at Oxford University for two years.

Lieut. Bonesteel, who is the son of Maj. Charles H. Bonesteel, was stricken with pneumonia, scarlet fever and influenza last February and was granted three months leave from the academy to regain his health. Yesterday Army doctors at Walter Reed Hospital pronounced him fit and he was commissioned immediately and ordered to sail October 10.

The young officer stood sixth in his class at West Point and was a member of the tennis and swimming teams while winning a Rhodes scholarship. He and his family reside at 2701 Connecticut avenue.

For valor displayed at the Battle of Bull Run, Lieut. Bonesteel's great-grandfather won a medal of honor and his grandfather was cited for heroism at San Juan. Maj. Bonesteel, who is on duty at the Army War College, served overseas during the World War.

2 Arrested by Raiders In Alleged Beer Flat

An alleged beer flat at 1733 F street northwest was raided yesterday afternoon by the headquarters vice squad. Ed Dobbs, 34, and Hamilton B. Groves, 25, both living at that address, were arrested and charged with illegal possession and permitting gaming.

The police say they found 200 bottles of beer, 20 quarts of whisky and two slot machines on the premises. Sergt. N. O. Holmes and Privates T. M. McVeary, R. J. Bryant, J. K. Baker and H. G. Wanamaker comprised the raiding party.

Cosmopolitan Club Told of Jobless Aid

Worker in Employment Service Outlines Unit's Plans.

Federal strategems in "the battle against unemployment" were outlined yesterday before the Cosmopolitan Club of Washington by Otis J. Rogers, superintendent of the office and mercantile division of the United States Employment Service, at a luncheon at the Carlton Hotel.

Mr. Rogers said the government has declared war "against the forces which, if not actively aiding and abetting the enemy, are at least passive in their efforts to relieve the situation."

To meet the emergency, the employment service has been completely reorganized and enlarged by Secretary of Labor Doak, Mr. Rogers explained, and "already the efforts of this service have been successful in the case of hundreds of thousands of people." The speaker was introduced by James Nolan, to whom President Gordon Bonnette turned over the meeting.

Roads Surfacing Bids Opened.

Carson & Gruman submitted the lowest of three bids for bituminous surface treatment of District streets, according to proposals opened at the District Building yesterday. Their bid was $27,140. McGuire & Rolfe bid $27,800 and The Bituminous Earth Road Corporation, of Raleigh, N. C., bid $28,680.

MAN GRAVELY HURT IN LEAP FROM TAXI

Passenger, Without Money, Jumped on Jail Threat, Driver Declares.

An unidentified white man, about 45 years old, is near death in Gallinger Hospital suffering from a fractured skull, received, police said, when he leaped from a moving taxicab last night at the intersection of Sixth and H streets northwest.

According to the cab driver, Clifton Diggs, colored, 23 years old, of 132 D street southwest, the man hailed him at North Capitol and I streets and asked to be driven to the 600 block of H street northwest. The man appeared to be intoxicated, Diggs said, and when they reached their destination declared that he had no money.

Without waiting for his passenger to alight, Diggs started his taxi, intending, he said, to drive to the nearest police station. When informed he was going to be turned over to police, the man opened the door of the cab and leaped, the driver said. Although Diggs said he was traveling at a moderate rate of speed, the man was unable to remain on his feet and fell, striking his head on the pavement.

The cab driver placed his fare back in the taxi and drove to Emergency Hospital. Physicians declared the man was in a critical condition and he was removed to Gallinger by police.

Police said the man was wearing a gray suit, blue shirt and black shoes and socks. The name of a tailor, "W. Z. Perry," was on the inside of his coat.

New York Man Seeking $10,000 Crash Damages

Allan S. Glenn, 277 West Forty-fifth street, New York City, yesterday filed suit here in the District Supreme Court for $10,000 damages as the result of an automobile accident at Nineteenth and Q streets northwest, December 21, 1930.

Mr. Glenn charged that while he was a passenger in a taxicab driven by Sidney Brown, of 1387 H street northeast, the machine was struck by one driven by Owen C. Chatterton, 413 A street southeast. The two drivers, along with the Independent Taxi Owners Association, of 1735 Fourteenth street northwest, were named as defendants. Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer filed the suit.

COMMISSIONS VIEW PLANS TO BEAUTIFY BASE OF MONUMENT

Joint Session Fails to Agree on Site for the Navy Building.

PROPOSED RIVER PARK TO BE VISITED TODAY

Changes in Tunnel Under Virginia Avenue Are Discussed.

Alternative plans for development of the grounds about the base of the Washington Monument were submitted to a joint meeting of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Fine Arts Commission yesterday by William A. Delano and F. L. Olmsted.

One plan proposed to leave the base much as it is, a natural lawn sloping from the Monument entrance, with modifications of the slope to make it more symmetrical. The other contemplates a balustrade, with the planting of trees about it. No decision was made.

Efforts to bring about agreement on future public buildings in Washington also occupied the attention of the meeting. With the Treasury, Fine Arts and Park and Planning Commissions committed to three different plans, agreement on general features which should serve as a determining factor in selection of sites was vainly sought.

Tunnel Change Taken Up.

The Treasury architects favor constructing the War and Navy Department in the Southwest section near the Capitol. The Fine Arts Commission favors a development along Pennsylvania avenue west of the State Department. The Park and Planning Commission favors development on land owned by the Government between Constitution and New York avenues, west of Seventeenth street.

Plans for changing the Virginia avenue railroad tunnel were considered at a meeting of the Park and Planning Commission in the afternoon. The present tunnel does not allow enough headroom to permit the Pennsylvania Railroad to electrify it. The railroad is to make what changes may be necessary, but the commission wants drafts of the work submitted for approval in advance.

Members of the commission and trustees of the Memorial Park Fund are to make an inspection trip along the Potomac River today to study the land it is proposed to incorporate in the Washington Memorial Park extending from Mount Vernon to above Great Falls on both sides of the river.

Land Purchase Considered.

Purchase of property in Maryland at the end of Rock Creek Park as an addition to the park was considered and it was deemed likely that the office of the Attorney General would place its approval on the plan in the near future.

It was reported that nineteen men were at work on the regional highway survey, which includes, besides the District of Columbia, Fairfax and Arlington counties and Alexandria in Virginia, together with Montgomery and Prince Georges counties in Maryland.

Decision may be reached today on several proposed highway changes. The south end of the Taft Bridge is one of the matters awaiting consideration.

Margaret Louise Maynard, 1161 Morse street northeast, is second in the current standing and Izetta Rhea Simon is third.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ELMER TWITCHELL ON THE GOLD STANDARD.

MR. ELMER TWITCHELL, noted tourist, student of finance, pole vaulter, seven-card pete player and man-about-town, was asked today for a statement that would clarify this British suspension of the gold standard. Mr. Twitchell does not usually talk for the press, but made an exception in this instance. "You may quote me as saying that the suspension of the gold standard may be a very good thing. Everything else is in a state of suspese, anyhow, and the gold standard might as well be.

* * * *

"As far as the average man is concerned, I think he can stand it," continued Mr. Twitchell. "He doesn't know what it's all about anyhow and it is to be sincerely hoped that no attempt will be made to tell him. The only distress I have noticed as a result of the British action has been occasioned by the efforts of one member of the household to explain to another member what the gold standard is and what of it."

* * * *

"Do you or do you not think that it will take the world a long time to recover from the shock?" he was asked.

"I think that a far greater shock than the suspension of the gold standard by Great Britain was the suspension of the silence standard by Mr. J. P. Morgan," replied Elmer. "Mr. Morgan, who like his father has made it a rule never to talk for publication, dropped the taciturnity standard at once, received newspapermen in front of a nice warm fireplace and chatted quite volubly. Personally, I am not alarmed half as much by the suspension of the gold standard as by the spectacle of Mr. Morgan talking for the press. It's a decided shock.

* * * *

"MR. MORGAN stated that he considered the suspension of the gold standard as a hopeful sign. As I'm a bit thick on gold standards, never having had any of my own, I am inclined to take Mr. Morgan's word for it. The way things are today, almost anything that happens is bound to be a hopeful sign by comparison. We are accepting as hopeful signs today happenings that would have been regarded as first-class disasters three years ago.

* * * *

"What do you think of the money situation generally?" Mr. Twitchell was asked.

"I think it would be a good idea to do away with money," he replied. "It has not been a success. Most people have done away with money in the last couple of years, anyhow. I would abolish it entirely and get back to the glass bead, watch chain, gee-gaw and trinket standard.

* * * *

"I notice that the savage tribes of the earth are the only people getting along as well as ever today. It's because they don't use money. Let us abolish money. After using it for years I find it very unsatisfactory."

* * * *

"DO you feel that the immediate outlook is any more encouraging?" he was asked.

"I feel that England and America have taken two steps that should lead to happier days, temporarily at least," he replied. "What two steps?"

"England's dropping of the gold standard and America's dropping of the ligater golf ball," concluded Mr. Twitchell.

WIND TESTS ARE EXPLAINED

George C. Hill, of the Bureau of Standards, explains to Miss Bond Martin, with the aid of a model of New York's Empire State Building, just how wind tests are made in the bureau's 10-foot wind tunnel to determine pressures developed by gales up to 60 miles an hour on skyscrapers.

PEPCO WILL ENTER COURT IN RATE ROW

Will Ask That Utility Board Be Prevented From Changing Basis.

Appeal will be made to the courts to prevent the Public Utilities Commission from changing the basis for fixing its rates, the Potomac Electric Power Co. notified the commission yesterday.

The company notice was filed by S. R. Bowen and John S. Barbour, as counsel for the company, with Earl V. Fisher, executive secretary of the commission.

The company declared that the commission order, notifying that rates for next year would be fixed regardless of the consent decree approved by the District courts, was "irregular and defective on its face and is contrary to law and violative of the rights" of the company.

Rates of the company have been fixed annually since 1925 on the basis of the court decree. This provided that the company should be permitted to earn a return of 7½ per cent on its valuation, which was set at $32,500,000 and has been regularly brought up to date by the additional capital expenditures.

The commission, after a hearing, ruled that the company had been earning more than 10 per cent annually.

Driver Arrested After Wild Chase

Directs Car Up on Walk and Runs; Says He Didn't Know of Pursuit.

Following a thrilling automobile chase through downtown traffic last night, which ended when the driver of the pursued machine ran up on the sidewalk at Third and F streets northwest, Lawrence N. Turner, colored, of 86½ Fenton street northeast, was arrested by a Capitol policeman and held for investigation at the First Police Precinct.

The chase began when Turner failed to heed Policeman Bert Kennedy's signal to stop in front of the Capitol. Kennedy commandeered the machine of William G. Schutz, 505 B street southeast, and started in pursuit. The chase led for several blocks through a maze of heavy traffic.

At the intersection of Third and F streets Turner ran his car up on the sidewalk and took to his heels. He was overtaken a short distance away by Policeman Kennedy. At the precinct station house Turner declared he didn't know he was being followed.

Chest Has Helped 18,536 This Year

Expenditures of $199,507 Reported for Eight Months of 1931.

During the first eight months of 1931 relief organizations affiliated with the Community Chest assisted 18,536 individuals or families. During the same period of 1930 these same organizations assisted 13,200 individuals or families, showing an increase of 5,336, or 40.5 per cent for 1931 over 1930. Of this total in 1931, 10,056 received actual relief and 8,480 were assisted by services only.

The relief organizations expended $199,507 for the first eight months of 1931, as compared with $152,918 for the same period in 1930, an increase of $46,589, or 30.5 per cent. In the first eight months of 1930, 16,947 meals were served to transient homeless men and women. In the same period of 1931 40,232 meals were served, an increase of 137 per cent. For this period in 1930, 4,979 nights' lodging were supplied, as compared with 26,609 nights for 1931, an increase of 481 per cent.

These figures were made public yesterday by Andrew G. Landrus, auditor and office manager of the Community Chest, in a talk over station WRC, in which he discussed the disposition of the money given by Washingtonians to the chest.

ROPER IS RECEIVER OF INSURANCE FIRM

Court Directs Report to Be Made on Possibility of Reorganization.

Daniel C. Roper, member of the Board of Education, after more than a week of deliberation by Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, was made receiver of the National Benefit Life Insurance Co. yesterday. Mr. Roper was commissioner of internal revenue under the Wilson administration and is a Democratic leader.

He was directed by the court to take over the assets of the company and report as soon as possible if it can be reorganized. The company business is to be continued by him, with the present officers serving in an advisory capacity. His bond was fixed at $50,000.

Action of Judge Wheat was based upon a petition by John R. Pinkett, second vice president of the company, made two weeks ago, for appointment of a receiver. The action was concurred in by John T. Risher, who was elected president of the company June 17. The receivership was opposed by Louis C. Washington, first vice president, and other company officers representing large financial interests.

Mismanagement Charged.

Oral arguments were heard by Justice Wheat, Attorney Daniel Thew Wright appearing for Washington, and Col. James S. Easby-Smith for C. B. Lee, treasurer. Herbert L. Davis, insurance commissioner, was put forward by the applicants for the receivership, as the person whom they regarded best qualified to carry on and rehabilitate the company.

Charges of mismanagement have been made and a suit filed in Equity Court against former officers of the company. Pinkett's petition expressed the belief that $1,000,000 would be required to rehabilitate the organization which, with approximately $6,000,000 in assets and $75,000,000 of insurance in force, is the largest colored business concern in the world.

Simultaneously with the naming of a receiver here by Chief Justice Wheat, Judge G. H. Howard, in Fulton Superior Court, Atlanta, Ga., signed an order appointing Lewis A. Irons, deputy insurance commissioner of Georgia, as permanent receiver for the company.

To Control Georgia Property.

He was authorized to take charge of approximately $1,000,000 worth of Georgia property owned by the company and hold it for claims of Georgia residents who have policy agreements with it.

The company's charter was revoked in Georgia prior to court action by authority of the governor of the State. Testimony showed that 13,000 of the 250,000 outstanding policies of the company were held by Georgia residents, the business being principally that of the old Standard Life Insurance Co. of Georgia, which the National Benefit took over in 1927.

Attorneys for the company officers last night expressed the belief that the new receiver would proceed at once to take steps to make the receivership in Georgia and receiverships in 26 other States where the company operates ancillary to the receivership here at the home office, 609 F street northwest. It was the consensus among company officers that the company could be rehabilitated following reorganization.

WARDMAN 1921 TAX ON INCOME ORDERED TO BE RECOMPUTED

Is Upheld in Appeal That He Should Be Assessed as Corporation.

BOARD DECIDES HE MET REQUIREMENTS OF LAW

Gifts to Wife and Daughter of Rheem Company Stock Are Disclosed.

A recomputation of Harry Wardman's $46,843.01 income tax of 1921 was ordered yesterday, after the United States Board of Tax Appeals upheld Wardman's contention that he should be taxed as a corporation and not as an individual.

Wardman paid the tax on the basis of an income of $131,328.21, received as an individual. He took the matter before the Board of Tax Appeals, however, when the Bureau of Internal Revenue attempted to collect an alleged deficiency of $12,074.51.

He contended he had reorganized his business as "The Wardman Construction Co., Inc.," under Virginia laws, and under the revenue act of 1921 should be taxed as a corporation.

Had Met Requirements.

The board found that Wardman was "incorporating his business to secure the benefits of a reduced tax rate," and that he had met the requirements of the law allowing him to be taxed as a corporation.

The correct new worth of his business was estimated by the board at $456,586.14 on January 1, and at $543,202.22 on December 31, 1921. At these same dates, total assets of the business were estimated respectively at $3,526,000.84 and $4,130,139.14.

Gifts to his wife and daughter of stock in the now defunct Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co., were disclosed in the decision.

$35,000 Held Reasonable.

The Government insisted Wardman's salary should be figured at $50,000 for the year, while Wardman contended that $35,000 was reasonable compensation for the service he rendered. It was shown that Wardman drew a net amount of $51,025.23 from the business in 1921 for his personal account. The board decided his salary should be computed at $35,000.

"Obviously," it stated, "if a sole proprietorship is sufficiently fortunate as to realize net earnings, which are not entirely needed in the further conduct of the business, the proprietor will convert the excess earnings into other investments or appropriate them to his personal needs and welfare."
